by the time it reaches the ocean it will be diluted even more," Van Curen said. "If the relative radioactivity were measured it would be about one third more than that of a normal ocean water and a third less than a glass of milk."

Van Curen said the pumping of the water into the discharge canal began this weekend and is expected to take about a week.

"There are three and a half million gallons and it has to go through an eight inch line," he said. "There is no feel for how long it will take but it will probably be most of the week, I would say."

Photo contest, beach mark Earth Week

BY ROBBIE BEDELL

JENSEN BEACH–The Florida Institute of Technology Naturalist's Society, appalled by the amount of litter scattered about Martin County Beaches, this Sunday made the rounds and came up with dozens of bags filled with assorted items of trash.

"We've got about 30 volunteers working from Seminole Shores north to past Jensen Beach," Society Vice President Mike McDavit said. "And when they get back, we're going to feed them all cold lemonade and donuts."

Slowly the volunteers arrived bearing yellow plastic bags filled to overflowing with beer cans, bottles, styrofoam cups and paper.

Local conservationist Valerie Prim and her husband Gardner showed up with several bags and slumped to the ground with fatigue.

"Give us four more bags," she said. "We're on our way for more."

McDavit had asked for local civic groups and clubs for volunteers but few showed. The Primes came for the

Shevin will speak at condo meeting

STUART–Attorney General Robert Shevin will address Treasure Coast Condominiums Association (TCCA) at its annual meeting on Friday, April 22. TCCA meets at Vista Pines, 2600 S.E. Ocean Blvd., Stuart.

The business meeting commences at 9 a.m., with Attorney General Shevin's address at 10 a.m. He will speak on Lease and Unified Complex Management problems.

The program will then continue with a seminar on "Financial Management", treating budgets, management and fiscal responsibilities. The panel includes past presidents and treasurers of condominiums who will apply actual experience as well as technical knowledge to this most important management area.

Martin County Conservation Alliance, but it was the only public group represented. The rest of the beach cleaners were members of the Naturalist's Society itself or individual student and non-student volunteers.

"With 30 people we were able to get the job done and that's what counts," McDavit said.

"It's such a nice day most people would rather enjoy the beach than work on it," said club Treasurer DeDe Wheat.

The beach clean-up and a photo contest are the first events held this week in celebration of the club's Earth Week.

Earth Week activities will resume this Friday with a natural foods dinner at the FIT campus at 5 p.m. and a torchlight vigil from the Jensen Causeway to Jensen Beach at 9 p.m. Friday. Throughout Friday and the weekend there will be speakers and exhibits on the campus. There will be a showing of the movie "The Hellstrom Chronicles" at 8 p.m., Sunday.

A folk concert will be held at 1 p.m. Sunday, with Earth Week expected to end at 6 p.m.

AMID REFUSE–A number of the nearly 30 volunteers who showed up for the Earth Week Beach Clean-up pose behind a portion of the garbage they picked up along Martin County Beaches last Sunday. One of the more unusual finds in the pile is the neon bulb in the foreground. The volunteers are, from the left: Gardner Prime, Amy Datz, Randy Bennett, Valerie Prime, DeDe Wheat, Mike McDavitt and Tim Nahm.

Hutchison-Backus exhibit is at First National

STUART–First National Bank and Trust Company of Stuart is saluting local artist James Hutchinson by displaying the Hutchinson-Backus exhibit in the Stuart lobby April 28 through May 6.

Hutchinson, a graduate of Martin County High School and resident of Sewall's Point, is a familiar name to art enthusiasts around the country and students of Florida history. He is best known for his paintings of and involvement with Florida Indians.

Included in the exhibit are two limited edition prints by A.E. Backus of Fort Pierce. "Flamboyant" shows a sprawling Royal Poinciana tree in full bloom, its branches hovering over an old frame building and fishing skiff. The other, entitled "Piney Woods" depicts a lonely dirt road which has found its way between several giant Florida Pines.

STUART–Dennis S. Hudson, Jr., chairman, First National Bank and Trust Company of Stuart, has announced a stock divident to First National shareholders.

At a special meeting on Friday, the shareholders approved a stock divident of 90,000 shares, payable to shareholders of record on April 30, 1977.

The action by the shareholders will increase First National's capital stock by $900,000 and is subject to approval by the Comptroller of the Currency.

First National Bank and Trust Company of Stuart lists assets of more than $115 million.

BASEBALL AND BUBBLE GUM–While it used to be youngsters ate popcorn while watching their favorite baseball game, Ivette Naser prefers blowing bubbles as she watches the Little League competition Saturday night at Sportsman Park.

Club Oratorical Contest, held at Hoke Hall several weeks ago.

Jensen Beach's other entrant, Optimist champ Scott Gray, was not able to win in the always-tough boys division. However, as local contest Chairman L.D. Kirkpatrick remarked later, "He showed a tremendous improvement over his performance in the local contest." Instead, the entrant from the West Palm Beach Optimist Club, whose name was unavailable at press time, was given the nod.

Gallagher, an eighth grade student at St. Joseph's School, hopes to make it three in a row this Sunday afternoon at the Holiday Inn in Boca Raton. She will be trying to win the title vacated by defending champion Connie Lambeth who, as the Jensen Beach representative, advanced all the way to the state final last year. However, Lambeth's family moved to North Carolina shortly after the contest final, clearing the way for a new champion to try her luck this time around.

The Optimist Club seems to have succeeded beyond their wildest dreams in the two years they have entered the statewide contest. And, at least in the girls division, a pattern is developing.

The runner-up to Lambeth in the first annual contest last year was Gallagher. Even then, she showed definite signs that by this year's contest, she would be hard to beat. When Lambeth moved, Gallagher became the odds-on favorite to gain the throne. But this year, she was hard-pressed by another underdog, Cindy Dardine, who finished a reasonably close second. (Perhaps we should keep an eye on her until next year's event.)

Meanwhile, the boys have not yet won a contest outside the sanction of the local Optimists. Last year, Paul Deel, who many thought had a better shot at the state title than Lambeth, was decisively beaten in the Zone final. And of course, Gray lost in the same event this year. Next year's hope right now would have to be Gene Ray of St. Michael's, who finished second this year.

Write letters to the editor to say thank you for help to your chapter during the past.

One more time...

Riverside Village

BY SALLY HOFFMAN

Thought I had turned in the final column last week but was handed a few items so decided to sent them in.

+ + +

The biggest item was the 17-pound snook that Muriel Pressbury caught about 8 a.m. in the surf. It was the largest she had ever caught, so it was quite a thrill for her.

+ + +

Orville and Mary Gerdes have had visitors from Crystal Falls, Michigan, their grandson, Pat Anderson, and his friends Randy Ball, Tony Kudwa and "Spook" Martin. They were fascinated by the palm trees, this being their first trip south. Probably anything green looked good to them as there was an 11-inch snowfall just before they left Crystal Falls.

+ + +

Katie Smith had dinner guests, her brother and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Ken Snow, and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Wasley. Katie's friends from Terre Haute, Indiana, are arriving this week. Dorothy Medley and Nell Willis. They will be driving home together at the end of the month.

+ + +

Howard and Vi Davis have just returned from a four-day vacation in St. Augustine. They are still members of the working class so look forward to a few days off. For we retirees, every day is Sunday, according to my husband.

+ + +

Fray Johnson and Jean Lewis are recent bingo jackpot winners...two weeks in a row for Fray.

+ + +

Leland and Judy Clements were overnight guests of the Pressburys. Ray and Lee went fishing (what else), so several of us ladies went to the Outriggers for the luncheon and style show. Judy, Muriel Pressbury, Katie Smith, Sally Hoffman, Agnes Fritz and her daughter-in-law, Marilyn Fritz, and granddaughter Karen.

Agnes' son and wife, Jerry and Marilyn Fritz and grandchildren Ron and Karen are here from Drayton Plains, Michigan.

The folks who visited here in March and so far in April sure had perfect timing. I used to think Michigan had nice springs, but it has been beautiful here this year. I'll still take Michigan Octobers, but when the snow flies, give me the Florida sunshine. We should be called "Sunbirds" instead of "Snowbirds".

In Appreciation

We want to express our appreciation to one and all for the comfort, sympathy, flowers and cards that showed how well Ove G. Christensen was liked.

Thanks again for your kindness. It will never be forgotten.

Some of our best loved mothers are using underhanded tactics.

Not to mention proper backhand techniques. Power serves. Net position. And all the essentials that turn a wife and mother into a tennis hotdog.

It's all part of a family membership at Indian River Plantation Tennis Club, on Hutchinson Island. One of the finest private tennis facilities this side of Forest Hills.

For $450 a year, you and your family can play our eleven championship Har-Tru courts. Anytime you want. Day or evening. Individually or as a family.

What's more, you can take lessons (for a reasonable fee) from Tom Falkenburg, one of the leading U.S. senior players. The same pro who designed and built some of the best (and most challenging) tennis clubs in the country. Including ours.

Our family memberships are limited. In fact, we're cutting it off at 300. Which means you should cut off the coupon for information today. Or, you can call Tom Falkenburg at 287-9101.

May is 'Older American' month month of May is "Older American

" and National AARP has asked ters to assist in making it well n to the general public. Remember, year the Martin County Chapter ed a bottle brush tree in Lake Clare Stuart (on Palm Beach Road), i, with Mayor Foster and Park

It was proposed to have a multi-service Senior Center and mobile units to bring health services, meals, homemaking, etc., to retirees; to have home delivery services, family placement programs and adult day care. When these things are done, seniors can live with dignity with less cost to the community.

ER JENCKS, 878-3856

ERNIE CURWEN, 334-0756

or Robert Hall at the dedication. It e seen that this was a worthwhile ct, as the tree survived the killing and is now in full bloom and very thful. Something along these lines be planned for this year.

AARP Joint State Legislative Com-ee has again called our attention to pending legislation concerning r citizens and wants us to inform representatives and senators as to ews.

rst, Insurance Commissioner Bill ey's two-prong attack to help those these Floridians who can't afford insurance would reduce the datory coverage from four to one only $5000 required for personal y, giving us saving of up to 80
. Second, he would eliminate ulative damages" such as pain, ring and mental anguish, which consumes 30 cents of every ance dollar. The driver would still ble for all real damages. This could answer to reduced premiums, and we must have or there'll be more re uninsured on the road.

so, the committee pointed out that ision was adopted to establish munity care for the elderly", by allowing them to live at home ad of being institutionalized at derable savings. But, the state ature did not appropriate any . Instead, some federal monies found for pilot programs.

The first Jensen Clinic by the Martin County Health Department, Friday, April 15, was a great success. At 9 a.m., when the doors opened at Langford Fieldhouse, 22 were waiting for free blood pressure checks, nutrition counseling, and information on other services. Then, they came by twos and threes to a total of 50 or more and at 11 a.m., with no more in sight, the clinic was closed. It was reported that a dozen or more showed up later.

The next Jensen Clinic will be same time, same place, Friday, May 20. Dr. MacCallister, directors, nurses and AARP Chairman Pearl Wyse were very well pleased with the turnout and feel that more preventative and screening services can be made available, as required.

Martin County Chapter 2223

THE EXCOM met at the new location in the Stuart Plaza. The new place is very attractive but there was no table in sight for the secretary to make her recordings. Very briefly, here's what was covered:

FIVE NEW chairmen were appointed: Mildred Capana, to keep a check on low cost housing projects; Stan deVillers, to get food buying co-ops off the ground; Frank Edwardson, to handle employment problems; Herb Hiers, to work on obtaining a mimeograph; Jill Morris will again take over travel. However, chairmen are still needed for legislative, program, public reltions, ways and means. Any volunteers?

TAX AID summary was presented. Paul Berglund and Rudy Latchaw report Stuart handled 186 questions and made out 121 forms, while Jensen did about the same with 179 questions and 115 forms, making a total of 601 satisfied and appreciative customers.

AUGUST issue of the bulletin (extra issue) was explained to the committee. It will be to send to those going north, if they send in their addresses. All committee members going away should tell Margaret McCuen (546-9421) so useless telephone calls can be prevented. Don't forget, The Mirror will follow you north and all year for $7.50, including a family membership to the chapter.

Al Tucker, membership chairman, reports that there are now 740 paid up members and he has 12 "call girls" keeping track of them. He needs a few more "CG's". If interested, call 287-4241.

MULTI-GROUP picnic, our May picnic on Thursday, the fifth, could be quite an affair. The North Palm Beach Chapter is going to join in the fun, by the bus load of 50, and the Port St. Lucie Chapter has been invited to come over and have some fun, also. It'll be at Langford Park with the usual committee meetings from 10 a.m. to noon, lunch at 12, bring your own eats but Martin County Chapter will provide beverage. Then, after a short intergroup meeting, there'll be games, square dancing, sports, etc. That's one way to start May "Older Americans Month".

The idea of an information table in the mall was explained. Ways and means of getting volunteers and briefing them on answers to questions, etc., was discussed. Much more on this later.

EDITH HILL, entertainment chairman, suggests that as long as the May meeting is to be a fun session, let's have an All Male wedding skit. It was voted, "Why not", so Edith proceeded to select a cast.

Port St. Lucie Chapter 2696

The Martin County Chapter invites members of the Port St. Lucie Chapter to a picnic scheduled for Wednesday, May 4, at Langford Park in Jensen Beach.

Ernie Curwen, president of the Martin County group, promises a day of good fellowship and fun. Eating is scheduled for 11:45 a.m., but he admits that some of the folks get together a bit earlier.

Ernie asks that everyone brings his own eats. The host group will provide drinks, cups and napkins....and a warm welcome.

March was Red Cross Month, but the need for volunteers and assistance continues. The St. Lucie County Chapter reminds us all that the Red Cross is 96 years old and is supported entirely by volunteers and voluntary contributions. If you have time or anything to contribute to the Red Cross, please contact the Chapter at 430 N. 7th St. in Fort Pierce. The phone number is 461-2950.

The most important thing this week is the monthly meeting Thursday, April 21, at 1:30 p.m. at the Northport Marina. Elmer Cox, Port St. Lucie City Manager and Mayor Bill McChesney will be on hand.

Trust you really noticed the fine, new arrangement of the newsletter you received last week. The staff is entitled to congratulations for the publication.

Morgan Jones will present to the Thursday meeting the information on a new course offered to senior citizens at the Indian River Community College in Fort Pierce on Serving Senior Citizens.

The course will be presented every Tuesday at 1:30 p.m. beginning May 3, in Room A-5-4 at the college. It must have a minimum of 15 students, a maximum of 35.

There is no charge, since the project is funded by an agreement with the Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services of the State of Florida. All you have to do to participate is be there Tuesday, May 3, at 1:30 p.m.

Specialists will be speaking on subjects such as health care of senior citizens, the economics of retirement, human relations, safety and security, ultimate planning, and such topics.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

At the recent meeting of the AARP National Executive Committee, the following policy on AARP participation in health maintenance organizations was aired.

Health maintenance organizations are being organized at the community level, in accordance with federal law and federal financial support requirements.

AARP supports HMO as a matter of policy. AARP also encourages chapters and their members to support and participate in HMO's in their areas.

Concerning legal services on a group basis, they could be beneficial but until a formal policy is developed, volunteer officers should advise chapters to refrain from assuming any direct sponsorship or endorsement without national approval.

May is "Older Americans Month". Assist your libraries in preparing displays of books and magazines that demonstrate the outstanding accomplishments that have been made and continue to be made by older persons.

Write letters to the editor to say thank you for help to your chapter during the past.

Aloha, Haules!

Which, translated, means, "Hello, Malihinders". Alma Wild, Celia Barr, Nettie Keefer and I went on a two week, four island tour of the Hawaiian Islands under the t.l.c. of "Sir" Rangiwai of the Jensen Beach Travel Service, and we had a ball! Only superlatives can describe the beauty of the islands, and when you add the perfection of Sir's arrangements and a group as simpatica as ours, it totally cut "terrific". Where else do you get an orchid with your toast and coffee?

We spent five enchanted days at the Ilikai Hotel on the beach at Waikiki, did acres of shopping, and took several tours, including one to the Arizona War Memorial. My seatmate on the Navy tender was a charming Japanese gentleman who apologized for what happened, and drew my attention to the fact that our captain and first mate were Waves. We planned to take the Pearl Harbor cruise but were rained out. On the north side of the island we took a good look at the famous surfers' "Pipeline".

We saw the Blow Hole on Oahu, but the Kodak show was also rained out. Diamond Head was visible from our hotel. Every evening we watched the lighting of the torches to the accompaniment of Polynesians blowing on conch shells, and we had a special treat when the Mens' Glee Club of UCLA gave a concert on the patio.

When we reached Kauai we took right off for an all-day tour of that mountainous island, went through a rain forest, viewed its Little Grand Canyon, the Spout Horn and the Menehune Fishpond whose stone walls are said to have been built in one night by the menehunes (little people). We boarded a motor launch for a trip up Hawaii's only navigable river enlivened by singing and hula dancing, to the Fern Grotto where thousands of ferns hang from the ceiling.

Our next island was Maui, where we saw the "Needle", a fern covered volcanic spire, a rain forest, then the old whaling town of Lahaina and the largest banyan tree in the state.

Sugar cane and pineapples grow on all the islands, and there's a shortage of pineapple now, Hawaii Celia she loves 'em!

On Kona we went to the home office of the justly famous Kona coffee which is grown there; to a little Catholic church painted many years ago by Belgian priests; and to the City of Refuge, one of Hawaii's greatest historical treasures built in the 12th century with its great stone wall dividing royalty from the common people, its prayer towers and carved figures.

The next day we toured Kona and the Hawaii National Parks where we viewed steaming lava lakes, a towering tree fern forest, and walked along the rim of the crater. The brave ones disregarded the rain to venture into the Thurston Lava Tube. Scientists now predict an eruption in the summer of 1978. Then we visited an orchid and anthurium nursery where we could only gasp in astonishment at the profusion and beauty of the flowers.

Our bus driver told us that Hilo received at least 120 inches of rain a year, and it did its best to live up to its reputation while we were there.

We experimented with chop sticks at a Chinese restaurant, ate raw mahi mahi (dolphin fish) marinated, fried and still with the chop sticks at a Japanese restaurant, ooooo our fingers into the pot at the luau in Kona, after watching the imu ceremony to remove the 120 pound pig roasted Hawaiian style.

Faith, our guide in the Islands, and all our bus drivers, who asked us to call them "Cousin" since we all have the same Uncle, were fonts of information, entertaining us royally with statistics, comments, jokes and songs. They pointed out the scrambled egg, Chinese orchid, Koa, Pink Tacoma, macadamia nut, breadfruit and sausage, even dead rat trees, and the exquisite Japanese gardens and temples, one of which we visited. Their favorite admonition was "shaka" - hang loose - accompanied by first closing the fist, then extending the thumb and little finger.

"Mahalo nui loa" (thank you very much) to all who helped make the trip so memorable.

And now I'm off to fix some pu pu's wiki wiki (snacks, quickly, for the pot luck supper in our rec hall.

We have to catch up on birthday greetings to Ethel Phillips, whose natal day is April 4, and Alice Reeder, who celebrated on April 10. Alice had her mother, Grace Stetser, and her aunt and uncle, Alice and Harry Eastlack, over for dinner, and brought me a generous slice of birthday cake - four layers and gobs of calorie-rich whipped cream ... delicious!

Arthur and Mona Wends stopped by as they were taking Teddy for a walk and told me the Association meeting held recently had been very satisfactory - that almost without exception the newcomers to our park attended. After the business meeting, refreshments were served and everybody socialized, met our new residents, and they got acquainted with the oldtimers. Arthur is president and Mona, secretary, and they want to remind all and sundry that you automatically become a member as soon as you rent or purchase a home at D. & M.

Jenny Lovingood is leaving for her home in Pennsylvania this weekend, and Ben Weldon and Ray will soon start on a leisurely trip to Massachusetts, so Edna Mary, Jenny and Ben went on a picnic bingo at lunch time Tuesday.

Verna Moren won the jackpot when John McBrier called and Alice Twait assisted, and this week, Frank Moren was the lucky winner, while Adrian did the honors and Celia Barr helped. How's that for keeping it in the family.

We were all so happy to have Dorothy Morley with us again. She came down with her brother, Marwyn Butterfield, who lives in New Milford, Pa., and hopes to spend more time in her home here.

Leon Lusignan's sister, Flora E. Belair, came from Beaumont, Calif., to spend some time here with him.

The Willoughbys - Alice and Chris - have settled down in their new home and have as their guests, Alice's sister, Rose Saunders, from Oshawa, and her friend, Elsie Irvin, who lives in Prince Albert, both in Ontario, Canada.

Alice and Harry Eastlack have cause for celebration - their granddaughter Lynn Heiges and her husband Frank have a son born April 7 in Woodbury, New Jersey, which makes them great grandparents.

As usual, Flossie Roberts has been flitting hither and yon. This time she and her friend George Schilling took Lucille Masters to West Palm for her flight to Columbus, Ohio, then they spend three days in Lakeland with George's daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Newton Lee.

Friends were saddened when Loretta Gentile departed to make her permanent home in Denver, Colorado, with son John, Jr. The Gentiles were residents of the park since 1980, later building their home. John, Sr., passed away late in 1975 and since her children reside in distant locations, Loretta decided to move with one of them.

Keep in touch, Loretta ...

Judy Bress and her children really crowded much into their visit here. Hailing from Brea, California, they stayed with her parents, Ed and Flo Mead, and the Meads enjoyed her visit and the grandchildren.

They attended the Sunrise Service at Jensen Beach on Easter Sunday. While here, they drove to Fort Myers to show the children the Edison Museum which they found very informative and were surprised at all the little inventions of Thomas Edison.

Ed and Flo recently attended the banquet for the Orlando Zone for the Chrysler-Plymouth Honor Society held at Disney World at the Contemporary Hotel. Ed has been a top salesman and was presented a lovely gift at this occasion.

We are sorry to hear that Claire Baker's mother is ill. Hoping for a speedy recovery, she plans to move here soon.

HOSPITAL & OBITUARY

Kay Thrasgarin is home from the hospital and improving. She lives at 23 Seventh and she's from Caseville, Michigan. Doris and Walter Wojack and grandson Brent, 6 years old, are visiting with their travel trailer nearby at 31 Seventh. They are from Lansing, Michigan, and think this is a mighty fine park, especially Brent, as he visits all around on a three-wheeler, that is when he's not at the beach.

Dud Perritt, who lived on Almond from 1948 to 1969, died April 14 at Clarkston, Michigan. He leaves his wife Gladys and six children.

SHINING AROUND

George and Belva Dean of 6 Broad and from Hersey, Pa., have put in their first full winter here and, although George worked day and night painting and fixing, they said that this was their most enjoyable winter ever. No wonder, they like dancing, volunteered to deliver meals-on-wheels, and friendly pot luck meals...and how! So, when the Pennsylvanianders invited them to an Easter pot luck at Clement Hall, they were delighted.

Edna Stromsinger, Frank Zimmerman and 26 others sat down to a ham dinner with all the fixin's at noon time. They ate and ate, then played cards in the afternoon until they were hungry enough to finish the bountiful victuals Monday; there were words of expressions at the weighing machine.

Mary Adrean, of 6th, had delightful visitors last week when her son Frank, wife Hazel and grandchildren Rusty and Sue Meeks dropped in to see her. They stayed three days at Rivers Edge, with Frank and Rusty going fishing while the womenfolk shopped all around. They are up from Johannesburg, South Africa, where Frank works for Union Carbide. Hazel says it's fairly quiet there now, but there's still some shooting at times. Even so, they go back April 30 to help with some of the new plans to end the turmoil.

Birthday Greetings!

JENSEN BEACH--Wish a happy birthday this week to Helen Smith, celebrating April 21; Johnny Crawford, April 22; Shirley Godfrey, April 23; Mrs Kenneth Klager and Bill Gass, April 25; and Hadley Vossover, April 27.

Congratulations. Have a happy day!

Gladys Reiser of 6 Bermuda and from Beverly, Mass., has been entertaining her granddaughter's family, Lenore and Richard Powers with granddaughters Kimberly, 10 years, and Karen, 8 years. They are from Rochester, N.Y., and stayed over at Holiday Inn on the beach so they could get in plenty of swimming.

Ken and Ben Beyer, 27 Sixth, have had visitors for the past two weeks: daughter, Mrs. Pan Walter and grandchildren Eddie and Kelly. They've done Disney World, Silver Springs and visited another great-grandmother at New Port Richey (Ethel Lowe is the local great grandmother). They are from chilly Johnstown, N.Y., so found the beach delightful. They came by Amtrak and found the service very good.

Trudy Chilsen, Oak Street, has been enjoying her daughter's family for the past few days: Rellen and Bebe Helms, of Oak Ridge, Tenn. It was a surprise visit, but very welcome, as they all pitched in and helped Trudy with the painting and fixing up around the place. The did get in some time at the beach, however, before they had to head back to get their vegetable garden planted.

Len and Mary Ann Blanchard, just back from a favorite CBP pastime - a rummage sale, were busy comparing buys with neighbors. Then, as good after the windows, Most CBPers clean and polish their windows and then have to say, "Darned if they look much better." But, Len has found the solution. He scrapes off the salty films with a razor blade before the cleaning and polishing. He and Mary Ann says it's worth the extra effort.

Al Sharp of Ocean Breeze Drive had a busy winter. Besides many bus tours around Florida, he had company: brother Raymond and wife Essie, from Van Wert, Ohio, in January.

In February, he had his sister Marcella Mathany and son Elbert from West Union, Ohio. In March, his daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Pizzaro and grandchildren Stirling 6, Andrew 8, and Gwendolyn 9, from Bryn Athyn, Pa., were here. Al mostly lived with them at Fremont Langford's while they were here, also at Bensheim, where the children liked to Al says he will be leaving soon for a visit to Pennsylvania and Ohio for most of the summer.

City officials to try night meetings

PORT ST. LUCIE--Although no official action could be taken at the Tuesday workshop session, it was generally agreed that city officials will conduct at least one night meeting a month in the hopes of generating more enthusiasm in local government among the city's younger residents.

The first evening meeting will be a workshop session slated for May 2 at 7:30 p.m. at City Hall.

In making the recommendation, Mayor Bill McChesney pointed out the younger residents of the community have little or no opportunity to attend the morning sessions.

"I would like to conduct one night meeting a month for a trial period of 90 to 120 days and I am hopeful such a move will generate more interest among our citizens, especially the young couples," the mayor said.

The action will be made official next Tuesday during the regular council session.

Write letters to the editor to say thank you for help to your chapter during the past.

PORT ST. LUCIE--Fun, games, dancing and good food will highlight the Reno Casino night planned by the Port St. Lucie Lions Club for April 23.

Tickets for the fund raising affair, which will be held at the Community Center, may be obtained from any member of the Lions Club or by calling 878-5546.

The casino will be open from 7:30 to 11:30 p.m., with a buffet served at 10 p.m.

There will be dancing until 1 a.m. t or the past eight years, came to an end with last week's session.

Cedric Benz, who has chaired this even during those years, expressed his thanks and appreciation to those neighbors and friends who participated.

At the final session, the booby prize was won by Vincent Ade and the door prize by Mae Jones.

Mrs. Marie Benz was the first place winner, while Frances Lee came in second, Grace Sherill third, and Mae Jones fourth."

New agenda system gets input at session

BY ALICE HICKEY

ORT ST. LUCIE--Those who had ervations about the new council ng being an under-handed attempt city officials to shut out the public the weekly sessions would have been more than somewhat ised had they attended the Tuesday kshop session.

was three hours of talk, talk and talk from residents, committee bers, council and GDC officials. e subject matter, which covered a 14-item agenda, ranged from financially supporting a Port St. Lucie Concert Band to house numbering, and from whether the city should take over the drainage maintenance for the city's first condominium concept development, Floresta Pines II, to a lengthy discussion on how to regulate the distribution of hand bills throughout the city.

When George Ursham, a local resident and a regular at the weekly meetings, was unable to attend the Tuesday workshop session, he phoned his remarks to Vice Mayor Mike Reeb prior to the meeting.

If input is conducive to making council sessions more productive, then there can be little doubt the newly adopted "agenda system" will prove beneficial to all concerned.

Contrary to the opinion of some, under the new format any citizen will have the opportunity to be heard and provide input, but that input is being directed to the workshop sessions rather than at the regular sessions of the council.

Citizens of the community desiring to be heard must notify either City Manager Elmer Cox or City Clerk Donna Petzold before noon on the Friday prior to the workshop session.

No matter will be heard for the first time at a regular session without first being discussed at a workshop session whether it be an ordinance, resolution or comment from the public.

Public hearings on the second reading of an ordinance will be an exception.

uncilman Schuyler Sharpe, who ked the ordinance, said he had ersonally inspected different areas of city and found hand bills, shoppers newspaper littering driveways, ds, streets and swales.

Four or five throw-aways piled up in front of a residence is indicative the are is not home and this, in my inion, is inviting trouble.

I think it is the responsibility of this ncil to maintain some control over this type of distribution. This would not only help to 'Keep Port St. Lucie Beautiful', but it would also be helpful to our police department," Sharpe told his listeners, adding that, while such an ordinance might not be foolproof, it would be a step in the right direction.

While two members of the Council, Mike Reeb and Lolita Kernohan, agreed some control is necessary, they were reluctant to consider it on the grounds that the document would be virtually impossible to enforce.

Only Councilman Merle Anderson questioned the matter was important enough at this time to deal with.

Anderson received almost a unanimous show of hands when he asked those attending whether or not they, or their families, read the two free shoppers distributed weekly in the area.

"I believe we should deal with this matter if and when it becomes a real problem to the city," Anderson said.

Then came the familiar voice of former councilman Larry Kimmel, who offered the council the "benefit of his years of experience".

"There was a time when we had no shoppers in this city and newspaper carriers were instructed to pick up the previous day's paper and not to leave another until the resident returned home," Kimmel said.

Meanwhile, Mayor McChesney, who favors licensing the distributors the same as any other solicitor is licensed in the city, instructed City Manager Elmer Cox to write a low key letter to the major distributors explaining the situation and asking for their cooperation.

The general concensus of the council and those attending the morning session was that if the city's licensing ordinance and the littering ordinance were enforced, this alone would take care of the problem.

ocks and ramps will be pposed by Civic League

ORT ST. LUCIE--In keeping with its rt of the program to Keep Port St. Beautiful, the board of directors of Civic League has voted to protest efforts to cut into the banks of the Fork of the St. Lucie River for ramps, or docks, or any other rs which might damage the natural ty of the river.

ges of the League's resolution g this stand will be distributed to and federal agencies responsible granting permits to alter the natural of the river.

e believe that any granting of such mits would open the flood gates to property owner wanting to talize on the beauty of the North Fork," said Seymour B. Fleming, Civic League president.

"Courts have held that once a property owner is granted a variance permitting dredge-and-fill, or bank-cutting projects, other property owners can also apply for such permission," Fleming said, "and we want to do whatevey we can to keep such practices from starting along the North Fork.

"Port St. Lucie can keep beautiful," Fleming said, "only if all citizens, public bodies, everyone interested in a pleasant community, will speak up and let it be known that each feels the North Fork must be preserved in its unspoiled, natural state."

Catholics hold Thursday bingo

PORT ST. LUCIE--Bingo games have been scheduled for 1 p.m. Thursdays in the new church hall at the St. Lucie Catholic Church.

Last minute change

PORT ST. LUCIE--Due to a last, minute change, Mayor Bill McChesney will be the guest speaker before the local AARP who will hold their regular monthly meeting Thursday, April 21, at 1:30 p.m. in the North Port Marina.

Originally, City Manager Elmer Cox was slated to speak before the group.

According to Fred Wiggin, there will also be a representative from the State Insurance Commissioner's office attending the meeting.

Floresta Pines takeover is urged

PORT ST. LUCIE--William Reick, president of the Floresta Pines II Property Owners Association appeared before a workshop session of the City Council Tuesday to request the city take over the drainage maintenance of their area. Floresta Pines II is the first of six condominium concept developments proposed within the City of Port St. Lucie.

Rejck told the Council that it would cost the residents of his area between $8,000 to $10,000 per year to have the open space they were deeded by GDC mowed and the drainage ditches maintained.

The Board of Directors for the Property Owners Association presented the Council with a petition to take over this maintenance on the grounds that the residents of Floresta Pines II pay city taxes and therefore it should be an obligation of the city to provide the maintenance.

"Many of the people buying property in the condominium concept development were unaware they were to be assessed for such maintenance at the time they purchased the property," Reick said, adding that it is impossible to get the assessment ($60 per year) from nearly two-thirds of the owners.

"Out of three hundred homes in the area, 200 of them were purchased as investment property and are rented out. The owners, some of whom own as many as five homes, live out of the state and some out of the country," he continued.

Several members of the Council seemed to think that should the City takeover the maintenance in this particular area it would set a precedent and, one by one as the other five proposed condo-concept developments are completed the same request will be made.

C.C. Crump, senior vice president of General Development Corporation, addressed the Council briefly on the subject saying that every property owner was aware of this area being a condo-concept at the time of purchase. It was stated and included in the property deed.

Crump pointed out there are many advantages to this type development.

"Before that property was turned over to the Association, GDC spent $20,000 to grade, grass and even raise the level of the lake at the request of the owners. They have room for barbecues, tennis courts or whatever they chose, but it does take work and money," Crump said, adding that as for the renters in the area, they should have to comply with the annual assessments.

"This is a good concept and it is not designed for the purpose of drainage, but as an endeavor to have more green areas to comply with the environmental regulations," Crump said.

Ray Neighbors, who chairs the city's Planning and Zoning Board, said he felt the heart of the problem originates with the over-eager GDC sales staff who sell property knowingly to the absentee property owner.

Neighbors indicated such owners are merely interested in the income from the property and pay little or no attention to the deterioration.

The Council suggested the matter be sent to the Planning and Zoning Board for review and an indepth study.

PARTY WELCOME--Herbert D. Haughton, who was recently named president of the Port St. Lucie Bank, received a hearty welcome from staff members when he took over his new position recently. Pictured above, C.A. Bramley, Jr., retiring president, extends his best wishes to his successor. Although Bramley, left, will be free from management activities, he will continue his association with the bank, serving as a director and chairman of the Investment Committee.

4H to show achievements

By Cindy Wicker, Reporter

PORT ST. LUCIE--The Lucky Charms 4H Club of Port St. Lucie invites the public to attend their 4th Annual Achievement Meeting which will be held at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, April 26, in Goddard Hall of the PSL United Methodist Church.

Special guests will include parents of the members; Marguerite Brock, St. Lucie County Home Demonstration Agent; and Katherine Dunleavy.

TOR ALLEY–Martin County High School photo-dent Brad Fallin was on the scene with his camera ... Friday morning when he saw Martin County Deputies and officials of the Florida Fresh Water and Commission wrestling with an alligator. It seems the best crawled up from the Jensen Beach Savannas and entered the Winn Dixie Shopping Center. "I was on my way to school," Fallin said, "when I saw the alligator in the parking lot. I went home and got my camera and got two shots of them putting it into a car." The incident occurred at about 7 a.m.

Progress is slow on St. Lucie 2

JENSEN BEACH–Although Florida Power and Light (FP&L) has been granted permission to construct St. Lucie Two, it may be several months before any work begins.

The company last week was informed by the Atomic Safety and Management Board that construction can be continued on the second phase of the nuclear power plant on Hutchinson Island.

According to FP&L Stuart area manager Gene Van Curen, the company will have to appear in front of the U.S. District Court of Appeals in Washington to have a stop work order lifted. The stop work order was initiated at the end of last October after Attorney Martin Hodder and a group of conservationists contested work being done at St. Lucie Two on FP&L property adjacent to the St. Lucie One plant.

"The intervenors limited work on the contention that there should not be work on the plant when it was not fully decided to build on that location," Van Curen said.

Although construction permits from the Nuclear Regulatory Commission are pending, Van Curen said those permits are expected to be obtained before going to the District Court of Appeals. Hodder has stated publicly he will object to the company's efforts to have the work order lifted.

"It will take a while to get organized," Van Curen said. "We will have to have the stay order lifted and obtain the construction permits, and then we will have to remuster our forces. I don't see any work being done until at least June or July."

Before then, he said, the company will have to rehire a number of workers who were victims of major layoffs after the stop work order last year.

ater complaint 'ridiculous'

BY ROBBIE BEDELL

...EN BEACH–Martin County ...sioners have agreed to take a ...gainst the state and keep the ...running on the Jensen Beach ...y.

A recent letter to the commission from the Department of Environmental Regulation stated that the county is in violation of state statutes on the Jensen Causeway regarding the consumption of potable water.

According to state law, public water systems should be chemically tested at least twice a year. In addition, no institution is allowed to run any public water system without the written permission of the DER. Also, chlorination equipment should be part of every system to insure a specified amount of chlorine throughout the line.

The letter says that the DER has witnessed people filling jugs with the causeway water with the intention of bringing it home to drink.

"You are hereby advised to respond to the specific violation(s) within 30 days from receipt hereof," it says.

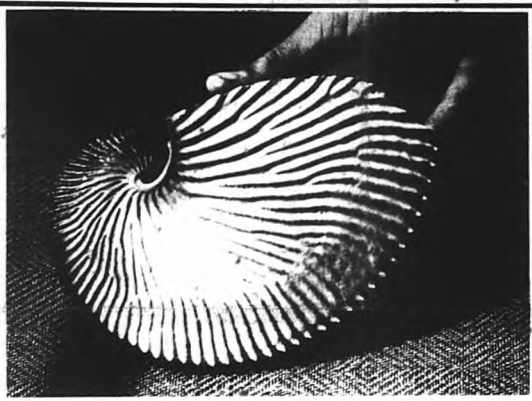
More than a year ago the DER raised the same question. The water was tested and proved to be harmless. At the time, the DER was satisfied with erecting signs with red lettering stating, "Warning. Unapproved water supply. Not for human consumption. By Board of County Commission." In addition, the water spigots were painted red.

Witnessing people taking water from the causeway prompted the DER to write, "It is therefore apparent that the installation of the warning signs and the painting bright red of all faucets and exposed piping have failed to accomplish the required results."

"We have instructed the county engineer to contact the DER to inform them we are not running a public water system," County Commissioner Frank Wacha said. "We have it marked better than the federal warning on a pack of cigarettes."

Wacha added, "The board is in agreement that the situation is ridiculous. The DER really should have something better to do. We'll just sit back and see what happens next."

OUT–Warning signs the Martin County Commission erected more than a ...ar at the Jensen Beach Causeway no longer satisfy the state Department of ...mental Regulation (DER). The DER is insisting that the county stop ...sumption of the causeway water or meet the laws of a public water ... The county is refusing to comply.



PAPER NAUTILUS–This paper nautilus found by Rick Johnson of Jensen Beach is one of the largest ever found intact in the Martin County area. It measures nearly 10 inches in length.

Paper nautilus found in river

BY ROBBIE BEDELL

JENSEN BEACH–Beachcombers and those who poke around riverbanks and mudflats can find some pretty interesting objects.

Discoveries can range from pretty shells, fish and animal bones to man-made objects which have washed ashore in the flotsam and jetsam of the masses.

But how many of you have ever found a paper nautilus, especially one in perfect condition which measures nearly 10 inches long?

Rick Johnson, a 13 year old Jensen Beach resident, who is a student at the Stuart Middle School; found one recently while on a field trip on a spoil island near the end of Sewall's Point in the Indian River. It is the find of his life.

"I was walking along looking for shells and firewood," he said. "I was right on the beach and I looked down and there it was. The octopus was still in it with the eggs in it."

The paper nautilus, technically not a shell, is a paper-thin egg case for the octopus.

"We were staying on the island for a couple of days so I couldn't bring the octopus home," Rick said. "It had brown and black spots on it. At first I didn't know what it was. I thought it might be a squid. I took it to the Martin County Environmental Center and they told me what it was and then I began to get excited."

The paper nautilus is also called the "Argonauta", Greek for "White Sailor". It is said that it was the first "shell" recorded by man, being written of by Aristotle during a cruise in the Mediterranean. It is said that the name "Argo" could refer to the ship in which Jason sailed in search of the golden fleece.

Savanna Road project is go; Sussner gives

JENSEN BEACH–Mero Sussner, owner of Jensen Beach Shopping Center, agreed Friday to give the final piece of right-of-way to allow the improvement of the dangerous Commercial Street-Savanna Road intersection.

The agreement, now being drawn up by the county and Sussner's attorney, ended over a year and a half of negotiations that had been stalemated by both Sussner's concern over lost parking area, and misunderstandings of how much land would be given.

The completion of the right-of-way acquisition means that the Florida Department of Transportation will be able to proceed with final plans on the improvement of the intersection, widening the roadway to 36 feet and installing new signalization and traffic storage and turning lanes.

Savanna Road will be improved from the present "new" pavement at the south end of Legion Heights to the north boundary of Sussner's shopping center.

The agreement came as County Engineer Jim Wynn faced closing or putting load limits on the rapidly deteriorated section of North Savanna Road along the shopping center.

"By this fall, that road won't be there any more after a few heavy rains. I need to take action now," Wynn told Sussner and others at the meeting.

When the project had stalled, Mirror editor Dick Campbell called those involved in it together in a meeting in the Planning and Zoning conference room to "get this thing settled once and for all."

Campbell had requested that Sussner work with the county "on behalf of the people of Jensen Beach and the merchants in our shopping areas served by the intersection."

Sussner met with County Commissioner Frank Wacha, Wynn, county rights-of-way agent Al Huggins, Realtor Ransom Tilton, who helped the county acquire rights-of-way for the project, and Campbell.

At issue was a 22-foot strip of land 285.66 feet in length on the east side of the shopping center. Sussner wanted a like-piece on the west end of the center. The county offered a triangular strip of land with more land area that had been donated by Fort Pipes, developer of Sugar Hill.

Efforts to request the 22-foot strip from Pipes were hampered by the untimely death of Pipes several weeks ago in New Orleans. Campbell had contacted J. Robert Norman, Pipes' agent in New Orleans, but found that the details of the Pipes estate precluded any consideration of the project at this time.

However, Wynn pointed out that the county hoped to straighten out Sugar Hill Road when it was able to, and the acquisition of the rights-of-way would enable Sussner to buy the necessary land to complete his 22-feet on the west end of the center.

With that understanding, Sussner agreed to proceed with the agreement.

Wacha had told Sussner at the beginning of the meeting that the original offer of the county was "the only thing we have to offer. That is it."

Tilton emphasized that Sussner's shopping center would be the area that would benefit most from the improvement of the intersection, since it is the biggest center in the area.

Local merchants hailed the agreement, for it will enable the intersection to be completed before the fall season begins.

Jack Kleti, president of the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce, said, "The people of Jensen Beach certainly want to thank Mr. Sussner for working this out with the county. We want more and more to make it as easy as possible for people to shop at home, and this one move will accomplish that."

GLASSES–Some of the over 2,000 pairs of glasses collected by the Jensen Beach Lions Club since January are displayed by Bill Bailey, left, and Bill Weiss, local Lions. ...uld there be Earth Week Two?

BY ROBBIE BEDELL

...N BEACH–Was it worth it? ...ng hours of planning and preparation, the frustrations from a general lack of support and the joy of watching plans come to fruition were all part of Earth Week, a celebration of the earth by the Naturalist Society of Florida Institute of Technology.

But was it worth it?

The planners think yes.

"We'd like to make it an annual thing," Naturalist President Bill Keane said. "Earth Week Two should be bigger and more of a success. We know our mistakes now so anyone coming behind us will know."

"We'd like to make it an annual event," Vice President Bill Brokaw said, "but the trouble is about one half of us won't be around next year. It was a pretty poor turnout overall but we did make money for the whales."

Club Treasurer DeDe Wheat said the Society made about $70 from the sale of posters, buttons, T-shirts, and bumper stickers. The money is to go to one of the Save Our Whales groups dedicated to the prevention of commercial whale killing.

"Some think a lot of people were apathetic," Keane said. "But one lady came up to me showing me a news story about how apathetic everyone has been 'I care, I care, I care' she shouted. That really made me feel good."

"I think it came off really well," Wheat said. "If there's still a club, I'm sure there will be an Earth Week next year. The administration thinks that it was great."

After a natural foods dinner on the campus on Friday, Conservation Alliance member John McQuigg spoke about "sustaining our lifestyle" and Marine Biologist Ross Witham spoke about his work on the research of marine turtles.

The highlight of the week was a torchlight vigil held Friday night where about 30 people, brandishing flaming torches, marched from the Jensen Beach Causeway to Jensen Public Beach. At the beach, feeling the warm but brisk breeze off the Atlantic, the Rev. Frank Alvarez of All Saints Episcopal Church in Jensen related ecology to theology. After his talk the group sat silent for a while meditating on what was said and then, the group slowly rose to return to the campus.

"We'd like to thank all the sponsors of Earth Week," Keane said. "We'd also like to thank all the media which helped promote us. And we'd especially like to thank Stuart Photo for donating prizes for the photo contest."

First National Bank salutes James Hutchinson

THE HUTCHINSON-BACKUS EXHIBIT
THRU MAY 6,1977 AT OUR MAIN OFFICE

James Hutchinson

James Hutchinson is a long-time Martin County resident whose art has earned him an international following. His oils reflect extraordinary talent and great compassion for the first real native Floridians, the Seminole and Miccosukee Indians.

Meet Billy Bowlegs.

He, along with Alligator, Wildcat and Osceola were leaders of the Second Seminole War and subjects of Mr. Hutchinson's artistry. The original oils are now available as full color prints, singularly or as a set, in a limited edition of 2,000.

Visit a "Quiet Place."

A magnificent painting which invites those who view it to share the peace and tranquility of three deer that have found temporary refuge from their predators. Currently being produced as a limited edition of 1,000.

A.E. 'Beanie' Backus

Working out of his Ft. Pierce studio, A.E. Beanie Backus has, over the years, become known as the dean of Florida artists.

To interpret the moods of nature has always been his forte. Two Backus originals, which have also been produced as limited edition prints, are included in this exhibit. Flamboyant is a beautiful riverscape featuring a Royal Poinciana in bloom. "Piney Woods" is a rustic landscape reminiscent of a Florida uncompromised by progress.

All limited edition prints in this exhibit are available for purchase.

The Florida Dept. of Health and Rehabilitative Services District 9 held a meeting last week to hear what kinds of services the folks of this area required and could be supplied by Title XX funds of the Social Security Act.

There were about 25 senior citizens and state employees at the meeting as Phyllis Rose started with a brief outline of the agenda and introduced Ann White, the chairman. Much of the meeting was taken up with administrative problems. That seemed a little odd, until the charts were examined and it was found that 5 1 million was to be spent for administration and only 3.8 million for services to the aged.

This was an eye opener to the senior citizens who had been paying into Social Security for the last 40 years with the idea that they were really paying insurance premiums that would pay off when they retired. That's what they were told for years.

These same charts show that of the 98 million allotted to Florida, only 3.5 million are to be used for the aged. Of course, all those family care, child care, mental health service, etc., are very necessary, but is it correct procedure to remove them with funds paid in by seniors for their own protection in old age?

It is felt that the reason congregate meals, low cost housing, geriatric clinics, etc., can't be obtained locally. Let's write to our senators and congressmen and find out where and how the older folks lost out.

Russell Miller, director of Environmental Health, Martin County Health Dept., calls out attention to SB550 that would transfer the inspection of restaurants to the Restaurant and Hotel Licensing Board. Miller says that the Health Dept. has all the equipment to do the job right and it's not satisfactory to have a fee supported board do inspections. Write your legislators.

Martin County Chapter 2223

There were 130 or more at the regular meeting, April 21. The meeting started promptly at 1:30 with the rapping of the gavel by President Ernie Curwen; invocation and pledge by "CMac." Secretary minutes by Betty Edwards and Treasurer's report by Eleanor Canfield.

Then quickly, Ernie C. reported on some activities:

Senator Chiles' representatives, Tom Hamon and Don Woodbury, will send information for the Senior Information Booth. Month of May in Older American Month; shall we plant another tree; Pete of West Palm group to the Outrigger group picnic went to go to the Outrigger for lunch, Mildred Capana, chairman, to handle reservations; Defensive Driving classes will continue through May; Al's "call girls" getting a real response; in sickness and in health (anniversaries), please call them.

County Commissioner William Myers will be first speaker. He said that he realized that health services, a Geriatric Unit, was one of our main projections. Realizing us that the county can't get involved until the state's role has been established, as funds aren't in sight and more tax increases are not possible, he doctors are uneasy about any plan where the government assumes control over their activities

However, Doctor Myers pointed out that in Martin County with its 55,000 population (25 percent senior citizens) who considered "rural", users are funded Rural Health Services. Also, he felt that a Medicaid Clinic might be the next logical step, or Geriatric Clinic, nurse operated under doctor supervision. He wasn't optimistic, but was sympathetic to our aims.

The problem of some doctors not understanding our need for free screening tests that could be supplied by the Martin County Health Dept. was discussed at length by AARP members, and Doctor Myers said that it was on the agenda for the next meeting of the Martin County Medical Society. We better write and express our views to: Frederick Krauskopf, MD, President, Martin County Medical Society, 821 SE Ocean Blvd., Stuart 33494.

Nurse Jayney Hosier, RN, of VNA (Visiting Nurse Association), 273 Osceola Street, next spoke to us regarding their many services, and there are plenty. But, most important of all she emphasized that when Medicare and Medicaid run out, VNA continues right along and doesn't stop like some of the other private nursing services. Anyone can request the first visit, but after that they must work under doctors instructions. They are one year old in this area and have made thousands of visits so far and hope we'll call them when in need.

Many AARPers asked questions and made comments, one of particular interest: Rusa Conner, MCCA project director, came back at a plane from Tallahassee with Senator Lawton Chiles and got a chance to talk to him about "Catastrophic Health Insurance" and later, Chiles called back with information on such legislation.

The meeting closed with refreshments of cookies and soft drinks served by Edith Hill and Marion Curwen. Then there was a raffle, won by Vivien D'Aguila, $10, Mildred Lundy, $25, and Viola Watts, $3.50. The $5 door prize was won by Elizabeth Cedren and Eleanor Overfield won some tupperware donated by Kitty Perryman. That ended a very fine meeting.

Support for the efforts of Insurance Commissioner Bill Gunter to chop down the escalating rates for automobile insurance in Florida was sought at the April meeting of the chapter. Paul Faver, of the commissioner's office, spoke, giving details of the new proposal.

A chief feature would be the elimination of the catch-all phrase "pain and suffering" as a basis for claims in case of an accident. Such claims, usually pushed by unscrupulous attorneys who hope to cash in on a percentage basis, are responsible in large part for the soaring rates. Juries that award outlandish payments to people suing under this claim may feel they are doing the sure a good turn. What they are actually doing is to raise not only insurance rates for other people, but their own as well. Faver had with him a petition in support of the proposed legislation, which most of those attending were happy to sign.

Members were urged to become active in legislative matters by Legislative Chairman Frank Alender. He pointed out that "they" and "them", usually referred to by non-participants in such matters, are really "we" and "us". "If we want to make our voices heard," Frank said, "we are going to have to establish direct contact with the people who are drawing up and will vote on legislation." He said that older citizens constitute a formidable voting bloc in Florida, one which by rights should swing its weight.

City Manager Elmer Cox was to have spoken at the meeting, but was unable to do so and was replaced by Mayor Bill McChesney, sort of like substituting President Jimmy Carter for a cabinet member. His Honor discussed the situation and prospects of Port St. Lucie and emphasized that, in his personal opinion, the term "Port St. Lucie" included the entire area, county as well as city residents. The city expects continued growth, he said, and may eventually pass Fort Pierce in population to become the largest city in St. Lucie County.

The question of the incorporation of county territory into the city is one that depends exclusively upon the wishes of county residents. McChesney said. He stressed that he was not trying to do a selling job on the idea, but was just presenting it. The main issue that bothers people is, he recognized, is how much their taxes would be increased if their area were incorporated into the city. The increase would be, roughly, $1.75 per year per $1,000 of net assessed valuation of the taxpayer's residence. Thus, a home with a $25,000 net valuation would pay $38.25, one of $50,000 would pay $63.25, and so on, in addition to the county rate. This would seem to be a small price to pay to put an end to the gerrymandered limits of the city as they now stand.

The chapter was honored at this meeting by the presence of genial Bill Koolage, Melbourne, assistant state AARP director of this area. Bill didn't address the meeting, but was on hand to answer any questions. He said he was on one of his periodic swings around his territory to visit the chapters and to give help on any problems that might arise.

Another VIP at the meeting was Marie Anderson, newly elected council member, who was asked by President Fred Wiggin to stand so all the folks could see him.

The 50-50 raffle was really an improvised deal. Someone forgot to bring the tickets, so volunteers had to be pressed into service to write the numbers on scraps of paper. This shortcoming didn't make any difference, and everyone enjoyed the game, perhaps even more than with the regular tickets.

R.C. Darlington and Mrs. Frank Alexander were the stars in a development unheard of in raffle annals – both of them won two prizes among the five that were awarded. No statistics are available on how often this happens, but you can be sure it's not very often. The other winner was Anne Friefeld.

This is the final call for delinquent members to pay their 1977 dues. After this week, those who haven't paid will be dropped. As a matter of fact, the by-laws state that members who are delinquent as of March 31 are automatically dropped from the rolls, but Treasurer Esther Thompson has been very lenient with them.

The time has now arrived for action, Esther says, so the axe will go chop chop. There are some 25 members in this category. Total membership for the chapter is just a bit above 200.

Crow's Nest is sold to Michigan couple

BY ROBBIE BEDELL

JENSEN BEACH—For eight years Frank and Velma Malocsay owned and managed the Crow's Nest Restaurant, catering to luncheons and banquets of the area's numerous clubs and social groups, and to many visiting and resident families.

Last Friday the restaurant was sold to new owners, Jan and Chan Pollock, a couple who intends to continue the tradition which Frank and Velma created.

"Mrs. Owen K. Murphy named the restaurant for us in 1969," Velma said. "We had worked for her at the Manatee in Port Salerno before that."

"It has been the best years of our lives," Frank said.

Velma added that without the help they received from friends and employees they could not have made the establishment the success that it is.

"Our employees have been great," she said. "We appreciate all of the help they and our friends have given which helped make our success. We feel all of the people in the area are our friends and now we'll really have the opportunity to be with them. We want to thank everyone for everything they have done for us. It's been our pleasure to serve our community."

Last year the restaurant won the Small Business Award from the Small Business Administration in Washington in celebration of the American Bicentennial, "proving that free enterprise works in the United States," Velma said.

"Now we are pleased to turn the restaurant over to the very capable hands of Jan and Chan Pollock."

They were involved in the restaurant business in Michigan.

"I retired on April 30 with no intention of going back to work," Jan said. "We found the restaurant, fell in love with it, found out it was for sale, and bought it."

"We want to keep this an informal, fun spot," Chan said. "We want to keep it the same as Frank and Velma had it. We want to keep everyone happy and we want them to know they can still feel at home here."

The restaurant will retain its hours of 5:30 to 10 p.m. seven days per week, with luncheons and banquets available to clubs and social groups.

Lions, Rio, Rick Carroll win first half titles

BY DONNIE WILKIE

JENSEN BEACH–In the history of the chalmpionship series between first and second half champions at Langford Park, it has been the second half winners which have dominated. But you won't be able to convince Frank Hughes, Mike Shue or Dale Adams that this year can't be different.

These are the three coaches who led their teams to first half championships in Pony, Bronco and Mustang League races. But for the other twelve coaches there is the second half, and they look to make their moves then, and perhaps to knock off the first half champs in the title tilts and continue the pattern.

The Lions ran away with the Pony League title, leaving two teams in the dust with 4-4 records— Elks and Jensen Bank. The Lions posted a 7-1 mark, losing only an early-season game to Jensen Bank. Other than that, the Lions were pushed hard by only one team (Mosley Construction) and then only after having clinched the championship. Kiwanis finished four games out at 3-5, while Mosley pulled up the rear at 2-6.

Mike Shue's Rio Civic Club won their first five games behind the pitching of Todd Jackson, then lost two in a row when he took an Easter vacation. But they fought off VFW in their last game to preserve the crown they nearly lost. Todd's gave Rio a fit down the stretch, but lost out by one game at 5-3, as Rio came in at 6-2. Ray Cooke was the darkhorse at 4-3, while the Knights of Columbus finished fourth at 2-5. VFW occupied the basement at 2-6. A late-season game between the Knights and Ray Cooke, which was suspended because of curfew with the score deadlocked at 8-8, was cancelled as it could not change the outcome of the half.

In the Mustang League, Rick Carroll finished at 7-1 to run away from the pack en route to the title. Ray Cooke, Man from KIRK and Aycock's Gang all finished at 4-4.

Sandpiper Women's Golf

PORT ST. LUCIE–Play for the day for the Sandpiper Bay Women's Golf Association last week was "Two Best Balls of Foursome".

Scores were very close, with the team of Sylva Barnwell, Pearl Roberts, Lee Reeb and Lil O'Beirne coming in with 118, as did Mary Wilson, Marjorie Hand, Betty Preston and Alice Row.

Also turning in a score of 118 was the foursome of Blanche Kaufman, Florence McConnell, Alice Rozett and Irene Helmer.

Marian Cole, M. Engelbert, Mae Scott and Charlotte Deed turned in a combined 119. Eliese Evans, Ruth Chase Terry Skinker and E. Kessler also had 119, as did Gretchen Dalton, Iva Dean Bouck, Emmy Hofmeister and Emme Krecke.

ermit's benefits from Bright's return, win 9-4

BY DONNIE WILKIE

BEACH—Inspired by the of Ricky Bright, Kermit's Stag

a Colt League action.

mmitment to the Martin County team, smashed three doubles home run to lead Kermit's to their win in five outings.
Laycock (1-0) earned the for the winners, as he handcuffed onents for five innings before g over the duties to David
, who earned a save.
's has dropped them to a 1-4, with the only bright spot n's romp over Kermit's earlier on, in a game played at ard Park.

Sherman Conrad led off the game a walk, and Robbie McLendon added a good game for Kermit's, getting two hits in two official at bats including Kermit's only other extra base hit, a double. Bocchino, meanwhile, continued his hot streak at the plate with a two-for-three performance.

Jupiter threatened only briefly, scoring three runs in the fifth inning. Laycock's hot on the mound. The rally by the hometown team pulled them to within two runs at 6-4, but Bright dealt the coup de grace in the sixth with a two-run, over the fence home run.

Kermit's pounded out ten hits in the game, their highest total of the year, while limiting Jupiter to but five. Jupiter left nine men on the basepaths, as Kermit's stranded only seven.

Kermit's win turned out to be more important than it seemed at first because league-leading Hobe Sound was upset Friday night by Port Salerno 8-6 in a real thriller.

Mike Ausburn earned the victory as Port Salerno pulled to within one game of Hobe Sound in the Colt League standings. Mike Thompson's double and Ricky McGehee's triple propelled the Salernians to victory.

The Hobe Sound loss made up for their victory over Kermit's earlier in the week at Langford Park. Kermit's played well defensively for most of the game, but could not get the bats crunked up against the 6-1 Sounders. Thus, the Hobe Sound loss nullifies the Kermit's loss, and leaves the Jensenites just two games out of the top spot.

Manager Pete Howanitz's forces look toward their game tonight (Wednesday, Field 3, 7:30 p.m.) at Langford Park as a crucial one. The hometowners will face Port Salerno, who sports a 3-3 record. Pitchers for tonight's showdown were still unnamed at press time, but one possibility for Kermit's is Bright, who would be making his first appearance of the year on the mound.

The Jensen-Port Salerno game will be the only game for the localers this week, but they do have a pair of outings slated for next week. Jupiter will invade Langford Park next Wednesday (May 4) for a 7:30 start, and Kermit's will travel to Hobe Sound on Saturday, May 7, for a 3:30 game.

Bright's three double-homer is week's highlight

JENSEN BEACH—It had been quite a successful year for Ricky Bright as he played third, base and pitched for the Martin County High School baseball Tigers, but it was apparently just the beginning, because all he did in his Colt League debut for Kermit's Stag Shop was hit three doubles and a home run in a 4-for-4 performance that earned him the fifth Mirror "Player of the Week" award of 1977.

Bright becomes the first Colt League player to receive the award, and only the second player from the Colt ranks to win it since its inception last year.

Centerfielder Leroy Wells took the honor last year toward the end of the season when he made several fantastic plays in centerfield to lead Kermit's to one of only three wins.

Bright did it with pure power at the plate, doubling twice, then smacking a two-run homer to put the game out of reach, and finally ripping another double. Kermit's won the game 9-4 over Jupiter.

Leslie Choate of the Mustang League won the Player of the Week award last week, and there were no "honorable mention" winners. This week there are no runners-up, but for a different reason.

Last week was "rain-out" week at Langford Park, as teams who had games rained out in the first half made them up. There were no rain-outs, but there were a few games postponed because of Good Friday. However, there were no outstanding performances in last week's games, other than Bright's, which occurred in a regular Colt game.

The Player of the Week award will continue through the next seven weeks, or until the conclusion of the post-season tournaments.

3,000 broken at the Lanes

BY DONNIE WILKIE

JENSEN BEACH—In the ten years since the Friday night "Scratch League or Classic League began, no team has come close to breaking the 3,000 barrier. But last Friday, Household Electric not only broke through it, they literally left it in a thousand pieces.

The Householders posted games of 1019, 1037, and 1,000 in scratch play at the Jensen Lanes Friday night en route to a 3056 series — an all-time record.

Household increased their lead in the league to 9½ points over second place Stuart National Bank under the 24-peing match play system used by the league this season. That is the same system which is used by the Suncoast Conference for all high school matches.

The record setters were led by Lou Papeidero, who rolled a neat 220-201-221 series for a 642 total. Anchorman Toby Gilbert stroked a 631 series, including a one-game high of 238. Others getting into the act included John Saitta, who came in with a 256-610, Mike Whitaker's 224-602, and Mark King, who knocked out a 215-582.

Bowling for the winter season is now entering its final two weeks at the Lanes.

From Morelia we went to Mexico City for a one week stay. Again we left our car in the guarded parking area inside our Posada in Morelia and based first class to Mexico City by Tres Estrellas de Oro (Three Gold Stars, the Mexican counterpart for Greyhound).

Mexico City is now a huge 5,000,000 people metropolis with thick smog, a lot of traffic and parking problems. We were on a tight schedule but managed to do a lot of sightseeing, Chapultepec Park and its castle, the zoo, the Museum of Fine Arts, the Ballet Folklorica at the Palatio de Bellas Artes, the pyramids, the main plaza or zocalo, the Cathedral, the National Palace, San Juan Market, the shrine of Guadalupe, and the posh zone where all the swank shops and restaurants are located.

We packed up our car in Morelia and then drove to Guanajuato, the old colonial silver city, home of the once famous La Valenciana mine. Guanajuato is also a state capitol and is the birthplace of the famous mural painter, Diego Rivera, whose house is now a museum.

One unusual feature of the city is a car subway built on the bed of a now diverted river. Another one is a jewel of a theatre and opera house, the Teatro Juarez, which was built by dictator Porfirio Diaz in 1880. The Granaditas, a fortress-like stone warehouse was the site of one of the first clashes between Spanish Royalists and the Insurgentes, or rebels, led by Father Miguel Hidalgo, who smashed it in 1810 in the name of Mexican independence.

From Guanajuato we drove to San Miguel de Allende, but stopped en route in Dolores Hidalgo where the Mexican liberty bell first rang in 1810 from the steeple of Father Hidalgo's church.

San Miguel is unique. It is a true colonial city, a year round resort, and a city devoted to the fine arts and crafts.

San Miguel boasts two schools of fine arts. The famous Allende, known throughout the world, is housed in the former hacienda of the very wealthy County de la Canal and the Bellas Artes is in a former monastery. Both schools are outstanding and they offer courses in painting, sculpture, design, ceramics, music, dancing and Spanish language, etc.

There are large American and Canadian colonies in San Miguel. These exiles are deeply involved and do a lot of good for the Mexican people of the city. They publish a weekly paper, manage the Bibliotheca Publica, collect money for needy children, and produce shows and concerts. They give San Miguel a true international accent of artistic life and excitement.

After four months we decided it was time to get back to our own way of living. We left San Miguel on March 28 and made our way to McAllen, Texas, via Salt Lake Potosi, CiudadValles, Ciudad-Victoria and Reynosa.

We had a wonderful trip, nothing bad to mention, not even a flat tire, thanks be to God! But even for us Canadians, it seemed being safe back home when we again reached United States soil!

'A little bit of heaven on the water'

Jackie Phillips, V.O. St. Lucie, reports:

"By the light of the silvery moon...on Swordfish Lane we'll spoon..."

Yes, we have a honeymoon couple here, Nick and Helen Berish! Helen is proprietor of an elite dress shop in Boynton Beach and Nick is in the plumbing business in Lake Worth. They know it, Mary and Tom, but you were never alone during the long road back to health. All of your friends at V.O. were praying and pulling for you.

Received a humorous gem of a letter from Bettie Sommers, ending with "Sure miss V.O., our nice friends, pool, etc. Things are too quiet here. Have a the wildest thing of the day is the noise Harry's radishes are making busting thru the soil!" She wants to be remembered to all her friends at V.O.

Hate to say goodbye to Lucy and Toad Bowling this week, but happy in the knowledge that, while here, Toad "took the dogs" and Lucy mastered the organ!

Notice - to all you non people who send news during the summer months, keep it up! Due to Willard Auch's successful business venture, he will not be able to handle the column this summer. However, super Jesse Shaver of Venture Harbour will see that the news you send to her gets to The Mirror. Please send your news to: Mrs. Jesse Shaver, B.2., Venture Harbour, R.R. Jensen Beach, FL 33457. Thank you, Jesse.

Many thanks are due to Rose Curth of V.O. Indian River, who is the epitomy of "though snow, rain, hail, the mail will go through", hence our Venture Three news has been delivered to The Mirror by Rose each week. Dee, our Venture Three secretary, is thanked, too, for typing our hen scratching on short notice these many weeks.

May your summer be all that you hoped for, Jackie.

Bowling Scores, by Bill Thompson

With everyone heading north in droves, this concludes a most enjoyable 1976-77 season. We are looking forward to a large turn-out when we all return next season.

April 19 scores were as follows:

Cora Lee Irwin, 477, and high single game for the day of 179; Al Suckow, 446; Ward Irwin, 402; Bill Thompson, 373; Edna Wilston, 360; Tony DiPaula, 358; Toad Bowling, 344.

Smoke Street News by Betty Pfabe, A-6, 334-4207:

A card received from Yvonne and Bud Wiencke on their Caribbean cruise says they are having such a fabulous time it will be a hard to come back to our everyday life here.

Clyde and Lola Boxar are rattling around at their place all by themselves since their company left. While here, Grandson Tod found a rare paper nautilus seashell in perfect condition over on the beach. Not to be outdone, his father, Edward, found a perfect seahorse. Father took his find home but Tod, 12 years old, sold his shell and bought his mother and grandmother gardenia plants. How about that for thoughtfulness in this younger generation?

Edsel and Betty Pfabe took an overnight trip in Edsel, south to Lake Worth. Water was a little choppy but weather was beautiful.

Wahoo Street News, by Harriet Price, B-9, 334-4927:

Howard and Kay Koepka get the Good Sam award today. While cruising down the river in their boat, they came upon a small boat with six men aboard and they were hard aground with the tide going out.

After trying to get them loose by rocking and towing, they finally took four of them off the boat and delivered them over to the causeway so they could call home.

Bill and Betty Beattie, round dance callers from Orange City, came by and spent the day and had lunch with Lee and Harriet Price. They've been dancing friends for many years.

Doug Prew and three of his friends drove over from Tampa for the weekend for a visit with Mom and Pop Prew.

The Shavers are back home and glad of it!

Venture Three

found their way here while hunting for a "little bit of heaven on the water." The Bromberger lot and Park Model at the end of Swordfish Lane was the answer.

Though they'll only be here weekends for a while, we are happy to have such a nice couple join the rest of the great people here. Incidentally, there are three Helens in a row now: Helen Berish, Helen Rubright and Helen Kitts – all great gals!

Willard and Louise Auch are having a ball entertaining Louise's sister Jane and her husband, Vern Zimmerman, from Illinois. Jane and Vern have been to V.O. many times and they say there is always something new and interesting no matter when you come. The Japanese Steak House was fun for all of them Sunday night.

Marmie and Curt Paynter of Swordfish Lane have been relaxing with their friends Chris and Lowell Powell of Pittsburgh, Pa. As a matter of fact, the Powells had such a wonderful visit they bought a condo near here - welcome!

Happy Birthday, Ginny Thompson! Better late than never, eh what? But we didn't know 'till now. Glad to hear you had such a happy day. Son Dick and family treated Ginny and Bill and the Ward Irwins to a nice dinner at Wayside. A wonderful day was had by all.

Great news! MaryEllyn Meachum is improving and Tom Potter's doctor doesn't want to see him for three months! We couldn't be happier for these precious people. Maybe you didn't

I never saw a yellow petunia, but Shirley Hoffman has some along her porch. They are real pretty. Also, her geraniums are so lush, they almost look artificial.

Betty Drinkard's mother and father, Clarence and Evelyn Arnold from Miramar, Florida, drove up to spend the weekend and her birthday with Betty and Paul. Too bad the weather couldn't cooperate a little better.

By Jessie Shaver:

Our trip to Kansas and Missouri was fine. We enjoyed it very much. Lesiter said he never saw one woman could have so many cousins and relatives. Mama Cochran made the trip fine and was glad to be in her other daughter, Mary McGehee's, new home. We came home by way of Dallas so we could visit our oldest son, Charles and his wife, Betty. We saw our youngest son, Robert, on the way up when stopped in Atlanta.

ST. LUCIE–In an effort to the City Council in fortifying at ies of its primary objectives by Port St. Lucie "Beautiful and City Manager Elmer Cox, was authorized to send letters distributors of two shopping circulating in the area.

carriers toss copies of your ion upon lawns or driveways dwellings exist. In too many these issues are thrown upon s where the houses are not When they accumulate, even in small numbers, this is a signal to those bent upon burglary," Cox wrote.

To control this practice, the city will institute a licensing system which Cox outlined.

Under the new system, the license fee for any publisher of a shopping guide, flyer or commercial handbill, will be $50 per year, or $10 for six months if the license is applied for six months after the beginning of the city's fiscal year.

For a publication distributed for only one month, the license fee will be $8.

Brininger, Riedel are appointed

PORT ST. LUCIE–It is that time of year when clubs, organizations and committees select their new slates of officers to serve for the coming year.

Four of the five members of the Planning and Zoning Board, whose terms expire this month, accepted their re-nomination for another term. They are Clyde Blunt, Henry Sewell, Vaughn Lewis and Vern Farrar.

Dr. A.J. Jaroszewicz, who claims he has been a surgeon too many years not to recognize his energy gauge is dropping, declined his re-nomination to the board.

While Dr. Jaroszewicz said his association with the board has been a pleasant one and it offered a beautiful opportunity to find out what goes on in the community, he would be willing to watch from the sidelines.

One member of the board submitted his resignation. Clay Mamele of Floresta Pines II told the board outside business pressures would prevent him from devoting as much time to city matters as he felt would be necessary to do the job well.

Milton Riedel of 673 S.E. Calmoso Drive and Hughes Brininger of 679 S.E. Harborview Drive were appointed to the board as replacements for Mamele and Dr. Jaroszewicz.

Ray Neighbours will serve a second term as chairman of the board while Clyde Blunt holds down the post of vice chairman and Vaughn Lewis continues his duties as secretary.

Other members serving on the P&Z Board include Sen. Ben Miller, George Mantooth, Col. J. Huncharek and E. Jenkins.

urch rec area is opposed

ST. LUCIE–There was stan- on only at the Monday meeting of ning and Zoning Board when n appeared to oppose the ary site plans of the Morning- reen Church.

public hearing slated for the meeting was aborted at the last minute when it was learned property owners within 500 feet church property to be zoned had en notified as required by city e.

The zoning matter has been in ds of the Planning and Zoning for some time, it was not until the ary site plans were submitted ently that it became known the der Quaker Church organization ds to build a recreational complex property.

ugh local residents did not the construction of the church ed religious structures on the ty strongly objected to the recreational facilities, which ch items as two tennis courts, diamond, basketball court, ard court, picnic area and ild equipment, plus a multi- building.

el, a local resident who spoke of the other property owners in area, told members of the rd that such a recreation area would be ruinous to the quiet enjoyment of our neighborhood."

Rev. Ben Agler, pastor, told those attending the meeting that his group had not requested a C-1 zoning.

"We have no intention of upsetting the community and we don't want to cause any dissension nor in any way downgrade the property. We want to build a church and will comply with the community's wishes. We are here to serve you," Rev. Agler said.

He went on to explain that perhaps a misunderstanding about whether or not the recreational facilities would be public came about when he was asked that question directly.

"My first thought was that I had never heard of a 'private' church, so I immediately answered yes," Agler said. "We want to minister to the needs of the children."

Andy Matton Post plans Loyalty Day

PORT ST. LUCIE–The Andy Matton Post 10130, V.F.W., and the Ladies' Auxiliary of Port St. Lucie will make a flag presentation to General Development Corporation on Saturday, April 30, at 11 a.m. sharp.

The ceremony will be held at the Sales Office, Lyngate Drive and So. U.S. 1.

All members are requested to be in uniform. The public is invited.

Property owners came from as far away as Fdt. Lauderdale, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Scotti, to protest the church's proposed plans. A petition signed by some 31 homeowners opposing the recreational facilities was also presented to the P&Z Board.

Pete Arnold, a local contractor and member of the Quaker Church, said, "We are ordinary human beings and citizens of this community."

Explaining that he felt a ball diamond and other recreational facilities go hand in hand with a church, Arnold said, "If we don't care for our young people, our church will be dead."

When the matter came before the City Council Tuesday, City Manager Elmer Cox was advised to contact all persons within 500 feet of the two tracts in question and "spell out in a letter exactly what is being presented and include that portion of the zoning ordinance which applies so there will be no doubt in anyone's mind as to what is going on here."

A public hearing will be scheduled on the matter at a later date.

Band support asked

PORT ST. LUCIE–While the City Council had tentatively agreed to offer financial support to the newly organized Port S. Lucie Band, it was decided Tuesday to table such move until the matter could be discussed in more detail at the May 16 workshop meeting.

Meanwhile members of the Council have agreed to attend the next band rehearsal to be held at the Port St. Lucie Elementary School Wednesday evening, May 4.

The band, organized approximately four months ago

City Manager Elmer Cox recommended the Council consider a $1,000 contribution to the band for the purchase of uniforms, music and, in general, "to help them get started."

Cox pointed out the problems the city has encountered in the past trying to get a band to play, particularly in the July 4 parade.

"Last year the council agreed to pay approximately $200 to the Fort Pierce Band to clean their uniforms after playing the Independence Day parade," Cox said.

Vice Mayor Mike Reeb objected on the grounds that he thought such a contribution was a bit premature.

City Attorney Spencer Gilbert pointed out the band would have to be registered as a non-profit organization before the city could disburse public funds. He did say, however, the funds could be placed in the city's recreation budget and disbursed directly to firms selling supplies to the band.

DISCUSSION–Mrs. Rosalind Vroman discusses the proposed Quaker Church site plans with Ed Fessel following a lengthy hearing before the City's Planning and Zoning Board Monday afternoon. Fessel spoke before the P&Z Board on behalf of local residents who are objecting to the recreational facilities proposed for the church grounds according to the preliminary site plans which have been presented. A public hearing on the matter had to be aborted at the last minute when it was learned nineteen residents within 500 feet of the area to be zoned were not notified as required by law.

New members goal of GOP

PORT ST. LUCIE–The May 5 meeting of the Port St. Lucie Republican Club will feature "Bring a new member" under the chairmanship of Membership Committee Chairman Dr. Claude Grizzel. Meeting time is 7:30 p.m. at the Community Center in Port St. Lucie.

Reverend Elwood Peterson of St. Peter's Lutheran Church will make the guest presentation.

At a meeting of the board of directors recently, it was announced that the April Eastern Dinner netted the club a profit of $266.14. Chairman of the event was Nick Sabetto, assisted by Marge McChesney, Shirley Sabetto, Hester Plau, Liz Perez, Marge Anderson, Frances Lee and June Karrer, in addition to June Johnston, who was in charge of the decorations.

Coming events for the club include plans to have Tim Baer, executive director of the Florida Conservatives Union, speak on the happenings in the legislature, a beach party the latter part of June.

The PSL Republican Club extends an invitatin to all members of the community to attend.

According to a spokesman for the newly formed church, the Rev. Ralph Houston will conduct the May 1 service. Houston, a retired Methodist minister from Hempstead, L.I., is a resident of North Indian River Drive, Fort Pierce.

On May 8, the service will be conducted jointly by Houston and Rev. Dorothy E. Johnson, formerly of the Jensen Beach Community Church.

...uld there be Earth Week Two?

BY BOBBIE BEDELL
...Y BEACH—Was it worth it? ...ing hours of planning and preparation, the frustrations from a general lack of support and the joy of watching plans come to fruition were all part of Earth Week, a celebration of the earth by the Naturalist Society of Florida Institue of Technology.

But was it worth it?

The planners think yes.

"We'd like to make it an annual thing," Naturalist President Bill Krone said. "Earth Week Two should be bigger and more of a success. We know our mistakes now so anyone coming behind us will know."

"We'd like to make it an annual event," Vice President Bill Brokaw said, "but the trouble is about one half of us won't be around next year. It was a pretty poor turnout overall but we did make money for the whales."

Club Treasurer DeDe Wheat said the Society made about $70 from the sale of posters, buttons, T-shirts, and bumper stickers. The money is to go to one of the Save Our Whales groups dedicated to the prevention of commercial whale killing.

"Some think a lot of people were apathetic," Krone said. "But one lady came up to me showing me a news story about how apathetic everyone has been. 'I care, I care, I care' she shouted. That really made me feel good."

"I think it came off really well," Wheat said, "if there's still a club, I'm sure there will be an Earth Week next year. The administration thinks that it was great."

After a natural foods dinner on the campus on Friday, Conservation Alliance member John McQuaig spoke about "sustaining our lifestyle" and Marine Biologist Ross Wilburn spoke about his work on the research of marine turtles.

The highlight of the week was a torchlight vigil held Friday night where about 30 people, brandishing flaming torches, marched from the Jensen Beach Causeway to Jensen Public Beach. At the beach, feeling the warm but brisk breeze off the Atlantic, the Rev. Frank Alvares of All Saints Episcopal Church in Jensen related ecology to theology. After his talk the group sat silent for a while meditating on what was said and then, the group slowly rose to return to the campus.

"We'd like to thank all the sponsors of Earth Week," Krone said. "We'd also like to thank all the media which helped promote us. And we'd especially like to thank Stuart Photo for donating prizes for the photo contest."

The problem of some doctors not understanding our need for free screening tests that could be supplied by the Martin County Health Dept. was discussed at length by AARP members, and Doctor Myers said that it was on the agenda for the next meeting of the Martin County Medical Society. We better write and express our views to: Frederick Krauskopf MD, President, Martin County Medical Society, 931 SE Ocean Blvd., Stuart 33494.

Nurse Jawney Hosier, RN, of VNA (Visiting Nurse Association), 272 Osceola Street, next spoke to us regarding their many services, and there are plenty. But, most important, she emphasized that when Medicare and Medicaid run out, VNA continues right along and doesn't stop like some of the other private nursing services. Anyone can request the first visit, but after that they must work under doctors instructions. They are one year old in this area and have made thousands of visits so far and hope we'll call them when in need.

Many AARPers asked questions and made comments, one of particular interest: Russ Conser, MCCA project director, came back on a plane from Tallahassee with Senator Lawton Chiles and got a chance to talk to him about "Catastrophic Health Insurance" and later, Chiles called back with information on such legislation.

The meeting closed with refreshments of cookies and soft drinks served by Edith Hill and Marion Curwen. Then there was a raffle, won by Vivien D'Aguila, $10; Mildred Lundy, $25; and Viola Watts, $2.50. The $6 door prize was won by Elizabeth Cedren and Eleanor Overfield won some tupperware donated by Kitty Perryman. That ended a very fine meeting.

Support for the efforts of Insurance Commissioner Bill Gunter to chop down the escalating rates for automobile insurance in Florida was sought at the April meeting of the chapter. Paul Favor, of the commissioner's office, spoke, giving details of the new proposal.

A chief feature would be the elimination of the catch-all phrase "pain and suffering" as a basis for claims in case of an accident. Such claims, usually pushed by unscrupulous attorneys who hope to cash in on a percentage basis, are responsible in large part for the soaring rates. Juries that award outlandish payments to people suing under this claim may feel they are doing the sues a good turn. What they are actually doing is to raise not only insurance rates for other people, but their own as well. Favor had with him a petition in support of the proposed legislation, which most of those attending were happy to sign.

Members were urged to become active in legislative matters by Legislative Chairman Frank Alexander. He pointed out that "they" and "them", usually referred to by participants in such matters, are really "we" and "us". "If we want to make our voices heard," Frank said, "we are going to have to establish direct contact with the people who are drawing up and will vote on legislation." He said that older citizens constitute a formidable voting bloc in Florida, one which by rights should swing its weight.

+ + +

City Manager Elmer Cox was to have spoken at the meeting, but was unable to do so and was replaced by Mayor Bill McChesney, sort of like substituting President Jimmy Carter for a cabinet member. His Honor discussed the situation and prospects of Port St. Lucie and emphasized that, in his personal opinion, the term "Port St. Lucie" included the entire area, county as well as city residents. The city expects continued growth, he said, and may eventually pass Fort Pierce in population to become the largest city in St. Lucie County.

The question of the incorporation of county territory into the city in case that depends exclusively upon the wishes of county residents, McChesney said he stressed that he was not trying to do a selling job on the idea, but was just presenting it. The main issue that future people be recognized, is how much their taxes would be increased if their area were incorporated into the city. The increase would be, roughly, $1.75 per year per $1,000 of net assessed valuation of the taxpayer's residence. Thus, a home with a $25,000 net valuation would pay $35.25, one of $35,000 would pay $53, one of $50,000 would pay $87.75, and so on, in addition to the county rate. This would seem to be a small price to pay to put an end to the gerrymandered limits of the city as they now stand.

The chapter was honored at the meeting by the presence of genial Bill Koslage, Melbourne, assistant state AARP director of this area. Bill didn't address the meeting, but was on hand to answer any questions. He said he was on one of his periodic swings around his territory to visit the chapters and to give help on any problems that might arise.

+ + +

Another VIP at the meeting was Merle Anderson, newly elected council member, who was asked by President Fred Wiggin to stand so all the folks could see him.

The 50-50 raffle was really an improvised deal. Someone forgot to bring the tickets, so volunteers had to be pressed into service to write the numbers on scraps of paper. This shortcoming didn't make any difference, and everyone enjoyed the game, perhaps even more than with the regular tickets.

R.C. Darlington and Mrs. Frank Alexander were the stars in a development unheard of in raffle annals – both of them won two prizes among the five that were awarded. No statistics are available on how often this happens, but you can be sure it's not very often. The other winner was Anne Friedel.

This is the final call for delinquent members to pay their 1977 dues. After this week, those who he wasn't paid will be dropped. As a matter of fact, the by-laws state that members who are delinquent as of March 31 are automatically dropped from the rolls, but Treasurer Esther Thompson has been very lenient with them.

The time has now arrived for action, Esther says, so the axe will go chop chop. There are some 25 members in this category. Total membership for the chapter is just a bit above 200.

Crow's Nest is sold to Michigan couple

BY ROBBIE REDELL

JENSEN BEACH--For eight years Frank and Velma Malocsay owned and managed the Crow's Nest Restaurant, catering to luncheons and banquets of the area's numerous clubs and social groups, and to many visiting and resident families.

Last Friday the restaurant was sold to new owners Jan and Chan Pollock, a couple who intends to continue the tradition which Frank and Velma created.

"Mrs. Owen K. Murphy named the restaurant for us in 1980," Velma said. "We had worked for her at the Manatee in Port Salerno before that."

"It has been the best years of our lives," Frank said.

Velma added that without the help they received from friends and employees they could not have made the establishment the success that it is.

"Our employees have been great," she said. "We appreciate all of the help they and our friends have given which helped make our success. We feel all of the people in the area are our friends and now we'll really have the opportunity to be with them. We want to thank everyone for everything they have done for us. It's been our pleasure to serve our community."

Last year the restaurant won the Small Business Administration in Washington in celebration of the American Bicentennial, "proving that free enterprise works in the United States," Velma said.

"Now we are pleased to turn the restaurant over to the very capable hands of Jan and Chan Pollock."

The Pollocks describe the feeling of running the Crow's Nest as "beautiful."

They were involved in the restaurant business in Michigan.

"I retired on April 30 with no intention of going back to work," Jan said. "We found the restaurant, fell in love with it, found out it was for sale, and bought it."

"We want to keep this an informal, fun spot," Chan said. "We want to keep it the same as Frank and Velma had it. We want to keep everyone happy and we want them to know they can still feel at home here."

The restaurant will retain its hours of 5:30 to 10 p.m. seven days per week with luncheons and banquets available to clubs and social groups.

Lions, Rio, Rick Carroll win first half titles

BY DONNIE WILKIE

JENSEN BEACH--In the history of the championship series between first and second half champions at Langford Park, it has been the second half winners which have dominated. But you won't be able to convince Frank Hughes, Mike Shue or Dale Adams that this year can't be different.

These are the three coaches who led their teams to first half championships in Pony, Bronco and Mustang League races. But for the other twelve coaches there is the second half, and they look to make their moves then, and perhaps to knock off the first half champs in the title tilts and continue the pattern.

The Lions ran away with the Pony League title, leaving two teams in the dust with 4-4 records--- Elks and Jensen Bank. The Lions posted a 7-1 mark, losing only an early-season game to Jensen Bank. Other than that, the Lions were pushed hard by only one team (Mosley Construction) and then only after having clinched the championship. Kiwanis finished four games out at 3-5, while Mosley pulled up the rear at 2-6.

Mike Shue's Rio Civic Club won their first five games behind the pitching of Todd Jackson, then lost two in a row when he took an Easter vacation. But they fought off VFW in their last game to preserve the crown they nearly lost. Todd's gave Rio a fit down the stretch, but lost out by one game at 5-3, as Rio came in at 6-2. Ray Cooke was the darkhorse at 4-3, while the Knights of Columbus finished fourth at 2-5. VFW occupied the basement at 2-6. A late-season game between the Knights and Ray Cooke, which was suspended because of curfew with the score deadlocked at 8-8, was cancelled as it could not change the outcome of the half.

In the Mustang League, Rick Carroll finished at 7-1 to run away from the pack en route to the title. Ray Cooke Man from KIRK and Aycock's Gang all finished at 4-4.

Sandpiper Women's Golf

PORT ST. LUCIE--Play for the day for the Sandpiper Bay Women's Golf Association last week was "Two Best Balls of Foursome".

Scores were very close, with the team of Sylva Barnwell, Pearl Roberts, Lee Reeb and Lil O'Beirne coming in with 118, as did Mary Wilson, Marjorie Hand, Betty Preston and Alice Row.

Also turning in a score of 118 was the foursome of Blanche Kaufman, Florence McConnell, Alice Rozett and Irene Helmer.

Marian Cole, M. Engelbert, Mae Scott and Charlotte Deed turned in a combined 119. Eliese Evans, Ruth Chase Terry Skinker and E. Kesler also had 119, as did Gretchen Dalton, Iva Dean Bouck, Emmy Hofmeister and Emme Krecke.

ermit's benefits from Bright's return, win 9-4

... had a good game for Kermit's, ... getting two hits in two official at bats, including Kermit's only other extra base hit, a double. Boechini, meanwhile, continued his hot streak at the plate with a two-for-three performance.

Jupiter threatened only briefly, scoring three runs in the fifth inning. Laycock's last on the mound. The rally by the hometown team pulled them to within two runs at 6-4, but Bright dealt the couple of graves in the sixth with a two-run, over the fence home run.

Kermit's pounded out ten hits in the game, their highest total of the year, while limiting Jupiter to but five. Jupiter left nine men on the basepaths, as Kermit's stranded only seven.

Kermit's win turned out to be more important than it seemed at first, because league-leading Hobe Sound was upset Friday night by Port Salerno 6-4 in a real thriller.

Mike Ausburn earned the victory as Port Salerno pulled to within one game of Hobe Sound in the Colt League standings. Mike Thompson's double and Ricky McGahee's triple propelled the Salernians to victory.

The Hobe Sound loss made up for their victory over Kermit's earlier in the week at Langford Park. Kermit's played well defensively for most of the game, but could not get the bats cranked up against the 4-1 Sainders. Thus, the Hobe Sound loss nullifies the Kermit's loss, and leaves the Jensenites just two games out of the top spot.

Manager Pete Howanitz's forces look toward their game tonight (Wednesday, Field 3, 7:30 p.m.) at Langford Park as a crucial one. The hometowners will face Port Salerno, who sports a 3-2 record. Pitchers for tonight's showdown were still unnamed at press time, but one possibility for Kermit's is Bright, who would be making his first appearance of the year on the mound.

The Jensen-Port Salerno game will be the only game for the locklers this week, but they do have a pair of outings slated for next week. Jupiter will invade Langford Park next Wednesday (May 4) for a 7:30 start, and Kermit's will travel to Hobe Sound on Saturday, May 7, for a 3:30 game.

Bright's three double-homer is week's highlight

JENSEN BEACH—It had been quite a successful year for Ricky Bright as he played third base and pitched for the Martin County High School baseball Tigers, but it was apparently just the beginning, because all he did in his Colt League debut for Kermit's Stag Shop was hit three doubles and a home run in a 4-for-4 performance that earned him the Mirror "Player of the Week" award of 1977.

Bright becomes the first Colt League player to receive the award, and only the second player from the Colt ranks to win it since its inception last year.

Centerfielder Leroy Wells took the honor last year toward the end of the season when he made several fantastic plays in centerfield to lead Kermit's to one of only three wins.

Bright did it with pure power at the plate, doubling twice, then smacking a two-run homer to put the game out of reach, and finally ripping another double. Kermit's won the game 9-4 over Jupiter.

Leslie Choate of the Mustang League won the Player of the Week award last week, and there were no "honorable mention" winners. This week there are no runners-up, but for a different reason.

Last week was "rain-out" week at Langford Park, as teams who had games rained out in the first half made them up. There were no rain-outs, but there were a few games postponed because of Good Friday. However, there were no outstanding performances in last week's games, other than Bright's, which occurred in a regular Colt game.

The Player of the Week award will continue through the next seven weeks, or until the conclusion of the post-season tournaments.

3,000 broken at the Lanes

BY DONNIE WILKIE

JENSEN BEACH—In the ten years since the Friday night "Scratch League or Classic League began, no team has come close to breaking the 3,000 barrier. But last Friday, Household Electric not only broke through it, they literally left it in a thousand pieces.

The Householdders posted games of 1019, 1037, and 1,000 in scratch play at the Jensen Lanes Friday night en route to a 3056 series -- an all-time record.

Household increased their lead in the league to 9½ points over second place Stuart National Bank under the 24-point match play system used by the league this season. This is the same system which is used by the Suncoast Conference for all high school matches.

The record setters were led by Lou Papaglero, who rolled a neat 220-201-221 series for a 642 total. Anchorman Toby Gilbert stroked a 621 series, including a one-game high of 220. Others getting into the act included John Saitta, who came in with a 234-616. Mike Whitaker's 214-607, and Mark King, who knocked out a 215-581.

Bowling for the winter season is now entering its final two weeks at the Lanes.

Why Tuff-Kote can effectively rustproof used cars.

Anyone that creeps through all welds, seams and crevices. It displaces moisture, and goes right down to the bare metal to stop any existing rust. Second, Tuff-Kote applies a special abrasion-resistant sealant that locks out moisture and prevents any new rust from starting.

If you have a used car, your Tuff-Kote Dinol dealer can effectively rustproof it. And if you have a new car, your Tuff-Kote dealer is the only one who should.

Tuff-Kote Dinol

Our two-step rustproofing is one better.

Pavilion Church closes with 'Til we meet again'

To the strains of "Til We Meet Again", the Pavilion Church closed Sunday until fall, with fond farewells expressed all around. Rev. Thanks go to Mark Sumner, Lee Ullmann, Robert Barton and Ed Storck for giving so much of themselves ushering for the past season, and to the many who provided all the beautiful music.

From Morelia we went to Mexico City for a one week stay. Again we left our car in the guarded parking area inside our Posada in Morelia and toned first class to Mexico City by Tres Estrellas de Oro (Three Gold Stars, the Mexican counterpart for Greyhound).

Mexico City is now a huge 1,000,000 people metropolis with thick smog, a lot of traffic and parking problems. We were on a tight schedule but managed to do a lot of sightseeing. Chapultepec Park and its castle, the zoo, the Museum of Fine Arts, the Ballet Folklorico at the Palacio de Bellas Artes, the pyramids, the main plaza or zocalo, the Cathedral, the National Palace, San Juan Market, the shrine of Guadalupe, and the pink zone where all the swank shops and restaurants are located.

We picked up our car in Morelia and then drove to Guanajuato, the old colonial silver city, home of the once famous La Valenciana mine. Guanajuato is also a state capital and is the birthplace of the famous mural painter, Diego Rivera, whose house is now a museum.

One unusual feature of the city is a car subway built on the bed of a now diverted river. Another one is a jewel of a theatre and opera house, the Teatro Juarez, which was built by dictator Porfirio Diaz in 1886. The Granaditas, a fortress-like stone warehouse was the site of one of the first clashes between Spanish Royalists and the Insurgentes, or rebels, led by Father Miguel Hidalgo, who assembled it in 1810 in the name of Mexican independence.

From Guanajuato we drove to San Miguel de Allende, but stopped en route in Dolores Hidalgo where the Mexican liberty bell first rang in 1810 from the steeple of Father Hidalgo's church.

San Miguel is unique. It is a true colonial city, a year round resort, and a city devoted to the fine arts and crafts.

San Miguel boasts two schools of fine arts. The Instituto Allende, known throughout the world, is housed in the former hacienda of the very wealthy County de la Canal and the Bellas Artes is in a former monastery. Both schools are outstanding and they offer courses in painting, sculpture, design, ceramics, music, dancing and Spanish language, etc.

There are large American and Canadian colonies in San Miguel. These exiles are deeply involved and do a lot of good for the Mexican people of the city. They publish a weekly paper, manage the Biblioteca Publica, collect monies for needy children, and produce shows and concerts. They give San Miguel a true international accent of artistic life and distinction.

After four months we decided it was time to get back to our own way of living. We left San Miguel on March 28 and made our way to McAllen, Texas, via San Luis Potosi, Ciudad Valles, Ciudad Victoria and Reynosa.

We had a wonderful trip, nothing bad to mention, not even a flat tire, thanks be to God! But even for us Canadians, it seemed being safe back home again we again reached United States soil!

'A little bit of heaven on the water'

Jackie Phillips, V.O. St. Lucie, reports:

"By the light of the silvery moon...on Swordfish Lane we'll spoon..."

Yes, we have a honeymoon couple here, Nick and Helen Bernbi: Helen is proprietor of an elite dress shop in Boynton Beach and Nick is in the plumbing business in Lake Worth. They know it, Mary and Tom, but you were never alone during the long road back to health. All of your friends at V.O. were praying and pulling for you.

found their way here while hunting for a "little bit of heaven on the water". The Bromberger lot and Park Model at the end of Swordfish Lane was the answer.

Though they'll only be here weekends for a while, we are happy to have such a nice couple join the rest of the great people here. Incidentally, there are three Helens in a row here: Helen Berish, Helen Rubright and Helen Kitts – all great gals!

Willard and Louise Auch are having a ball entertaining Louise's sister Jane and her husband, Vern Zimmerman, from Illinois. Jane and Vern have been in V.O. many times and they say there is always something new and interesting no matter when you come. The Japanese Steak House was furn for all of them Sunday night.

Marmie and Curt Payntor of Swordfish Lane have been relaxing with their friends Chris and Lowell Powell of Pittsburgh, Pa. As a matter of fact, the Powells had such a wonderful visit they bought a condo near here - welcome!

Happy Birthday, Ginny Thompson! Better late than never, eh what? But we didn't know 'til now. Glad to hear you had such a happy day. Son Dick and family treated Ginny and Bill and the Ward Irwins to a nice dinner at Wayside. A wonderful day was had by all.

Great news! MaryEllyn Meachum is improving and Tom Potter's doctor doesn't want to see him for three months! We couldn't be happier for these precious people. Maybe you didn't "Sure miss V.O., our nice friends, pool, etc. Things are too quiet here for me - the wildest thing of the day is the noise Harry's radishes are making busting thru the soil!" She wants to be remembered to all her friends at V.O.

Hate to say goodbye to Lucy and Toad Bowling this week, but happy in the knowledge that, while here, Toad "took the dogs" and Lucy mastered the organ!

Notice - to all you nice people who send news during the summer months, keep it up! Due to Willard Auch's successful business venture, he will not be able to handle the column this summer. However, super Jesse Shaver of Venture Harbour will see that the news you send to her gets to The Mirror. Please send your news to: Mrs. Jesse Shaver, B.2, Venture Harbour, R.R. Many thanks are due to Rose Curth of V.O. Indian River, who is the epitomy of "though snow, rain, hail, the mail will go through", hence our Venture Three news has been delivered to The Mirror by Rose each week. Dee, our Venture Three secretary, is thanked, too, for typing out her scratching on short notice these many weeks.

May your summer be all that you hoped for, Jackie.

Committee to study school space problem

JENSEN BEACH–A committee is being formed in the Jensen Beach area to insure that there will be ample classroom space for elementary school students in future years.

Betty Wegler, a Jensen Beach housewife, is spearheading the committee and has contacted a number of local building contractors to determine approximately how many new families could move into proposed subdivisions within the next few years. According to Mrs. Wegler, there will be more than 8,000 new homesites in the Jensen Beach, Sewall's Point and North River Shores areas, all of which have children who attend the Jensen Beach Elementary School.

"The school already has 880 children and its maximum capacity is 705," Mrs. Wegler said. "And that doesn't include Palm Lake Park and Skyline Drive."

Although the committee has not yet contacted the Martin County School Board, Martin County School Superintendent V. James Navitsky said the growth problem was taken into consideration during a five year survey conducted two years ago. Since 90 per cent of the financing for new schools comes from the state, Navitsky said, the state recommended that Martin County will need a new elementary school, but not necessarily in the Jensen Beach area.

He added there will be some portable units for full time kindergarten classes at the Jensen Beach school.

He also said that some other schools in the county, namely Julian Parker and Palm City, have some top priority items to be settled.

There are 70 to 80 portable units in the county and they will be moved to areas where they will be needed as population grows.

"Some of those units would be moved to Jensen Beach as they are needed," Navitsky said.

Mrs. Wegler is meeting with local building contractors and interested citizens at the Jensen Beach Elementary School at 11 a.m., May 11. The committee will discuss the influx of new families in newly built homes and how the community might work to solve space problems.

Surf fisherman

Beach is home for Teddy Bloom

BY ROBBIE BEDELL

JENSEN BEACH–Fishing the beaches of the Atlantic Coast is nothing new.

From Maine to Key West you can find anglers flailing any assortment of tackle at the waves in order to try and capture any of a large variety of species of fish, either for the table or the pocketbook.

You can catch pompano in Florida and you can catch striped bass in the northeast. In some spots you can get mackerel or whiting, but you can catch bluefish, at certain times of the year, just about everywhere.

One of the connoisseurs of plying for blues is Jensen Beach's Teddy Bloom. He is more than a connoisseur, bluefishing is in his blood.

Observing him at a distance down the beach he looks as tall and lean as one of the 11 and a half-foot surf rods he uses. His arms are like tree-limbs.

"I can take an eight-ounce weight and put it on the roof of that brown house down the way," he said in his downeast brogue. "I figure that's a hundred, a hundred-ten yards, don't you?"

His ability to make long casts and determine local conditions through meticulous observation of local phenomena have made him able to average from 3,000 to 4,000 bluefish a year - on rod and line. His Florida notebook, begun the first day he came to Jensen Beach, shows a record of air and surf temperature, wind and water conditions, turtle crawls, the number of fish taken, and any other notes he feels like writing down. It's there for reference and it pays off.

Teddy doesn't eat the blues he catches, he sells them to fish dealers for the northern markets. In fact he eats very little fish.

"If it doesn't have a shell on it I don't like it," he said. "But there's one part of the bluefish I really like and that's the roe. Pan-fried bluefish roe, there's nothing better."

Last week he and his wife Alva were preparing to take a guest to dinner at a local restaurant.

"If I had my way we'd be going down to a place south of here where I can eat all the shrimp I want for $4.95. With the price of shrimp the way it is, that's pretty good."

Teddy likes shrimp, crabs, lobster, crayfish and king crab claws.

"I'd rather eat crayfish than lobster but I like to fry my own shrimp, too," he said. "I like to do it myself because I like to have it cooked just right. You put it in the oil, I don't use any batter, and time it just right. I look at my watch and at the exact second I begin to check it. When I find it turning a golden brown, I know that's when to take it out. It's usually less than a minute. Then I put some salt on it, that's all, and sit down with a can of beer and dig in, that's good."

Needless to say, a man who has fished for bluefish along the entire Atlantic coast for more than 50 years has some set ideas about the fish and what it takes to catch them.

Teddy makes all of his own plugs, jigs and spoons. He buys all of his line and tackle-making gear in bulk and spends long hours in his garage molding metal jigs, tying flies, making rods and repairing reels that he literally wears out in his long hours of fishing. He holds his homemade pieces of tackle in his large hands, "They may not look like much to you but the fish sure like 'em."

Teddy began fishing here in 1948 but didn't buy a home here until he retired from the construction trade in New Jersey.

He and Alva were well known in their New Jersey town of Lavalette. Teddy was a fixture on the beaches there and both were loved and respected for raising 32 foster children in the New Jersey State Child Welfare system. They still visit each year and Teddy manages to fish annually with friends on the island of Nantucket in Massachusetts.

"If you don't have time to fish, you make it," he declares. "When I was working, I might make it to work by nine or nine-thirty. You either fish or you work, that's all."

In the summer, when the blues don't frequent Florida waters so often, Teddy trout fishes in the Indian River. He spends most of his fishing hours looking for blues and trout.

"Anybody'd have to be crazy to snook fish," he said. "You have to go out at three and four a.m. for the right tides. It's a very, very specialized form of fishing."

THE LONG ROD–The silhouette of Teddy Bloom against the morning sun is a sight many have seen during his long career as a surf caster. Bloom, who fishes the surf for blues and the river for trout, has calculated he makes one million casts every three years.

EAGLE EYE–Veteran surfcaster Teddy Bloom, who averages from three to four thousand bluefish per year, gazes out over the Atlantic in search of bluefish. Bloom has fished the entire coast of the United States from Maine to Key West in search of bluefish and striped bass.

"We plan to start making arrangements for the rehiring of workers," he said, "and to begin releasing subcontracts."

Van Curen said the first week will begin construction on the foundation of the reactor building and the discharge tunnel which will intersect with the existing water outlet of the St. Lucie One plant.

The town selected a committee of residents to study a plan with the help of county officials and will report its findings during the meeting Wednesday night.

Savannas board makeup is hit

PORT ST. LUCIE–The makeup of the Savannas Trust Committee hit a snag last Friday when the organization buying the land objected to the balance of power on the committee.

Meeting at the St. Lucie Courthouse, representatives of Port St. Lucie, the Martin and St. Lucie County commissions and the Florida State Trust for Public Land could not come to agreement on representation.

Though agreeing on an eleven member board, Joel Kuperberg, Trust vice president, objected to a suggested six government-five conservationist participation. Members of the St. Lucie County Commission also objected to the makeup.

The requirement that the makeup of the committee be from the different governmental bodies and the wilderness trust was included in the sale agreement of 840 acres of savannas by General Development Corporation, and approved by the Florida Cabinet recently.

GDC will sell the land at $50 per acre to the trust, which will resell the land to the state at $150 an acre. The committee would be an advisory body to the state trust for public land, a division of the Department of Environmental Regulation.

Another meeting of the group is slated for Friday.

BEAUTIFICATION VOLUNTEERS–Members of the Jensen Beach Garden Club last week landscaped the triangular intersection at Sunview Road and Commercial Street and the property surrounding the U.S. Post Office on Ricou Road. The work is part of a beautification program being conducted by the club. The volunteers are, from the left: Carol Stephenson, Irene Stephenson, Jane Murray, FIT student Rich Poley, Freda Peterkin and Jo Eisenbarth. The group planted a coco plumosa tree at the triangle and two podocarpus trees at the Post Office.

The event will take place at Langford Park in South Jensen Beach.

SURPRISE CATCH–Arthur R. Bernard of Holiday Out was amazed recently when, while fishing for pompano, he hooked and landed this nine and a half pound bonefish in the surf. CFC doffs hat to supporting group in rate hike fight

PORT ST. LUCIE--Robert Brunton, president of the Coalition of Florida Consumers, today expressed the appreciation of the organization for the support given it in its fight against the rate increase petition of the Florida Power & Light Co. by seven community groups that formed the backbone of the CFC.

"Without the help and encouragement of these civic minded groups, we would not have been able to mount our formal protest against the rate increase," Brunton said. "We feel that the active support given us throughout the area was a classic example of consumers organizing to defend their own interests."

The supporting groups Brunton cited were the River Park-Port St. Lucie Homeowners' Association, the Port St. Lucie Civic League, the Spanish Lakes Homeowners' Association, the Port St. Lucie Homeowners' Association, the Lakewood Park Homeowners' Association, the Indian River Drive Freeholders, Inc., and the Port St. Lucie Country Club Homeowners' Association.

Although the "big push" of the CFC project has now ended, with the group's formal rebuttal to the FPL increase petition before the Public Service Commission, Brunton said the organization continues, keenly interested in the affairs of the PSC, and will make its voice heard on issues

er three hours

irst night meeting raws packed house

BY DICK CAMPBELL

T ST. LUCIE--The city council of Lucie played to a packed house, w fifty residents attending the ght meeting Monday.

rkshop session covered twenty me of which will be considered regular meeting Tuesday, and from creation of new zoning ations to littering.

blic had its say in almost every m the agenda, and each person commented on most ding the meeting, citizens ed in groups to discuss some of the considered, but most comment served for the controversial and ved subject of licensing of g guides and flyers.

The council had considered a licensing ordinance, choosing a short form with a penalty clause added, before being deluged with public comment that ranged the full width of public opinion.

"Why can't a neighbor pick up the throw-aways and solve the littering problem", one asked.

"Three, four and five gathering on the front lawn is an invitation to robbery," he was told.

City Attorney Spencer Gilbert explained the legal problems of identifying the person littering, or throwing unwanted items on lawns.

"You would have to prove the violation. . .actually see the person doing it," Gilbert said.

The councilmen seemed somewhat split on the subject.

Former Mayor Schuyler Sharpe complained of seeing four and five "shoppers in a driveway." He said such an ordinance was needed. He was backed by Councilman Mike Reeb, who took a milder tack, saying the licensing of the distributors could control the problem.

But Councilman Merle Anderson said that most people "like to get the shopper," and did not see any reason for the ordinance. He was backed by Councilwoman Lolita Kernohan, who said there are "too many ordinances on the books now. I'd rather that we write a letter to the publishers and ask for cooperation."

Chuck Hawkins, publisher of "Flashes", a shopping guide, explained the distribution of the guide to the community, emphasizing that his deliverymen did not want to deliver to empty homes, as "it costs us money, and we want to save money." He added that he would work with the city to try to solve the problem.

Asked to comment, Mirror editor Dick Campbell backed Hawkins, saying that while there were some distribution problems, any ordinance affecting the distribution of news, be it in newspaper or shopping guides, would be a violation of the first amendment to the constitution. He added that the city should try to work out clearing of unwanted copies and littering with the distributors, rather than passing an ordinance.

In other agenda items, the council, taking workshop action to move a subject to the agenda for the regular meeting:

APPROVED the idea to oppose Governor Reubin Askew's financial disclosure bill before the legislature. McChesney said, "We would probably lose 90 per cent of the zoning board, and might lose some of the council if it passes."

DECLINED to pass on to the agenda a resolution sponsored by the Civic League opposing any boat docks, ramps or other structures into the North Fork of the St. Lucie River. The action was admittedly directed to Spanish Lakes expansion plans, but Mrs. Kernohan pointed out that Spanish Lakes is out of the city and not city business.

McChesney said rather than a blanket resolution, each request would be considered on its merits.

REFERRED the request for zoning on the Morningside Friends Church to the Planning and Zoning Board.

SENT a request for an additional sixty days life for the districting commission to agenda next week for approval.

DELAYED consideration of an ordinance regarding parking of trucks in the city to the next workshop meeting.

HEARD that Public Safety Director Doug Stout was planning a revised grass cutting ordinance to recover total city expenses on violators.

LAUGHED when City Manager Elmer Cox described the governmental red tape involved in applying for a federal grant for comprehensive planning.

AGREED with Cox to put off hearing his report on the city manager's convention to the next meeting.

HEARD Cox report that he had submitted the second year request for Law Enforcement Assistance, but had not yet had approval on the first year's funding.

LOCATION-- The proposed Vikings Landing, thirty acres on the west side of the St. Lucie River, straddling the C-24 canal, will feature $100,000 homes, security guards, tennis courts and a small marina.

Vikings Landing to seek annexation

PORT ST. LUCIE--A 30-acre parcel of land, surrounded by the City of Port St. Lucie just west of the country club, will become a subdivision of $100,000 homes if the city annexes the property, it was learned Monday night.

Vikings Landing, to be developed by Victor Georgeff, was given an initial hearing before the city council in workshop session before being referred to the planning and zoning board.

According to Elmer Cox, city manager, the presentation was made to appraise the council of the project before being turned over to the zoning board, "because time is of the essence regarding the closing date to acquire the property."

The subdivision, located on both sides of C-24 canal and west of the St. Lucie River's north fork, would have forty lots, homes of over 3,000 square feet, private roads (built to city specifications), security guards, tennis courts, and, if permits can be obtained, a small marina in a pocket inlet.

Georgeff, developer of Holiday Country Club Estates in Stuart, made the presentation with Kenneth Ferrari, engineer. He said that he hoped that the subdivision would be served with city water and sewage, provided by General Development Utilities (GDU), but if need be, lot sizes would enable the plan to use wells and septic tanks.

Asked if he had contacted GDU, Georgeff said he had, and had been referred to the city.

The previous development of Georgeff was praised by several in attendance, and the city seemed anxious to work with the developer, passing the project on to the planning and zoning board.

PRESENTATION--Victor Georgeff, developer, explained the location of Vikings Landing to city councilmen before proceeding to the planning and zoning board with the project. Georgeff was assisted by engineer Ken Ferrari. In the foreground is city mananger Elmer Cox.

Hadassah holds installation

PORT ST. LUCIE--The St. Lucie-Martin County Chapter of Hadassa held its installation of officers. Mrs. Rose Davidson of Fort Pierce, this Chapter's first president, turned over the gavel to the newly elected president, Mrs. Lee Berg of Stuart.

Mrs. Helen Smith of West Palm Beach Hadassah was the installing officer. Mrs. Smith commended the local group for their special activities which enabled them to further the cause of Hadassah in America and Israel.

Mrs. Ruth Feen received an award for general activities, Mollie Morris for special service, Alice Rosen for Youth Aliyah, Evelyn Schiller for American and Zionist affairs, and Ann Schoenbrun for education.

Others included Johanna Sternberg, recording secretary, Midge Tomberg, JNF, Leah Williamson for fund raising, Lillian Wisan for publicity and Celia Levinson as membership chairman received the Woman of the Year Award.

Savannas board makeup is hit

PORT ST. LUCIE--The makeup of the Savannas Trust Committee hit a snag last Friday when the organization buying the land objected to the balance of power on the committee.

Meeting at the St. Lucie Courthouse, representatives of Port St. Lucie, the Martin and St. Lucie County commissions and the Florida State Trust for Public Land could not come to agreement on representation.

Though agreeing on an eleven member board, Joel Kuperberg, Trust vice president, objected to a suggested six government-five conservationist participation. Members of the St. Lucie County Commission also objected to the makeup.

The requirement that the makeup of the committee be from the different governmental bodies and the wilderness trust was included in the sale agreement of 840 acres of Savannas by General Development Corporation, and approved by the Florida Cabinet recently.

GDC will sell the land at $50 per acre to the trust, which will resell the land to the state at $150 an acre. The committee would be an advisory body to the state trust for public land, a division of the Department of Environmental Regulation.

Another meeting of the group is slated for Friday.

Zoning changes to bring action

PORT ST. LUCIE--The creation of two new classifications, R2-A and R2-B, received zoning board approval and have been set for city council action next week.

The council received the report that was "sure to be opposed by General Development", according to zoning board chairman Ray Neighbours. Neighbours added that GDC "generally opposes any change when areas have been platted and land sold."

The two new categories would move minimum requirements for a house from 900 to 1,400 square feet in R2-A and from 900 to 1,150 square feet in R2-B, all on 10,000 square foot lots.

The board recommended the new classifications in eight areas, to provide a buffer between growth areas, recognizing that some of the areas would have lot size problems to meet setbacks.

The board also reported that it had not yet finished with recommendations on other areas, but would add those areas in the future when studies were complete.

In another action, the council accepted the zoning board recommendation redefining setbacks on corner lots and set the item for consideration at the next meeting.

Lonely lighting to be considered

PORT ST. LUCIE--The long, lonely stretches of Floresta and Airoso roads between north and south Port St. Lucie will see the light soon, if attitudes of the city council prevail.

City safety director Doug Stout was asked to survey and make recomendations on street lights for the darkened roads to provide safety for motorists with auto problems.

Tom Flynn is most improved

PORT ST. LUCIE--Tom Flynn of Port St. Lucie was named Most Improved During the Year in a recent ceremony at which Indian River Community College Head Golf Coach Chuck Schmitt presented golfing awards.

Flynn has accepted a scholarship and will attend Marymount College in Boca Raton for his junior year.

Most Valuable Player was Jeff Tanner of Fort Pierce, and Dwayne Sears, of Fort Pierce, received the Outstanding Achievement Award, shooting 86-88 in the F.I.U. Challenge Matches.

ensen Beach Church School
ioneers 'Open Concept'

By Alice Hickey

NSEN BEACH–While the open pt method of teaching is not new to ucational system of our area, its ception at the Jensen Beach mily Church School is both new unique.

program, instituted at the local school within the past six months the direction of Rev. Robert r, has presented a whole new of learning not only to the children ing, but to the staff members as open concept system is geared to a staff of teachers to instruct the hool child on his own level . . . his ste and ability.

program is balanced by using all s for learning. . .sight, sound, feel . well as the written word.

ess the children in the Jensen Church School range from 8 to 13 of age, all the activities are ned to create an awareness in each For example, a child of eight will , learn and experience as an eight ld, while the thirteen year old will from the same activities at a ter level.

ferent from the conventional l schools where this age range probably be split into three ade classes, the open concept od has an added advantage of the mature children helping the er child to understand the various epts or ideas being presented.

h program encompasses a six cycle and is taught by task forces proximately six teachers under the nship of Rev. Cooper.

h task force has a special theme their activities and lessons spread ver the six week cycle. The task conducts meetings every Monday ng to work out the following Sunday ram.

ne topics thusfar included in the church school have been the "Life Jesus", HIGHLIGHTING THE TISM, "How the Church Came To the beginning of the Christian ment, which included the construc- of huge catacombs in the learning r where 'Christians could hide and ship.

"Advent of Jesus" cycle included ing nativity and the "Need for the Church Today" dealt strongly with mission, at home and abroad.

Still another, "Deciding Values" dealt with the Commandments, rules to live by, and values such as family, patriotism, love and trust. The highlight of this particular cycle was role-playing in dealing with the fair and the unfair.

Involvement plays a key part in the program at the Jensen Beach Church School as the children become active participants in the scriptures through role-playing. For example, in one phase of the "Deciding Values" cycle it was observed that 'being trusted' made more of an impression on the children than their 'doing the trusting'.

Several of the cycles have included writing articles and taking pictures for their own church school newspaper with the children themselves doing the editing and photography. Todate, they have 'edited and published' the Jerusalem Times, the Tower Chime and they are presently working on the Creation Chronicle in conjunction with this six week's cycle entitled "Ongoing Creation".

The activities for the current cycle are based on the Genesis I "First Creation Story" and each week's program is built around a day in creation.

On the first Sunday a huge tent made of sheets was erected in the learning center to create a 'void'. Each child was asked to spend five minutes inside the tent alone for the purpose of experiencing nothingness.

Housed in the "we do not touch area" of the learning center is a small incubator containing quail eggs which should, if all goes well, hatch on May 8, the day in the series when birds were created.

While the children are involved in making a movie of the days of creation, this cycle also includes astronomy, a science laboratory, complete with microscopes, an Undersea World, Potting Shed, Research area and a Media Center.

The emphasis placed on all things being God's gifts to us and just how great those gifts are. This series will conclude with the creation of animals and man on earth and the final Sunday will, according to Rev. Cooper, stress ecology.

The task force members have adapted very well to the new system. They have agreed that while the conventional church school is much easier to teach, the open concept program offers a real challenge and is the most exciting thing they have ever been involved with.

Some teachers went so far as to say they felt they learned more than the children. This might very well be true since all task force members spend many hours per week in research and preparation aside from their Monday evening sessions and the actual hour or so spend on Sunday morning at the learning center.

As for the children, Rev. Cooper said, "Their response has been excellent. They feel the freedom of choice and choose to learn more in such a program."

With larger churches throughout the country leaning more and more towards this method of teaching, the open concept idea being adapted to church schools is not entirely new, but it is the first in this area.

The Jensen Beach Church School program is unique in that it is not a prepared curriculum. The entire program has been designed and worked out by Rev. Cooper right here in the local church.

Rev. Cooper is a Christian education specialist. He has a BA in psychology from Ohio State University, and a Master of Divinity degree from Boston University. He has been a minister for thirteen years, serving churches in Ohio, Massachusetts, New York and Florida.

His background in the learning center design comes from two seminars in continuing education at Princeton.

The open concept cycles at the Jensen Beach Community Church School have been so successful and created so much interest among the adult membership at the church that tentative plans are being made for two six-week cycles to be held during the summer. . . structured for all ages. The dates for the summer courses will be announced later.

GOOD FIGHT—This 35 pound 4 ounce African Pompano gave Emil Bragalla of Stuart a tussle last week when he hooked it in the surf at Blowing Rocks in Robe and while fishing for standard pompano. "I thought I had a shark on," Bragalla will tell you that fish did what it wanted to do. It took me 30 minutes to get it in," he said. Just 20 pound line parted from wear just after landing the fish.

'Boyfriend' is Barn Theatre Summer Set

STUART—The joyful musical satirizing the manner of the 1920's, "The Boyfriend", has been chosen as the summer attraction at the Barn Theatre.

This is the revue that so hilariously lampooned the era of speakeasies, the Charleston, hip flasks and Rudy Vallee, that it ran for well over three and a half years in London, where it was born.

New Yorkers thronged to it for over sixty weeks after its opening night on Broadway.

"The Boyfriend" was no mere Broadway success, but a national one. This was proved by the hit the show scores in some 30 other cities that it visited during an 18-month tour, and also by a phenomenal sale of its record album. Elders in search of their lost youth and lost youths in search of their elders' backgrounds made "The Boyfriend" into one of the biggest hits of its time.

The spoof was written by Sandy Wilson. His songs, his plot and his dialogue slyly burlesqued every plot idea, song lyric and tune style that characterized the early jazz

More than just a satire, "The Boyfriend" is entertainment at its best. Casting will take place on May 14, 15, and 16 at The Barn.

The area is has-been these days with the nice refreshing winds to cool the days which make outdoor life even more wonderful. Many of the tourists have returned home and consequently the hustle and bustle and bumper to bumper shopping has come to an end.

We wish our many neighbors having birthdays closing the month of May the best of everything and many more happy days. The celebrants for the month include Clarence Hofelin and Loretta Gentile, May 5; Marybelle Funnell, May 6; Mrs Ramon and Elanor Falb, May 13; Mae Bennett, May 28; Maurice Huggins, May 30, and Ed Hampson on May 31.

We also congratulate our marrie folks celebrating their anniversary during the month. Ralph and Norma Gargo, May 13; Paul and Peggy Kohler, May 20; Salvator and Josephine DeRapio and Frank and Lori Murphy will celebrate it on May 24.

TEN YEARS AGO: The Palm Lake Park Civic Association discussed the proposed $10,000 Homestead Exemption.

Ray and Lucien Goodall had recently landscaped their newly purchased property.

The annual picnic was a success with record attendance.

The Association accepted five new members.

The ten years ago series will be absent from this column until February, 1978 since the correspondent was absent during that same period.... ten years ago.

Virgie Davis has returned home after a stay in the local hospital.

THANK YOU

I wish to thank everyone for the cards, flowers, prayers and visits while I was in the hospital for knee surgery.

I would like to extend a special thanks to the doctors and wonderful nurses for their kindness and excellent care they provided night and day.

This column is by way of saying Thank You" to everyone for acting as a source of information, rumor, speculation and conjecture as a contribution to the column during the past season.

Eastlacks celebrate 53rd

Alice and Harry Eastlack celebrated their 53 wedding anniversary last week, and when I congratulated them, Alice showed me pictures of young David Franklin Heiss, born April 7, proudly being held by his parents, their grandaughter Lynn and her husband Frank.

Last Wednesday sixteen of the group that make the Hawaiian trip together a short time ago, met at the Tiffany Room of Holiday Inn on the ocean for lunch, every one wearing gay, colorful outfits reminiscent of the Islands. Since there were no orchids around, the women wore gardenias in their hair. We had a lot of fun remisicing and each other of things that happened on the trip and looking at pictures we took while there.

In loving recognition of Sis's outstanding job as our guide and mentor, we presented her with a lovely silver locket and chain, suitably engraved, and filled it with our names inscribed.

We had such a good time we are going to repeat it in the fall when we're all back in Florida.

"Big John" Van Schellen lived in our park for many years, and we just heard that his son John died recently. John and his son have been occupying a home in Whispering Palms Mobile Home Park, Sebastian, and you can write to him there.

Alma Wild and Celia Barr are leaving early Sunday morning for a trip to Chicago and its environs. Alma will remain at her home there and Celia will spend Mothers' Day with her mother and sister then fly back to us.

So Nettie Keefer and I hosted a "hen party" for them Friday afternoon on Nettie's lanai, with friends and neighbors Alice Sweet, Carrie Worrell, Alice Willoughby, Irma Meredith and we four present.

Nettie and I gave them a CARE package but admonished that it must not be opened until they are on the road, hope they enjoy eating the contents.

May 4 Alma will be on her way to Yellville, Arkansas for the high school graduation of her grandson Stephen Casetter. But what a way to go! She will be travelling in a mini-home with her daughter Leonora Evertsen and her husband Eugene and their two daughters and sons-in-law, Candice and Dwain Wilburn of Wisc. Janet and Harold Taaberny of Woodale, Ill., and their son Darryl Evertsen and his wife, Gail, of Chicago. Now that is what I call a close family!!!

Isabel and Emerson Ware have been entertaining their son David, his wife Frances and their children, Nancy and Debby, from Glasaboro, N.J. Their daughter Betty and her husband John Enzman are also here from Mullica Hill, N.J. with their sons David and Andrew and the twins Susan and Laurie.

Hazel and Gerald Proctor had a nice visit with their son James prior to his leaving very shortly for a year's stay on a job in Arabia.

Presently they have their son Jeff, his wife Rose, and their daughter Tricia here on vacation from Cerry, Pa.

Good news from the Ritenour home, Herchel, who spent four of five days in the hospital is back home and doing very well.

The Hobby Glass held its last meeting April 26, when we brought a sack lunch and had fruit punch before continuing with our hobbies. It has been a good year for us, and we all look forward to meeting again later in the year.

...rauel ineligible, out of regional track

By Donnie Wilkie

...T PALM BEACH–The Martin ...Track Tigers' only hope for a ...ance state championship berth, ...rauel, was entangled in the most ...of many controversies involving ...n, and was ruled ineligible for the ...championships, held at Twin ...last Friday.

...at one of two MCHS seniors who ...to run in the state event, was not ...d to compete in the two-mile run ...was discovered that his name did ...ear on the eligibility list used for ...eet. But this wasn't discovered ...fter the Tigers' arrival at Twin Lakes, so the options available to Coach Ron Ashley were few and far between.

Ashley, who is resigning as track and cross-country coach at the school effective at the end of the season, said later, "It's a shame. John was one of the hardest workers on the team, and he deserved a shot at the state tournament."

One of the options available to Ashley was to contact Floyd Lay, Executive Secretary of the Florida High School Activities Association. But Lay was not in the state during the meet, and therefore could not be reached.

Strickel was one of the four favorites in the two-mile event. Ironically, another favorite, Art Peacock of John I. Leonard, also could not compete at his best. Peacock was ill before the race and dropped out on the second of eight laps.

James Fields of Twin Lakes won the event with a time of 9:54, with Dave Lenz of Lake Worth finishing second with a career-best time of 9:56. Norris Langbehn, another Tiger, finished sixth, but only on the top four qualified for the regionals, being held at John I. Leonard this Friday.

Yet another Martin County two-miler was unable to compete, as Nick Mosezar, clearly the second-best in the event for the team, was suspended from the team a week earlier. Mosezar's best time in the event this season was a 10:32, which compared against the time of the fourth place finisher is seconds better.

The highlight of the meet was the 100-yard performance of Fort Pierce Central's Robert Weathers. Weathers, who had peaked early in Miami, showed he definitely would be tough in post-season competition, posting a 9.47 in the 100-yard dash. Alvaro Sims was second, representing Lake Worth.

Hollis Langbehn, the other Tiger with a chance to make the state title tilts, stumbled to a fourth-place finish in the 330-yard intermediate hurdles. Langbehn, who has already signed a scholarship with the University of Florida, looked shaky with a dismal time.

In other action, Dock Luckie, also bound for U.F., won both the shotput and discus throw with no problem. Luckie heaved the disc 199 feet, and shot the put 66 feet, 1 inch. The 225-pound Fort Pierce Cobra was coming off a national record of 202-9 in the disc, achieved during the conference championships at Leonard.

Bill Hascup became the only Tiger distance man to make the regionals as he finished fourth in the half-mile run with a time of 2:05. His best in this event is 2:03, a time good enough to give Leonard's Jim Maroe the District title.

In girls action, Mary Komara qualified for the state tourney at Gainsville by finishing second in the discus. Komara threw a 116-10, a personal best. Laura Flinn and Cathy Caulkins were the other Tigers entered but they could not climb the final stepping stone to the state event. Flinn ran the 440-yard dash, and Caulkins was in the 880.

Colt making late charge

JENSEN BEACH–After a shaky start, the Kermit's Colt Leaguers are rising to the occasion with a late first half charge toward the championship. But with three early season losses, Kermit's must now win all their remaining three first half games, then hope someone knocks off Hobe Sound.

Kermit's made it two in a row with a 4-0 victory over Port Salerno. Brent Laycock came alive on the mound, scattering seven hits en route to the shutout victory.

The win evens Kermit's record at 3-3 with three games remaining on the first half schedule.

Last week's Player of the Week, Ricky Bright, continued his perfect streak at the plate with a double in the second inning Bright is now 5-for-5, with three doubles, a home run, and a single. Unfortunately for the Kermit's fans who were hoping to see Bright launch one over the fences at Langford Park, he was walked three times.

Kermit's got two runs in the first inning, as Robbie McLendon singled in a run, and David Borchine knocked one in on a ground ball. The home team got another marker in the second, as Bright doubled in David Kenny.

The only other score in the game came in the fourth inning, as McLendon singled in the start of his two rbi's. McLendon had two hits for the winners.

Kermit's had numerous opportunities to score more runs than they did, as they left the bases filled twice. All told, the Jensenites left 11 men stranded. Fine defensive work in the outfield by Port Salerno's Pat McNulty and David McCaughey also held down the powerful Kermit's offense.

Laycock struck out five while only walking one in earning his second win of the year. Kermit's, on the other side of the coin, drew seven free tickets to first base.

Ronnie Rydell smacked a double for the winning team, while David Caswell and two runs for the invading Port Salerno forces. Walter Spencer was the losing pitcher, and he could barely manage to get an out against the potent Kermit's attack.

Kermit's next meets Hobe Sound in a critical game for Kermit's. If they win, they'll be right back in the thick of the Colt League race with a 4-3 record.

Holiday Outlines

BY RUTH BOWES 334-4946

Assisted by Elizabeth O'Donnell and Peg Ray

It is that time of year again when many of our park residents depart for homes in the north. Among those who left the area last week were Charley and Carole Ullmann, New York, Artie and Lishee Smith, Virginia, Carl and Bertha Ouellette, Mass. Arnold Gile left for Salt Lake City, Utah, to visit a brother and his place to take in the Grand Canyon before returning to his summer home in Connecticut, Mrs.

A farewell get-together was held at the home of Wes and Ruth Arbe's for Bob and Erma Barton who left the following day on a tan week trip which will take them to Alaska to visit a son on their way home to Maine. Other guests attending the party were Arne and Lishee Smith, Les and Cathy Ullmann, Don and Gen Picone and Joe Pittinger.

The Longs, Nagys, Bermans and Helen Allison enjoyed a chicken barbecue with all the trimmings Sunday. The aroma was "stumpin".

Mrs. Alva Bloom of Jensen Beach visited Mr. and Mrs. E. Bowes over the weekend.

SOS! Please send news letters from your vacation spots and summer homes so we can keep columns interesting during the summer months.

Congratulations are extended to the following couples in Holiday Out who will be celebrating their anniversary during the month: Lou and Jim Bathrick, May 5; Helen and Clarence Koschgun, Pauline and Herb Rough, and Betty and Bob Lanter will all celebrate on May 13.

Birthday greeting to: Maria Dangelmaier, Bucky Bergmann, May 8, Grace Madden, May 8, Edwina Palmer and Bill Moore, May 9, and George Baron who will celebrate on May 11.

+++

Holiday Outers spirit of helpfulness and concern was evidenced when Dick Dublon arranged the loan of a walker and Hal Holman obtained sturdy trailer steps for their friend and neighbor Merrill Webb. Webb is expected to return from the hospital very soon.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer of New York have spent a week here visiting their friends the B. Youngs.

Ruth and Wes Arbe and Alice Perrault took their friends, the Parsons, to the airport Friday. The Parsons promise to return next year. They love the area.

Thirty-three Holiday Outers went to dinner Saturday night at Gentleman Jims. They enjoyed the meal and had much fun.

Joe Van Sant is now home from the hospital and full of jokes as usual. Joe and Edna are expecting a visit from their daughter and will then be leaving together for the trip home to Delaware, for the summer months.

+++

The Gardenia men, Artie Smith took us two cars of cars with him when he went to Virginia. Wonder if we will hear what kind of farmer he is?

+++

Ethel and Paul Pinkiewicz have been in a whirl since their daughter Marie Marcantine flew down from Williamantic, Conn. for a visit. They spent two days to Fort Orange on their way down. Marie loves the beach and shell collecting in the early morning. The family also spent time in West Palm seaeon snocioins and sightseeing. They enjoyed several dinners in the local restaurants.

Chamber to tell DOT to 'get off its duff'

BY ROBBIE BEDELL

JENSEN BEACH–The Florida Department of Transportation (DOT) may get a letter demanding it "get off its duff and erect a sign stating "Jensen Beach" at the Port St. Lucie interchange of the Florida Turnpike.

The Board of Directors of the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce Monday expressed its dissatisfaction with the DOT in refusing to grant a request for the sign.

In two recent letters, the DOT has refused the sign request, each stating different reasons who it cannot be granted.

"Are we going to turn belly up?" Director Al Epstein said. "Are we weak individuals? I think we should stand up, go to Tallahassee and rant and rave and kick our feet if we have to to get our way."

Epstein asked why such private institutions as Disney World have signs along the turnpike while public taxpaying communities such as Jensen Beach do not.

"Why in the world do we have to sit back while they say we don't exist," he said, "while everyone in this room is paying their dollars in taxes. Our voice means something."

Chamber President Jack Klett agreed with Epstein.

Klett said the issue had been turned over to the Martin County Commission but so far he has heard no feedback on the matter.

"It's time to lay off the politics," Klett said. "Either we can do it or we can't."

Director L.D. Kirkpatrick said that as many as 16,000 people are affected by not having the sign put up.

The fact that we have a federal post office here is a fact that we exist," he said. "Who cares if our limits are defined or not."

One of the reasons the DOT gave in the first letter was the sign request could not be granted because Jensen Beach is not incorporated and, therefore, not a defined area.

The chamber and residents of Jensen Beach want the sign at the Port St. Lucie Interchange so travelers will not have to travel to the Stuart exit, as they have in the past, and double-back north to get to Jensen Beach.

The great white heron

This seems like a nice place

So this is Commercial Street. Friendly little place...and the merchants seem so nice. I'll just stroll around.

SUMMER VISITOR–When this great white heron came to town to visit, Mirror News Editor Robbie Bedell followed her around to see where visitors go. She loved the shops, the friendly merchants, the other tourists, and promised to stay around to enjoy the beaches, causeway and the beautiful Indian River.

No right on red

Hold it...that three-wheel bike may not stop...oh, yes she did. That's nice. Now, back to the Indian River for lunch.

Settlers will meet Saturday

JENSEN BEACH–Just an old fashioned get together and the renewing of friendships will be the order of the day for the annual meeting and picnic of Early Settlers of the Lower Indian River Area to be held Saturday, May 14, in Jensen Beach.

More cops for Point?

SEWALL'S POINT–If all goes as planned, the Town of Sewall's Point could have a larger police force next year.

Sewall's Point Town Commissioner Earl "Scrappy" Crawford said last week that controversy concerning a possible gate to the south end of the town led to the idea of a larger police force.

Crawford said if the millage of the town were raised to take in an added $35,000 per year, the existing force could be boosted from two to four men. If the police budget went up $48,000, three new men could be hired.

Could I be dressed wrong?

People here are so nice. But they seem to stare at me. Perhaps I should have something different for my walk.

Inboards race Saturday-Swan

Sailfish Regatta week continues after exciting outboard races

STUART–The Randy Tilton Memorial Regatta held last Sunday at the Stuart Causeway attracted a crowd of more than 1,500 spectators eager to watch the thrills of high speed outboard racing boats.

Sponsored by Frances Langford's Outrigger Resort and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Evinrude, the race attracted nearly 80 boats from around the United States.

Spectators drank soft drinks and beer and gorged themselves with iced watermelon to keep cool in the sweltering sun of the causeway.

Despite the heat, fans stayed to watch the 11 classes of outboard racing boats compete against one another.

The race was the first boating competition of this year's Tenth Annual Sailfish Regatta.

Also held this weekend in celebration of the regatta was a racquetball tournament at the Stuart Racquetball Courts.

Jensen Beach's Bobby Driscoll took first place in the Men's A division of the competition and John O'Connor, also of Jensen Beach, took the Men's B singles.

The Men's C singles were taken by Chris Lynch.

Men's doubles were won by two Fort Pierce residents.

The mixed doubles were won by Lori Johnson and Bobby Driscoll.

Stuart Chamber of Commerce Executive Director Ray Navitsky called the tourna ment "very successful."

As of Tuesday, competitors in shuffleboard and tennis were still battling it out.

On Wednesday night, the Martin County High School Band will perform at the Stuart Band Shell on East Ocean Blvd.

Also on Wednesday, a bowling tournament is expected to begin at Jensen Lanes.

On Friday there will be the Florida Sports Media Golf Tournament at Crane Creek Country Club and an Antique Car Show from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. at Ocean East Mall. There will also be a Square Dance Exhibition at the Mall at 7:30 p.m., Friday.

Saturday, plan to be at U.S. 1 north of the Roosevelt Bridge to watch the Sailfish Regatta, where inboards will race at speeds upwards of 100 miles per hour. Again, on Sunday at noon the big boats will race. The Sunday events will be preceded by an air exhibition by aerobatic pilots Bill Waxler and John Lilberg. The air event will begin at 11:45 a.m.

KEEPING COOL–Spectators at the Randy Tilton Memorial Regatta Sunday found a variety of ways to watch the races. This couple kept away from the sweltering heat of the causeway and cooled it on chairs in the river.

Tryouts are scheduled for 'The Boyfriend'

STUART–Tryouts for the Martin County Players' production of "The Boyfriend" will be held Saturday, May 14; Sunday, May 15; and Monday, May 16, at The Barn Theatre on Ocean Boulevard.

"The Boyfriend" is a nostalgic spoof of the musical comedies of the 1920's. More than just a satire, the show is at once funny and endearing as it recaptures the real entertainment values of the 20's.

Performance dates are set for July and August.

"The Boyfriend" features a diversity of characters. Director Ray Hilton is looking for five young ladies, age 17 or thereabouts, and five young men in their early 20's, all of whom can sing and dance. Other parts include a woman of "mysterious years" with a good singing voice, a dignified or stuffy English gentleman who can sing, a ladies' man of considerable years and his long suffering wife, and a man and woman of any age whose main interest is dancing the tango.

Musicals require musicians. All interested musicians (particularly saxophone and banjo players) are invited to try out on the above mentioned dates.

Tryouts are friendly and open to all, and no parts are pre-cast. Other volunteers are needed as well, for hammering, sewing, gathering props, painting, and many other phases of production. Anyone who is willing to work is always welcome and needed at The Barn.

VA is not welfare

BY REP. SKIP BAFALIS

WASHINGTON—Is the Veterans Administration in danger of being swallowed up by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare?

There are some in Washington who see just such a move in some of the statements coming from the new administration.

Everyone knows President Carter is committed to a reorganization of the federal bureaucracy in an effort to make it more manageable.

However, the question of welfare reform and reorganization has apparently been turned over to HEW Secretary Joseph Califano. And Califano, in an announcement carried in the Federal Register, defined welfare as "income maintenance ... including ... Veterans' compensation, and income assistance ... including Veterans' pensions."

I don't know where Secretary Califano gets his ideas of what VA benefits and VA pensions are, but they aren't welfare.

A monthly check to a man who lost his arm or his leg charging ashore on a South Pacific atoll, storming the beach at Normandy, braving North Korea's cold winters, or dodging punji sticks in Vietnam is not welfare. It's a nation trying in some small measure, to repay a great sacrifice.

The same holds true of VA pensions. It's a nation's way of saying thanks for guarding the gates for many, many years.

To lump these benefits with those who get food stamps and welfare checks because they'd rather be on the dole than work is an affront to those who have served their country faithfully and well.

Unfortunately, this administration appears to put very little emphasis on serving your country.

I can easily understand the concern on the part of veterans' organizations. After all, HEW is far from the most efficient department in this city, a community not exactly noted for efficiency.

Practically every individual to hold the post of Secretary of HEW has come away complaining the department is too cumbersome to really manage, too diverse to be really well run.

HEW is also the agency which, not too long ago, spent $19,300 on a study of why children fall off tricycles – only to learn that three-wheeled vehicles just aren't as stable as those with a wheel in each of four corners. The study also showed that youngsters of tricycle-riding age haven't really obtained all their motor skills and, therefore, are more prone to fall or tip over.

No wonder the veterans are concerned. I would be too.

The VA isn't perfect. But for 46 years, it's done its job and done it very well.

That's more than you can say for HEW.

So, rather than disband VA and give its functions to HEW, let's disband HEW and let the VA run its programs.

PSL parents raise 7,000 for portables

BY ALICE HICKEY

PORT ST. LUCIE–As another alternative to busing fourth and fifth graders out of the overcrowded Port St. Lucie Elementary School next fall, citizens will proposition the St. Lucie County School Board to split the costs of portable classrooms as a solution to the problem, with one week, they have collected better than $6,800 to add strength to their proposal.

Mrs. James Wallace, president of the Parent-Teachers, Students & Friends (PTSAF) organization, was slated to present the proposal just hours after The Mirror went to press Tuesday night.

According to extensive research done by Mrs. Wallace and her committee, 12 portable classrooms will be needed at the Port St. Lucie School.

There are presently two vacant portables at the St. Lucie Middle School that can be moved to the local site at a cost of $4,800, Mrs. Wallace said, adding that that was the price quoted to her, but she was reasonably certain the school board could contract for a better price. These two portables are one room each.

The five portables, two rooms each, can be leased from the Econo Trailer Leasing Service in West Palm Beach. These portables are constructed to meet the building standards of the school board and can be leased the first year for a total cost of $20,000, which includes $3,000 delivery and $3,000 for setting them up. The second year cost would be reduced to $9,000.

"So far, this brings the total cost of adding 12 portable classrooms to $28,800," Wallace said.

"In continuing with her financial statistics, Mrs. Wallace said that it would cost the school board approximately $18,000 each year to bus the children from Port St. Lucie. $9,000 of this will be returned at the close of the year through federal funds.

"We will also cost approximately $4,000 to transition the present classrooms at the Port St. Lucie Middle School to accommodate those children being bused.

"According to Mrs. Wallace's figures, it will cost the school board roughly an additional $15,800 to go the portable classroom route, and this is the figure the parents in Port St. Lucie are willing to pay more than split to keep their fourth and fifth graders at the local school.

"Of that $15,800, we are asking the school board to pick up only $7,500, and we will provide the balance of $8,300," she said.

Mrs. Wallace, or someone from her dedicated committee, has contacted every school board member individually within the past week to go over the proposal.

"As far as could be determined, each school board member's reaction and comments sounded favorable. I believe the whole thing hinges on whether or not we can raise the money....and I think that point has been proven beyond a shadow of a doubt," Mrs. Wallace told The Mirror Tuesday.

The fund raising drive was kicked off just last week with a $500 donation from Mike Naser, who has two children attending the local school. The response to the flyers sent home with each child asking parents to support the fund drive by pledging a $20 donation was highly successful and, according to Mrs. Wallace, the local realtors came through with sizable donations.

This will be the second proposal the PTS&F group has presented to the St. Lucie County School Board since the decision was made during a March 22 meeting to bus the children.

The first proposal, made at the April 12 meeting, was for double sessions. At that time the school board stood firm on its busing decision.

"From the very beginning, Mrs. Wallace has maintained they were not out to fight the school board.

"We intend to work with the board members, in anyway we can, to solve this situation, but our purpose is to keep our little fourth and fifth graders here in their own school," she concluded.

To build another elementary school in Port St. Lucie would cost an estimated $2 million, according to school officials. The present school was constructed at a cost of $1.5 million just three years ago.

When the Port St. Lucie School was opened in early 1975, it was designed to house 720 students in grades kindergarten through five.

When the doors opened in 1976 there were 670 students enrolled and by March, that enrollment had climbed to 793.

Exchange Student will visit Finland

BY ALICE HICKEY

While the exact dates of the trip have yet to be finalized, there is a young lady in Port St. Lucie who is busy making her own plans and preparations for a six week trip to Finland as an exchange student.

Ann Broom, 16 year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mel Broom, will go to Finland under the sponsorship of the Port St. Lucie Lions Club Youth Exchange Program. During her stay she will be residing with a "Lion' family somewhere in Finland. Students and their parents will find out during a meeting scheduled for May 21 at the St. Lucie Middle School the final details of the trip.

ANN BROOM

Organized just three short years ago, the Port St. Lucie Lions Club hosted two young Finish girls last summer, however, Ann will be the first exchange student sponsored by the local club as part of the International program.

With a choice of eith Japan or Finland, Ann Broom chose Finland.

"I preferred Finland over Japan mainly because I was afraid Japan would be exactly opposite and perhaps a bit backward from what we are accustomed to in our country. While I do not expect Finland to be the same as our country, I don't think the differences will be quite so drastic," she said.

Ann also had two more reasons for selecting Finland as her destination.

"My brother spent some time at a convention in Switzerland several years ago and the pictures he sent home were positibely beautiful. I anticipate the scenery in Finland being much the same, I never dreamed I would be able to go there. . . .ever," she said with much enthusiasm.

Ann's second reason was the language. She has been given the opportunity to learn a bit of the Finnish language before she departs from Port St. Lucie.

Mrs. Bill STrout, a member of the Lioness Club, who speaks several languages, including Finnish, has volunteered to teach Ann as much of the language as possible between now and the time she leaves on her venture, probably the last week in June.

"I am excited and delighted to have the opportunity of learning at least some of the Finnish phrases before I get over there." Ann said during a recent interview.

While Ann looks forward to her trip and the experience with much anticipation, she does readily admit to having one fear.

"I have never been in an airplane before, and I am frankly a bit frightened to fly, but I suppose this will pass as the time nears. I surely hope so, anyway."

"I am so anxious to go, and I am looking forward to meeting my foster family. Being able to accept them as my family will present a real challenge to me in getting used to their customs," she said.

"I understand the average temperature in Finland is sixty degrees. That will certainly be different. I prefer the sun, but I really won't object to the cooler weather."

"I am grateful to the Lions for accepting me. This is a fantastic opportunity, a once in a lifetime chance, and I am thankful to the Lions for starting this program in the local club," she said.

Ann is a tenth grade student at Ft. Pierce Central High School, a member of the Leo Club, and was recently accepted into the Keyette Club at school. Her hobbies consist of macrame and general crafts.

Ann resides with her parents at 426 Tranquilla Avenue in Port St. Lucie.

Council ditches licensing law

PORT ST. LUCIE–In rapid fire order, the City Council Tuesday moved through a nineteen item agenda which included a sudden death for a proposed ordinance licensing the distributors of shopping guides, handbills and flyers within the city.

Instead of the proposed ordinance, which has been the object of much criticism, the Council approved the final draft of a letter urging distributors use care in circulating their printed matter.

The proposed ordinance was introduced originally by former Mayor Schuyler Sharpe, who complained of seeing as many as four or five shoppers or handbills in a driveway. While the Councilmen have agreed they did not want their city littered, particularly with handbills being left at vacant homes, they were at odds over the magner in which the practice would be stopped.

In an effort to "Keep Port St. Lucie Beautiful and Safe", residents have also been asked to cooperate by notifying the local shopping guide distributors when they intend to be absent from their homes for an extended length of time.

In other action the Council

PROCLAIMED the week of May 15 as Juvenile Diabetes Week, urging all citizens to join with the Juvenile Diabetes Foundation in efforts to focus public attention on educational services, proper treatment and research of this dreaded disease.

The Juvenile Diabetes Week will kick off with a three month drive in the area which will end with a dance to be held at Sandpiper Bay on Sept. 24. It was also noted that 87 per cent of the funds collected benefit advanced research.

APPOINTED Milton Reidel and Hughes Brininger to the city's planning and zoning board for a three year term.

RE-APPOINTED Vaughn Lewis, Clyde Blunt, Henry Sewell and Vernon Forrar to the planning and zoning board for an additional three years.

AUTHORIZED the city manager to submit a call for bids for one sub-compact vehicle. Sealed bids will be opened before the City Council on Tuesday, May 24, at 9 a.m. in City Hall.

APPROVED a resolution appointing Catherine Merritt as Deputy City Clerk.

PASSED a resolution extending the time of the Districting Commission to complete its work in defining four Port St. Lucie election districts for the municipal election in 1979, for a period of 60 days from May 4.

POSTPONED a discussion of possible rental of portable classrooms for the Port St. Lucie Elementary School. Mrs. Robert Post will present her proposal during the May 17 workshop meeting.

PASSED a resolution opposing the financial disclosure bill now pending before the Florida Legislature. Certified copies of the resolution will be forwarded to all legislative delegates and Governor Reubin Askew. The resolution points out that such a legislative act would not be in the best interest of good municipal government in that the results would dissuade responsible and capable individuals from accepting such public appointment.

Sandpiper receives 4-star

PORT ST. LUCIE–Sandpiper Bay has again been named the recipient of the Mobil Four-Star Award, one of the country's prestigious and coveted honors. It is the sixth year the resort has been so honored.

The four-star rating is published in the Mobil Travel Guide, one of the nation's leading guides to dining, lodging and motoring, providing motorists with virtually everything they need to know about traveling throughout the states.

The four-star rating is a distinction Sandpiper Bay shares with only 28 other resorts in the nation.

The rating is based on the resort's spaciousness, luxuriousness and quality. Sandpiper Bay's exceptional recreation facilities were among the more than 100 items covered by the Travel Guide's inspectors.

"We have no idea who the inspectors are or when they are here," explained Bill Pullen, general manager of the resort.

The Mobil Travel Guide, published by Rand McNally, features detailed maps, concise descriptions of more than 4,000 cities and towns in 48 states, and appraisals of rated establishments.

While delighted with Sandpiper Bay's four-star rating, Pullen stressed, "Our goal is to get into the five-star category. We have the potential and it may take a few years, but we'll make it."

Homemakers will install at Wednesday luncheon

PORT ST. LUCIE–A covered dish luncheon will be held in conjunction with the installation of officers of the Beautiful Waters Homemakers Club on Wednesday, May 12, at the Port St. Lucie Community Center, at 12:30 p.m.

Mrs. Margarite Brock, director of the St. Lucie County Home Extension Service, will install the following to serve in 1977-78:

Shirley Hazell, president; Esther Hannan, vice president; Florence Hunt, secretary; Cass Moncure, treasurer; Betty Jones, council representative.

Members of the board will be Mary Reed and Thelma Quick, membership chairmen; Olpha P olieoka and Emily Nowicki, hospitality; Billie Richardson, sunshine; Ethel Nickelsen, telephone; Celia Levinson, publicity.

Each member will be permitted to bring guest. The entree for the luncheon will be provided by the club and there will be a small charge for each guest.

The Tuesday workshops will continue all summer with Mrs. Helen Eberlee as chairman. This year's summer project will be a hand-made Honey Bee design patchwork quilt in soft tones to suit Florida decor. The quilt will be a prize to be raffled at the 1978 Spring Festival and Bazaar which benefits the Port St. Lucie Community Center.

Lucky Charms end year

BY BETH MARTIN, Sub. Reporter

PORT ST. LUCIE–The last meeting of the year was held May 5 at the home of Beth Martin for the Lucky Charms 4H Club of Port St. Lucie. A records workshop was the program.

During the business session members decided to participate in several coming events. On Sunday, May 15, the club will worship together at the PSL United Methodist Church, the church of their president, Beth.

On May 21, several members plan to bring records at the county event. June 5 will be the county awards night and June 26 will be the county 4H Horse Show. Members will attend camp at Lake Placid July 5-8.

The following members volunteered to get sponsors during May for the Horse Show: Kathi and Vicki Ewing, Maggie Bigge, Beth, Renee Hebert, Sonya Goins and Susan Petrie. They will also bake cupcakes and help in the concession stand on June 26.

The president announced that the executive committee will serve as the nominating committee for next year.

News and racing is in Norman Alley's blood

BY ROBBIE BEDELL

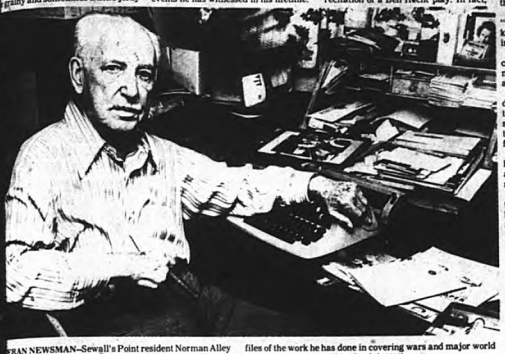
SEN BEACH–Remember when ed to go to the movies and ding the show, were little shorts what was going on in the far rs of the world?

y were in black and white. They grainy and sometimes a little jerky and were called newsreels.

Norman Alley, a quiet, cigar-smoking resident of Sewall's Point made many of those newsreels, traveling with his cameras to the biggest news stories of the day, and the newsreel experiences are only a small part of the numerous events he has witnessed in his lifetime.

"I lived in Chicago and in 1910 I got a job as a copyboy on the Chicago Tribune," he recalls. "The men there then were the best kind of teachers. Ring Lardner was a dear friend of mine."

Listening to him speak about his early days in Chicago is like hearing a recitation of a Ben Hecht play. In fact, he was a friend of Hecht, the Chicago newspaperman-turned playwright, who, lately had a rebirth with the making of the movie "The Front Page".



ERAN NEWSMAN–Sewall's Point resident Norman Alley a break in his study after culling through his immense files of the work he has done in covering wars and major world events since the first decade of the 20th century.

WAR PHOTOGRAPHER–Norman Alley is shown here with war correspondents, filming a report for Edward R. Murrow on Porkchop Hill in Korea.

There are photographs with him filming and interviewing soldiers in China, Korea and war-torn cities in Europe.

But this is a fraction of Alley's life. While manager of a Hearst bureau in Chicago he became deeply involved in the racing of midget autos.

"I was a nut on auto racing," he said. "I had a cousin who raced when I was knee-high to a grasshopper and I just got into it. It just came naturally."

While still pursuing a full-time news career, Alley organized winter-time midget auto races indoors in a Chicago armory.

Alley recalls that the health department checked the armory and told him he would have to make some sort of better ventilation of the building to rid the air of gas fumes accumulating from the racers' engines.

Being familiar with airplane motors, he obtained two of them with propellers and created and in-and-out exhaust system.

"We used to turn them on at the same time the races started. The noise would blend with the engines of the cars. Oh, they loved the noise," he chuckled.

At one time, simultaneous with his news work, Alley ran or sanctioned eight racing tracks in the midwest. He even organized races at Soldier Stadium in Chicago, one of the biggest outdoor arenas in the world.

'I was a nut on auto racing...'

-Alley

In the beginning of midget auto racing there was no such thing as sanctioned drivers. Anyone who was interested in the sport could get a group together and go out and race. Alley saw a growing sport, growing in popularity and in injuries, and saw a need to have some sort of regulation. He organized the midgets into legitimate groups for the safety and good of racing.

"It was for the good of the sport," he said. "I was a fan of the sport. Other people had tried to do it, but they didn't know how."

Alley explained midget auto racers were about the size of a normal twin bed. They raced on short tracks.

"The point was, what could you do with a machine this size to make it faster and win more money," he said. "They would run a 10-mile course in about seven or eight minutes."

One time Alley bought a Studebaker President, capable of traveling 100 miles per hour. Charles Ford had just bought a Cord and the two challenged each other to a race on a set course. A $500 prize stood on the race and the Chicago police blocked off traffic to make room for the race. Alley beat Ford by seconds at speeds near 100 mph. That was in 1935.

He is a member of the One Hundred Mile an Hour Club, among the first to go over 100 mph at Indianapolis Speedway, along with his old-time friend Eddie Rickenbacher, Lee Oldfield and others. They were the top racing drivers of the day.

Despite the time and effort Alley put into auto racing, he was still dedicated to a career in the news business.

During World War I, he flew as a photographer in Rickenbacher's unit over Europe.

"I had Carte Blanche to move from one unit to another. Anything they wanted, I got," he said. "I was an officer specifically there to see that the American public got to see what was going on in France."

the management there quite worried about the missing blanket, fearful they had had an accident.

Just before the start of the entertainment, Jill Morris, chairman of Travel, told the members of some of the trips in store for them next year, starting with the Jungle Queen, Friday, Dec. 16. Many trips were mentioned and members had their suggestions, too, so a questionnaire will be worked out for an early fall meeting.

Lottie Lee DeBerry, the lively and vivacious Fun 'n' Games chairman, provided an excellent, fun program.

THE EXCOM meets the fourth week will decide if during the summer the picnic and ExCom can be combined giving officers, etc., a three week vacation each month. Also, there are four controversial items to be decided that should have the attention of all members.

REGULAR MEETING, the last of the season, will be a fun meeting similar to that bunclinger of last March. There will be some orientation of new members, some entertainment, and a social time with homemade cake and iced tea; then, a period of questions and answers like what proved so popular last year and a wind-up with prizes and door prizes.

MEALS-ON-WHEELS is still going great guns, even though folks are leaving for the north. And, leaving for the north is making quite a problem for Jim Nixon to get sufficient drivers to cover all the routes and delivery from hospital to distribution point at their library. Jim is constantly revising schedules to fit the personnel changes with Freda Peterkin, Ellen Nixon, Jeannette Levesque, Barney Chase, Elston Lehning, George Levesque and Ralph Brown among much of the time. But more summer replacement drivers are needed or someone will be missing a meal and wonder why. Telephone 334-0758.

THE SWIMMING CLASS has renewed vigor with the following participating last week: the Nixons, Jim and Ellen; Mildred Capasa; Helen Lunchby; Lucy Prohaska; Josephine Nesrsby and Ethel Smith.

GENERALLY, items called to our attention are unpleasant, complaints of some kind (and, by the way, that's what we're here for). Well, this week Mrs. Geo. R. called to say that the $225 refund on their purchase of a new car earned through okay. They had notified us of a problem in getting the refund, a letter was sent to proper authorities, and zip, the refund was on its way.

Port St. Lucie Chapter 2206

The idea of an annual banquet for our chapter has been suggested by some members, so the thought is being aired here to see what the reaction would be. If you have any feeling on the question, one way or the other, let Marie Arluck, phone 334-1561, know about it. If there is enough support for the suggestion, it may be possible to work something out, and we have reached the point now where social get-togethers are worth thinking about.

Some chapters that follow this practice make an award every year to the person who is judged to have rendered outstanding service to older Americans during the past year.

HUGH JENCKS, 878-3854 — ERNIE CURWEN, 334-6758

Last week we mentioned that Director Fred Wiggin was working out the organization chart that is required by national headquarters. He has not completed this task, and it occurred to us that some of the newer members might not be familiar with the officers and committees, so here is the complete list:

Officers are Fred Wiggin, president; Maria Arluck, 1st vice president; Morgan Jones, 2nd vice president; James Kearney, 3rd vice president; Hugh Jencks, 4th vice president; Esther Thompson, treasurer; Geraldine Casperson, assistant treasurer; Hester Pfau, recording secretary; Muriel Syzak, corresponding secretary.

Eleven committes make up the working force of the chapter. Some of these committees are active the whole year around, while some have once-a-year chores to perform, such as the audit committee and the tax assistance program committee.

Chairing the various committees are Frances Lee, nominating; Morgan Jones, membership; Frank Alexander, legislative; Maurie Arluck, program; Jim Kearney, community service; Bill Armet, travel; Hugh Jencks, publicity; Morgan Jones, ways and means; Gordon Long, transportation; Geraldine Long, homebound; Herb Tschudy, audit; Tom Carlile, tax

Esther Thompson, who in her role as treasurer handles the payment of dues by current and new members, reports that some 50 new members have joined in the past several weeks, putting the membership total at 275.

She also reports that about 25 did not renew because they were moving away, had experienced changes in their personal situations, or for other reasons.

Some new members have not as yet picked up their membership cards. Esther will have them with her at the May meeting and reminds those involved that they should pick them up at that time.

The last of the defensive driving classes for the current season will be given next month. The dates are Monday, June 14; Wednesday, June; Thursday, June 23; and Wednesday, June 22. Classes are at 2 p.m. each of the four days at the Environmental Studies Center in Jensen Beach.

The classes are conducted by Lt. Bill Scott of the Martin County Sheriff's office, and anyone who has taken the course can attest to the liveliness and entertainment of his presentation, in addition to its value to you. Anyone may enroll for the class by calling 287-6400, extension 130.

Gordon Long, chairman of the program, urges that anyone who registers for the class should be sure to attend. He said that last month some 35 signed up and only nine or ten actually attended. This gives the chapter a bad name, so don't sign up unless you fully intend to follow through.

Some hardy souls who recently took trips north and braved the ungracious elements there were happy than ever to return to the balmy climate of Florida. There are many reasons for being grateful for living conditions in this state, not the least of which is the fact that we have no state income tax with fixed incomes, they are a lot less onerous than those in nearly every other state in the country.

The Classroom Teachers Association of St. Lucie County has compiled information on taxes and, while their purpose is to increase taxes so that teachers will get a bigger piece of the pie the data are nevertheless of significance to all.

"Floridians bear the second lightest tax burden in America," the CTA reports. "A family of four making $25,000 a year pays only $386 in combined state and local taxes. Only Louisiana residents pay less. Contrary to popular thought, the property tax burden on Florida residents is also below the national average. Florida ranks 33rd in the nation in property taxes for schools."

Hurry back, Flossie!

Jeff and Susan Tarr came down to help their grandmother, Flossie Roberts, get ready for her trip north to Indiana, where she spends the summer, and brought along their friend Ann. Flossie and the young people went to the Space Center and on the return trip they will stop off at Disney World, Sea World, and visit some friends in Leesburg.

We'll miss you Flossie...hurry back!

Alice Twit got lucky again and won the jackpot at bingo last Tuesday when some of our good neighbors had been inquiring as to the owner thereof, and when he was "Los Alamos, New Mexico" on the rain hornet cover, the mystery was solved. I'm the only one around here who visits New Mexico.

While I was down there, a pretty box containing a corsage of my favorite flowers from my daughter JIM and her family for Mothers' Day was delivered and, since I wasn't home, my good neighbors Alice and Walter Reeder kept them refrigerated for me.

Had a nice letter from Edna May, who is spending a few weeks with her brother Ray Freed and his wife Rosie down in Ft. Lauderdale. She was concerned about her plants, but she need never fear...I take my plant-sitting duties seriously.

Call Jan Dedaker, 334-5855, MaryEllyn can use blood donors. She is still in Jackson Memorial Hospital in Miami.

Lee Price is recovering very well from surgery but is still in Martin Memorial Hospital. Hopefully, he will be home by the time you read this. He really enjoyed the beautiful flowers made into the shape of a yellow mum poodle. Son Lee, Jr., and wife Pat of Miami were here over the weekend to spend Mother's Day with Harriet and cheer up their Dad while he is confined to the hospital. Also, Harriet's cousin and wife, Carl and Margaret Carter came to visit, too.

Dick and Edith Painter enjoyed a short trip in their camper recently. They were at beautiful OkeeTandy on Lake Okeechobee for a few days.

Bud and Yvonne Wienke have returned from their cruise and, although Yvonne brought home a bad cold, they really enjoyed visiting the interesting islands of the Caribbean.

+++

Pot luck dinners are continuing. Please sign up at the Venture Three office or call Fran Tener, if you miss putting your name on the list before you leave after dinner each week. The crowds are good and, as usual, the food plentiful and Oh So Good!

+++

Dick and Fran Tener are having as guests this week Marian and Carl Brock, their friends who live in Port Charlotte.

The Brittains are off on one of their very numerous trips - this time to Nashville. They are certainly a busy, busy couple.

+++

The Shavers had an overflowing house this past weekend with daughter, Mary Branch, son-in-law Rodney, granddaughter Sharon, grandsons Rodney, Jr., and Thomas, with their guests Mike Reed and Robin Day.

I know there were many other visitors around this weekend but, unless I am called or visited, I cannot report all of the news. I like to let all of our absent friends know what is going on, but I must have cooperation and it is impossible to personally contact every person returning to the park to ask for news. Call 334-7714 as that is a good way to say "hello" to all of our good neighbors who have scattered for the summer.

Happy birthday to Bob Smyth, May 16, and anniversary congratulations to Lee and Harriet Price, May 13.

Sposoto heads Legion

JENSEN BEACH–Don Sposoto was elected commander of Jensen Beach American Legion Post 126 at the last Post meeting. Auxiliary officers were also elected at that time.

Officers for 1977-78, in addition to Sposoto, are Dick Neeson, first vice commander; Tom Flanagan, second vice commander; William Herzog, finance officer; Harvey Hiltz, chaplain; Bill Swift, historian; William St. Clair, sergeant-at-arms; William McCabe, adjutant; Lou Villano, service officer; Jack Smouse, judge advocate. Louis Villano, Virgil Rathbone and Virgil Wilson comprise the executive committee.

The horse in the house

JENSEN BEACH–Mirror staffer Pat Baum got an interesting call from the sheriff's department Tuesday.

"Your bull is loose, and is running around," the deputy said.

Pat took care of that, calling a youngster to round up the bull. However, that is not where it all ended.

The sheriff's department called again.

"The bull is back, but your horse is in the house."

Pat realized that it was Tuesday, and neither rain, snow, sleet, gloom of night or horses in the house can keep The Mirror from meeting deadline.

The boy got the horse out of the house, and, at presstime, Pat was working feverishly to finish so that she could return to her home in Port Salerno to check the floor.

WALL OF FIRE–Jensen Beach Volunteer firefighters have their hoses pumping in full force against a roaring inferno during a brush fire in the Savannas Monday. The blaze was the second major Savannas fire this year.

FIRE!

Savannas burn takes 2,000 acres

BY ROBBIE BEDELL

JENSEN BEACH–Although the Jensen Beach area has had some rainfall during the past few weeks, it apparently hasn't been enough to prevent a second major brush fire this year in the Savannas.

The Jensen Beach Fire Department got a call shortly after 9 a.m. Monday for the fire, and shortly afterward, wind bellowed the flames out of control. Smoke was blown westward making it necessary to close both lanes of U.S. 1 just south of Westmoreland Blvd. at Port St. Lucie.

The cause of the blaze is unknown but officials say it's the worst fire in the Jensen Beach are in the last 10 years.

In all, eight fire departments showed up to battle the fire along with several dozen volunteers from the Florida Institute of Technology, and others.

Jensen Beach, Rio, District Two, Port Salerno, Palm City, Tropical Farms, Stuart and the State Division of Forestry responded to the fire.

Martin County Sheriff's Deputies and the Florida Highway Patrol handled traffic at U.S. 1, detouring it along the Jensen Beach Cutoff Road to Indian River Drive. Martin County road equipment and Mosquito Control were also on hand, along with the Port St. Lucie Police Department and Lloyd's Pest Control.

The detour through downtown Jensen Beach, combined with traffic signals darkened by an electricity failure, turned Commercial Street into a snarled mess of trucks and passenger cars.

Firefighters worked tirelessly to try and put out the fire.

Jensen Beach and Rio Departments stayed on the scene until after midnight.

"Rio stayed right along with us mopping things up," Jensen Chief Joe Luciano said.

Although only several persons were treated for smoke inhalation, some firemen had some close calls with the flames.

"At one point the flames were all around us," Jensen Volunteer Steve Reheiser said. "I could feel the flames scorch my hair. I began to see my life passing in front of me. I mean it would have been hour heard off."

A number of Stuart eating establishments donated food and cold drinks to the exhausted firefighters in the afternoon.

Among those which gave foodstuffs were MacDonald's, Wuv's, Sambo's, Lum's and Howard Johnson's.

Although one home, that of Charles Porter, and several beehives were threatened by the fire, firemen kept watch on them and prevented any damage.

BLACKOUT!

SEN BEACH–It wasn't as big or as the famous blackout of New 1965 but, combined with a major ure gave Jensen Beach residents ng to talk about.

bout 10:30 a.m., Monday, as fire nared off to the Savannas to fight stop lights and about every other in town went out after a ction occurred in a relay at the Power and Light Company's Point Nuclear Power Plant.

rking to fight Stuart area manager n Curen, the relay malfunction here caused the St. Lucie Power on Hutchinson Island to try to p for the loss in power at the nd of the state. The surge of down the lines caused a relay to in West Palm Beach. The system signed to go out in such ances rather than have an of power cause the wires to according to Van Curen.

happened was that we had an ate generation in the south end ate for the transmission lines to Van Curen said.

dded that the first time the ity went off it was off for from ree minutes before plants north were able to make up for the lack er in the Jensen Beach area. ble, Van Curen said, the plants e here built back to about three n of their original power when a transmission line crossing the state, for an unknown reason, tripped off. That caused the second blackout which lasted from an hour and fifteen minutes to two hours, depending on your location.

"When you start analyzing it, if only one plant at Turkey Point went off the line, the other two could have provided enough to cover," Van Curen said. "But it ended up tripping off all three units. I figured it to be about 25 per cent of the company's generating power in one concentrated area. When you take out 25 per cent in a concentrated area, you have a problem."

Skyline Square have guest caller

JENSEN BEACH–The Skyline Swinging Square will have a guest caller for their May 21 dance, 7:30 p.m. at the Jensen Beach Elementary School on South Savannah Road.

Cris Vear, a well known international caller, will be the guest. He is English and called in England and Germany before coming to this country. He lives, teaches and calls in Texas.

In Germany, Vear met and called with Dale McClary, the regular caller for the local group. He is now visiting the McClarys before starting on tour, which will include calling at state and national conventions.

All square dancers are welcome. For further information, call 334-3639.

HEAVE HO–At one point during the brush fire in the Savannas Monday, two firefighting units were bogged down in mud and a third, shown here, got stuck trying to pull one of the other two out. Jensen Beach and Rio firemen and Florida Institute of Technology volunteers put their backs into it and managed to push the truck out.

House is gutted

JENSEN BEACH–It was a busy 48 hours for the Jensen Beach Volunteer Fire Department as it responded to a second fire early Tuesday morning after working late in the night extinguishing a fire in the Savannas.

A fisherman fishing the bridge at the Jensen Beach Causeway reported he smelled smoke at about 5:15 a.m. Tuesday, but decided it was just smoldering tinders from the brush fire the preceding day. Later on he still smelled smoke and noticed some coming from an unoccupied two-story structure at New Port Jensen, a new development just east of the Jensen Causeway. Shortly after 6:30 a.m. the fisherman called the Jensen Fire Department.

According to Jensen Beach Fire Chief Joe Luciano, the fire started someplace near a hot water heater burning the inside of the structure.

"I would say the house is a total loss inside," he said.

Four Jensen Beach fire fighting units and a Rio tank truck responded to the call.

Chief Luciano was to meet with the state fire marshall Tuesday afternoon to determine the cause of the blaze.

Scots meet Friday

JENSEN BEACH–The regular meeting of the St. Andrew Society of Florida will be held Friday, May 20, at 7:30 p.m. in Room 222 of the E.F. Hutton Building, Stuart.

All persons interested in Scotland and things Scottish are welcome to attend.

Light plane crashes here

JENSEN BEACH–The Jensen Beach Fire Department reports a light plane crashed in the woods across from the Jensen Beach Elementary School Sunday afternoon, and the pilot escaped serious injury.

According to Fire Chief Joe Luciano, he was called to the scene by the Martin County Sheriff's Department to use his new four-wheeled drive jeep to get to the crash scene. When he got to the plane the chief found Hugo Vargas, the pilot, and brought him out to be taken to the hospital via ambulance.

Luciano reports Vargas was apparently on his solo cross country flight when he became lost and ran out of gas, causing him to come down in the woods.

Vargas was not injured seriously, according to Luciano.

River Road is out for bids

SEWALL'S POINT–The Town of Sewall's Point is accepting bids for the construction of River Road until 3 p.m., Monday, June 6.

Plans for the construction of the road have been completed by Town Engineer Richard Hellstrom and contractors interested in bidding for the job can pick up plans at the town hall.

The River Road, first planned by the founders of the town as an emergency route, has been the subject of controversy among town residents for many years.

The road is planned to run parallel to the existing Sewall's Point Road on the high property on the west side of the peninsula.

The section of the road involved in the bidding begins at High Point at the south end of the town and runs northward to the Riverview subdivision.

RACER–Palm City based owner-driver Bill Darby is taking the bumps of a pounding Jersey Speed Skiff. Here he pilots his skiff with just the prop awash as he competed to place third over-all in the Tenth Annual Sailfish Regatta.

EQUIPMENT–Mrs. Martha Moore, left, stands with Beach Volunteer Fire Department Chief Joe Luciano next to a new Cherokee Jeep. Mrs. Moore donated the emergency equipment carried inside the jeep. The vehicle was purchased with funds collected by the fire department.

The emergency equipment inside the jeep was donated by Auxiliary member Mrs. Martha Moore. The equipment includes portable fire extinguishers, emergency oxygen equipment, air packs, an entry tool, rakes, shovels, lights and other equipment.

A plaque announcing that Mrs. Moore equipped the vehicle has been attached to a window.

Already the jeep has rescued a man downed in an airplane crash and has served in the worst brush fire in Jensen Beach in the last 10 years.

ornography crackdown

BY CONGRESSMAN SKIP BAFALIS

ASHINGTON—Pornography - a ...guaranteed to kick off a heated ...

...re to those liberals who will tell ...pornography is protected by the ... Amendment to the Constitution, ...ondescent which guarantees our ... of speech and our free press.

...n the recent conviction of Larry ..., publisher of Hustler magazine, is ...ed by liberals as the same kind of ...nonest censorship which the USSR ...ission dissidents.

...r does the government to censor ... to allow the government to censor ...gazines and newspapers, or so ... liberals would have us believe. ...ever, that argument is foolish - as ... is contending that by denying a ... the right to holler fire in a crowded ..., we are denying all men the right ...ak out on anything.

... particularly foolish to anyone ... read Hustler, a magazine which can best be described with one word - "garbage".

But that's the argument being raised against all prosecutions carried out under the 1973 U.S. Supreme Court decision which allows local prosecutors to apply local standards to obscenity cases.

The ultra liberals want to go back to the previous standard which forced prosecutors to prove a book, magazine or movie was "utterly without redeeming social value" - a standard as nebulous to define as it is to prove.

They want to be allowed to print and market any kind of sexually explicit material, regardless of how depraved or disgusting.

To reinforce their arguments, they cite the report of the Presidential Commission on Obscenity and Pornography which called pornography relatively harmless and therefore decided all bans on it should be lifted.

But what all this ignores is that there is a more important right which gets violated when the pornographers are given free rein – the right of parents to demand a decent social environment for their children.

And that can't be done in a neighborhood dotted with adult bookstores, x-rated movie houses and nude dancehalls.

Therefore, as parents and as just plain concerned citizens, we have the right to draw the line, to say we aren't going to allow everything no matter how sick or depraved.

We have the right to say we are decent men and women and want a decent society for ourselves and our children.

One excellent place to start the crackdown is against those animals who traffic in magazines and movies displaying young children in sexually explicit acts.

There can be no consideration given anyone low enough to force children to engage in such activities. And, anyone who argues that such actions are protected by the Constitution, has absolutely not idea of what the Constitution stands for.

That's why I have co-sponsored legislation to make it a federal crime to cause or permit a child to be photographed in a sexual act for profit, or to transport in interstate commerce any such pictures.

Punishment, under this proposal, would be 20 years in jail, a $50,000 fine, or both for anyone causing such pictures, and 15 years in jail, a $25,000 fine or both for anyone engaging in interstate traffic of such pictures.

If this bills becomes law, and I certainly hope it does, a few convictions would do a great deal to wipe out at least this, the most disgusting aspect of pornography.

Perhaps, it would even spark a general crackdown on the filth which has invaded our cities and towns.

is no doubt about what AARPers talking about last week. It was the Social Security fund running the young folks up in arms over tax taxes required; that, they said, for they went through the long 40 years ago. But, what they often overlooked is how Congress has also hiked, when inadequate, procedures were worked out by over 300 years ago.

many AARPers wonder if it a right about deficit spending possible all the new social Some who watch such things that the national debt could be TRILLION dollars by 1983, with 100 billion dollar interest required each year, and ask, community expand to support it, or heading for more rampant to be followed by a recession makes the 1930 depression seem the good ol' days"? Another proposal to mark the anniversary is some kind of a luncheon at the end of the year and plans on this are also being worked out, although there is nothing definite at this time. One feature that appealed to the board is an award for the person judged to have been most helpful in the service of older citizens during the past year.

Jim Kearney is now at work on the selection of a site for the June 8 picnic. He reports he has looked at a number of places and he may have an announcement to make at the general meeting this week. Wherever the event is held, there will be the basic facilities for a good ol' picnic, with places to cook if members are so minded. However, the most popular idea for such an event appears to be a box lunch or cold cuts or some such, which can be prepared and served without making a federal operation of it.

The Port St. Lucie Medical Center is growing steadily in the services it can provide, and this is of vital interest to our members because it will save them a trip to Fort Pierce or Stuart if they have need of the type of medical services now available here.

This week, Dr. Stephen S. Kroll, an ear, nose and throat specialist, has come on the scene and is ready to receive patients at his office in the Center. Coming here a couple of months ago from California, Dr. Kroll has already been active at hospitals in Fort Pierce and Stuart. His arrival means that the PSL Center can now boast of a general practitioner, an ear, nose and throat man, a dentist, a podiatrist and an optometrist, quite a respectable array of medical assistance.

As most of our chapter members know, our president, Fred Wiggin, has been one of the makers and shakers behind the development of the center, and he has done it because he feels that the provision of adequate and accessible medical services is one of the most important things that can be done to improve living conditions for older people. Incidentally, anyone who thinks that Fred has a monetary interest in the center he another think coming. He does it all for free.

He has made practically a second career of this project, and you can see his car parked out in front of the first office at the Center practically every day at 8:30 a.m. And he is there most of the day, unless he has a meeting to attend somewhere else, usually on the subject of health care for the elderly.

Fred does all this because he wants to and feels that it should be done. One of his principal concerns in connection with the AARP membership, directly related to his work at the Center, is to figure out some way to organize the natural inclination of most people to lend a helping hand to their neighbors. There are a considerable number of people in the Port St. Lucie area, he points out, who are at times in need of help...not necessarily anything of a major nature, but usually something simple, like taking them to see a doctor, or going to the supermarket to get groceries for them. In many cases, neighbors who are aware of the situation of these people do these chores, a manifestation of human thought and care for one's fellows. This kind of service almost always is on a personal basis. The job is done because one the people who need it and those who are doing it know each other.

What Fred wants to know, and what he is constantly worrying about, is how such services might be put on an organized basis, and how the willing and able members of our chapter could be marshalled to do this work. This certainly is worth thinking about. If you have any ideas on the question, please get in touch with Fred and give him the benefit of your thinking.

Pot luck day is changed

Each week we say "farewell and we'll see you next fall" to more of Venture Three residents. However, each year more stay longer and some decide to make this their permanent home and only leave for short trips.

Remember, if you haven't been attending and realize that you are missing good food and a good friendly evening, sign up at the Venture Three office.

Venture Three

By Jessie Shaver, B-2, 334-2714:

Pot luck is continuing with 22-28 attending. This week, by mutual consent, the pot luck evening has been changed to Wednesday to accommodate some that have other things to do on Monday and would like to attend.

Lee Price is home from the hospital and recovering very well. It is good to see him out and around.

Bud Prew is hard at work showing off what he learned in brick laying class. He will soon have brick all around the skirting of their mobile home. Darrell Pre, of Miami, visited his parents and caught about a dozen good size fish.

Andrea Capra is visiting her parents, Millie and Joe Capra.

A letter from Pat and Larry Belt says they had a good trip home and, before they really had their vacation motel and cottages on Montauk Point, N.Y., ready for the summer, they had early bird vacationers there wanting a place to stay. So, they are already into the swing of the summer season. They send their regards to all and are planning on how soon they can return to Venture Harbour.

Jackie and Gil Kirkbride have purchased lot 626 and have moved some of their furniture in at once so they can be enjoying their new home as often as they can possibly get to Venture Out-St. Lucie.

Willard and Louise were surprised by the visit of Louise's sister, Dori Schafer, and her daughter Darlene. They enjoyed the beach and the pool and the Auch's hospitality for 10 days.

Air rifles a problem

It has been brought to our attention that air rifles are being used in Palm Lake Park in violation of the law. There have been numerous complaints, several where minors are shooting at dogs, cats and birds.

One neighbor almost had her ear struck by a beebee that went through her window.

Persons in possession of air rifles used in the park are subject to a fine of $500. In the event a minor is involved, the fine may be levied on the parent.

Should you see anyone, minor or adult, with such a weapon, please call the Sheriff immediately....do not warn the offenders in advance as they will make a quick exit before the law arrives.

Protect your body, property and animals by insisting that all such violations be turned over to the proper authorities.

We welcome our new neighbors who were transferred to this area by Pratt-Whitney....have purchased homes and are doing a wonderful job of maintaining them to continue to preserve the beauty of the park.

We hope to have the names of these families in the column soon. If you haven't been contacted by your correspondent, please phone me and let me have the names, birthdates, anniversary dates, and from what communities you hail from.

Lions attended state convention

JENSEN BEACH--Eleven Jensen Beach Lions and nine Lionesses returned from Clearwater recently, where they attended the annual Convention of Florida Lions Clubs, May 12-14.

Delegates to the convention were President Tim Weiss, President-elect Gerry Wilkinson, Past District Governor Bill Weiss, Al Walker, Arley Johnson, Wally Redit, Art Riley, Bob Wilson and Vince Vanacore, while the alternate delegates were Floyd Jones and Lewie Lontzenhiser.

One of the outstanding events of the convention was the election of the governors of Florida's seven districts. Jensen Beach is in District 35-D, which includes clubs from Ft. Lauderdale up to Titusville.

Other events included educational seminars for the new club officers, awards for winners of various contests such as the best club performance, the best bulletin, the most new members, and so on. One impressive ceremony was the Memorial Service honoring all Florida Lions who have passed away during the last year.

The local Lions came home with a bunch of awards, including District 35-D first place for clubs of 30 or more members for contributions to sight conservation projects, including assistance to those needing operations and glasses; visitations to other Lions Clubs in the district, collecting eye glasses for those in need, obtaining eye donor cards for the use of eyes after death, and many other community and club activities.

The club bulletin received the third place award in the contest for single page bulletins; Editor, Wally Redit.

Golden chain awards, for outstanding service to the club, went to Vincent Vanacore (5 yr.); Arley Johnson (3 yr.), Sam Johnson (3 yr.), Art Riley (3 yr.), Harvey Schlemmer (3 yr.), Al Walker (3 yr.), Bill Bailey, Wally Redit and Bob Phillips (1 yr.).

In awards for supporting the Florida Lions Foundation for the Blind, Jensen Beach was in third place with an average donation of $23.43 per member for 88 members.

Certificates of appreciation from the District Governor went to Joe Foley, Leader Dog Ambassador; Al Walker, membership chairman; Bill Weiss, district pins; and Harvey Schlemmer, sove chairman.

The new district governor for 35-D is Charles Tresie of Delray Beach.

Birthday greetings!

JENSEN BEACH--Wish a happy birthday this week to Mark Sandell, 19 years old on May 21, Reginald V. Waiters, 80 years old on May 23, and to Mrs. A.A. Whitaker and Jerry Sebright (25th), May 24.

Jensen Beach girl wins modeling awards

BY ROBBIE BEDELL

JENSEN BEACH—When eight-yearold Angela Wilson traveled to New York and checked into the Waldorf-Astoria last month, she wasn't there long before she realized she wasn't on vacation.

As an aspiring young model from the Turnabout Modeling Agency in Stuart, she was there for International Fashion Fantasy, a competition for young women from modeling schools throughout the United States.

It was a lot of fun," Angela explained, "but it wasn't like staying at a motel for a vacation. We had to work pretty hard."

Angela walked away from the competition with honorable mention prizes in runway walking and still photography and a runner up in television photography.

Dressed in clothing made at Unique Fashions in Stuart and sponsored by the Jensen Beach Bank, Man From Kirk and Len Weiner at Bill Reddit Ford, Angela competed against 15 other girls in her three to eleven age group.

She participated in luncheons, banquets and seminars and workshops in model training.

Her prizes were won in the performance of skits and facsimile television commercials.

Angela was one of 19 persons representing Turnabout. The school's director, Janet Kyle, was in charge of the largest group ever to represent the school.

"This year's judges are the most prestigious ever to be at a national convention," Mrs. Kyle said, "and I have been attending for seven years."

Mrs. Kyle added that as a result of Angela's performance, and portfolio taken by local photographer Larry Nieland, one of the New York agents said she would be interested in handling Angela if she were willing to live in New York.

One of the highlights of the trip was a tour of the NBC television broadcasting studios. The Turnabout group also watched an on-stage taping of the television soap opera, "The Doctors." They also saw taping of "To Tell the Truth."

Angela also came back with autographed photographs and snapshots of her clowning it up with comedian-actor Nipsy Russell.

Angela and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roger Wilson, live on Linda Drive in Jensen Beach.

When asked if she intends to continue her modeling career, Angela insists, "Yes, I really love it."

YOUNG MODEL—When Turnabout model Angela Wilson went to the Waldorf-Astoria in New York, she cam back with three awards for her modeling talent. A second grader at Jensen Beach Elementary School, she wants to make modeling her career.

Lydia Circle ends year

JENSEN BEACH—The Lydia Circle of the Jensen Beach Christian Church met recently for its final meeting of the season.

President Dorothy Geeben presided at the meeting. Genevieve Heasley was in charge of the devotions. Her topic was "Women and Happiness"

Elsie Fronsoe gave the closing prayer

A letter was read from the Christian City Home in Atlanta stating they are planning to build a home for the aging or a nursing home.

The meeting closed, followed by a social hour and refreshments featuring Mrs Geeben's famed lemon pie.

Bonnie McIntyre shares travels

Bonnie McIntyre, Gordon and Mart's lovely daughter who came to America for her sister Gail's wedding, has told us some of her impressions of the many foreign countries in which she has lived, worked and studied in the past several years.

A Canadian citizen, Bonnie speaks English, French and Spanish and now, as a resident of Rio de Janeiro, is learning Portuguese. She thinks in four languages, too, so her letters in her family are often a puzzle to them, but it goes without saying, are always most interesting and entertaining. Herewith is a brief account of her travels:

Guanabara Bay, Rio de Janeiro, Brazil

"My people have asked me what I've enjoyed the most in my trip. As a country, Guatemala was unforgettable. Lake Atitlan and Antigua were small, charming, beautiful paradises. There was a memorable week sleeping in a hammock near the Mayan ruins of Tikal in northern Guatamala. I took a ride to the ruins from British Honduras, or Belize, on a truck, which took three days to go 60 kilometres because they were burying corn, and roads were very empty....no other rides. The enormous trees were all used in so-called "houses" in early mornings and evenings as "tourists" were only flown in and out again in the afternoon. Another precious moment was spent outside of a U.S. Peace Corps clinic near Antigua explaining to the Mayan women, who were waiting to see the doctor, that a man was walking on the moon. They just couldn't believe it."

"Any distance had to be described to them in numbers of days in a bus because that's all they knew. Problems? Bad moments? I never had any. It was either luck or good judgment. I'd like to think the latter.

"The most unforgettable people were the Mexicans, who are the most dramatic and colorful people I've ever met...these musical people are wonderfully romantic, and a disaster if you believe every charming word they whisper in your ear. You may actually start to believe them!

"One thing great about the Mexican family is that they always had room for one more. I have life-time friends in Mexico and they are people I love. But that was only eight months, what about the four years in Europe, 1-7 of my life on far.

"I worked in two pubs in London, Victoria Station and near Oxford Circus, surely unforgettable, but I was still dreaming of Mexico. Paris, probably one of the most beautiful cities in the world ...but...I was still dreaming of Mexico.

"And then there is Rio de Janeiro, where I now live. What makes Rio, besides the famous carnival is, of course, the ocean and its beaches, but unfortunately as everywhere, it's polluted and a bit there. ...and poor Rio is being destroyed as high rises replace mountains and beautiful landscape. Copacabana is, ...ssionally ...ssaking, one of the densest populated areas in the world. If everyone evacuated the buildings, there would be no standing room in the streets.

"...and there's another unforgettable place where people say "Good morning" and "have a nice day"...where it's clean and there is at least concern about it being clean...a place where you can ask a neighbour for a cup of sugar and sing a song about loving an armadillo, even if you can't sing. A place where...well, go and look at the stars tonight, feel the warm wind dancing around you, listen to the bugs, and the wind blowing through the trees, the waves hitting the shore. It's beautiful and you never really appreciate it until you've missed it.

"Of all the places I've been, I'd love to live here at Jensen Beach and I'm sure you all understand why."

"On October 25, 1971 I left Canada for a long voyage that still hasn't ended, as I'm here visiting my family at Jensen Beach. Leaving Canada for Mexico in '71, I studied Spanish for six weeks, then I soon gave up three suitcases for a knapsack and birch-bibed for eight months through Mexico and all of Central America, Colombia, Venezuela, and later 14 Caribbean islands. TRAFFIC--Several mothers in the Parents, Teachers, ents and Friends (PTS&F) volunteered a good part of day to participate in the group's "stop traffic" project. PTS&F is endeavoring to raise $10,000 before June 1 to pay are of the portable classrooms for the Port St. Lucie Elementary School. Parents have agreed to pay $25,000 during a three year period to prevent fourth and fifth grade students from being bussed out of the community due to overcrowded conditions at the local school. Pictured above, displaying their poster, are Mrs. Butch Post, left, and Mrs. Ellen Fox. The five hour campaign netted the group more than $610.

Family picnic will help fund portables

PORT ST. LUCIE--Just one year ago the Parents, Teachers, Students & Friends (PTS&F) organization at the Port St. Lucie Elementary School sponsored a community family picnic. The sole purpose of the affair was to say "Thank you" to the residents of this south county municipality for their support during the school year.

The event provided entertainment, food, fun and games for all ages at an unbelievably low price. It was not a fund raising project. Hot dogs, hamburgers and soft drinks were so'd at cost.

The community seemed to appreciate the effort and the turnout was excellent.

This Sunday, May 22, the PTS&F group will once again sponsor a picnic on the school grounds from noon until 5 p.m. This time, however, they will endeavor to raise the necessary funds to pick up their portion of the cost to provide eight portable classrooms at the local school next fall. Within one week the group has raised $8,400 of the $10,000 needed by June 1 to meet the proposal presented by the St. Lucie County School Board.

According to Mrs. Robert Post, parents will do all the cooking chores in an effort to provide the food at a bare minimum and still make a slight margin of profit.

"We will be selling hamburgers for fifty cents, hot dogs for thirty cents and cokes for twenty cents in a sincere effort to keep the price within the reach of all the residents of the community," Mrs. Post said, adding the group should realize a little profit through volume.

Entertainment throughout the afternoon will be provided by the Joy Gould Dancers, who will present a preview of the Gould Workshop's Annual Production slated for June 3 and 4 at the Fort Pierce Amphitheater.

Mrs. Dykhouse's gymnastic class will also perform during the afternoon.

Upset with the St. Lucie County School Board's March 22 decision to bus fourth and fifth graders out of Port St. Lucie next fall due to overcrowded conditions at the local elementary school, parents set out to seek a suitable alternative. Their first proposal was for double sessions which the School Board denied.

Two weeks ago the parents came up with the second proposal for leasing eight portable classrooms and agreed to pick up a large portion of the tab. When they announced they had already raised better than $7,000 of the necessary funds, the board agreed to come to terms.

Under the board's proposal, the parents in Port St. Lucie must turn over $10,000 to the board on or before June 1, and $5,000 on January 1, 1978, 1979 and 1980.

This will assure two portable classrooms being moved from the St. Lucie Middle School to the local site at a cost of $4,800. Three portables, two rooms each, will be leased from Econo Trailer Leasing Service in West Palm Beach at a cost of $18,000 plus $3,000 security and $3,000 for setting them up. The second year cost would be reduced to $18,000.

Life awareness is kindergarten project

BY ALICE HICKEY

PORT ST. LUCIE--Which came first, the chicken or the egg?

The children attending the kindergarten class at the Port St. Lucie Elementary School may not be able to provide the answer to that age old riddle, but they are indeed learning much about life.

The class has been involved in a long term science "Life Awareness" project, one phase of which culminated last week with eight baby chickens making their debut before 120 enthusiastic five and six year olds.

While one of the teachers, Mrs. Nancy Dawson, described the pre-reading skill program as being highly successful, she did admit to the teachers having a few anxious moments.

"We were relieved when the first chick hatched during school hours," she said, adding the reaction displayed by the children was "just wonderful".

When the hatching process started, the children lined up to take turns watching the little chicks peck their way into the world.

Absolutely awed, one youngster informed his peers that, "It took Mommy a long time to have a baby, but these chickens are really fast!"

"Oh wow, oh man!" was the comment by Scott Gaskill, while John Starr exclaimed, "That's the cutest duck I ever saw."

So intrigued with the entire process, little Tara Donahue immediately announced her intention of being "a girl farmer" when she grows up.

Chris Pavin was more interested in finding names for the baby chicks and was quick to make the suggestion the first hatched should be named "Chris Pavin".

Before the program concludes at the end of the school year, if all goes according to the well made plans of the teaching staff, the children will observe the hatching of guinea eggs and on May 20, Mrs. Bunny will show off her new born. Mrs. Bunny has been active in the kindergarten since the opening of school last fall. While she has her own pen and shelter, she spends the better part of each school day hopping around the room gathering the attention and affection of the children, Mrs. Dawson explained.

Throughout the year, the program has provided experiences and material galore for the children to log.

While they are a bit too young to operate a camera, the children have applied their artistic talents to produce their individual picture books depicting the various events during the project.

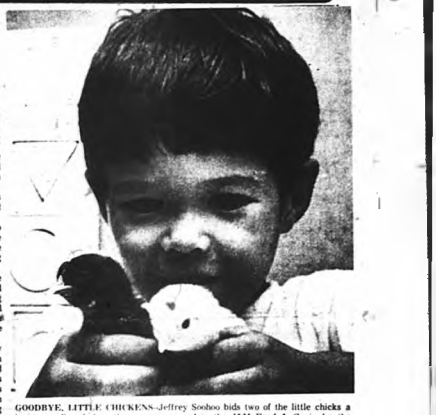
The 21 day incubation period, the candling of the eggs on the seventh and fourteenth days, and the hatching process are only a few of the special events which have provided picture opportunities and inspiration for the youngsters.

Eggs for the project were obtained by Mrs. Joann Bell, a teacher aid, from Johnnie Willis of the J&M Feed and Grain of Fort Pierce. The baby chicks were returned to the donor three days after they hatched, but not before each child had the opportunity of bidding them a fond farewell.

When one little chick needed a helping hand in breaking away his shell, Mrs. Dawson said employees of the Farm Supply Headquarters, Inc., were must helpful in providing the necessary instructions.

The children in the Port St. Lucie Elementary kindergarten class may not know which came first, the chicken or the egg, but they have certainly been made aware of life.

TIFUL EYE--Little Michaelena Lubonski was only one of the 120 kindergarten first grade children to keep a watchful eye on the incubator containing guinea . The eggs are due to hatch this week.



GOODBYE, LITTLE CHICKENS--Jeffrey Soohoo bids two of the little chicks a loving goodbye before they were returned to the J&M Feed & Grain by the kindergarten class at the Port St. Lucie Elementary School. The eggs were donated to the school by J&M Feed for the children's "Life Awareness" science program, which included a 21 day incubation period.

Forlenza and Lee head V.F.W.

PORT ST. LUCIE--Andre (Andy) J Matton Post 10130 V.F.W. and Auxiliary of Port St. Lucie will hold installation of officers ceremonies at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, May 19. The event will take place at the Community Center.

Installing the Post officers will be Harold Dollivier, past post commander.

Benjamin Forlenza will be the new commander; Carl Palazzatto, adjutant and quarter master; Ernie Plazner, senior vice; John Sloan, junior vice and poppy chairman; Walter Gerlock, judge advocate; William Basler, sergeant; Leo Malone, chaplain; and Bill Gales will do the publicity.

Jayne Correia, past District 11 president, will serve as installing officer for the Auxiliary, assisted by Audrey Foster, District 11 president, and Sharon Mixon, District 11 senior vice president.

To be installed are Frances Lee, president; Belle Kaiser, senior vice; Lelia Basler, junior vice; Jayne Correia, treasurer; Patricia Dolliver, chaplain; Genevieve Keesee, conductress; Ida Gales, guard; Blanche McGarry, Ann Mullikin and Mary Forlenza, trustees; Irene Geiss, secretary and publicity chairman.

THEY'RE SO CUTE--Eight little chickens never received more affection than those at the Port St. Lucie Elementary School last week. The incubation and hatching of the chicks were part of a long term "Life Awareness" project for the 120 kindergarten and first grade students. Pictured above are Shannon Sanders, left, and Diana Klein, admiring the chicks.

Montessori has new directress

RT ST. LUCIE--The PSL Montes- Preschool of the United Methodist ch announces the appointment of Gudrun Schlange as directress for .

cording to Barbara Martin, nistrator of the school, Miss n will make an all-day session able to all the students for the nine l school year.

is is a need that has not been met present staff during the past three ," said Mrs. Martin. "We have d the older children with an ded session each spring, but we have not been able to serve the younger children who have two working parents."

Miss Gudrun comes to the PSL Montessori Preschool as a fully certified and experienced preschool teacher and Montessori directress. She taught public kindergarten for five years and nursery school two years in the Chicago area. She received her bachelor's degree in education from Elmhurst College in 1964. Her Montessori certification came in 1976 after she completed a year of study and another year of internship in the Meca IV Course at Seton Montessori School, Clarendon Hills, Illinois. She is certified by the American Montessori Society and has taught at the Seton school for two years.

"Gudrun will add some valuable enrichment to our program," Mrs. Martin anticipates. "She will offer German as a second language for the children to absorb. She is a native-speaking German who was born in Nurnberg. She also uses yoga in the classroom to help calm active children and increase their abilities to concentrate."

Gudrun and her seven year old daughter, Heidi, will move to Port St. Lucie in August, where they will reside on Lamon Lane. Her parents are the Henry Schottlers on Verada Avenue.

GUDRUN SCHLANGE

City denies parents' bid

PORT ST. LUCIE--While at least three members of the City Council indicated they would support local parents in their effort to raise $10,000 for portable classrooms at the Port St. Lucie Elementary School, they were reluctant to turn over any portion of city funds to the cause.

Mrs. James Wallace appeared before the Tuesday workshop session to seek the city's financial support in acquiring eight portable classrooms to be used at the local school this fall.

While the council was sympathetic to the need, it was generally agreed city funds should not be used.

"To advance city funds to lease or purchase portable classrooms, in my opinion would be subjecting our residents to double taxation," Mayor McChesney said.

"Discussing this matter with the city attorney, I was told that such a contribution would be legal, but at the same time he recommended against it.

"I intend to support your cause as an individual and I strongly urge other council members and the residents of our city to do the same," the mayor said.

Councilman Merle Anderson took the opportunity to suggest that while he felt the various organizations seeking city funds had worthwhile purposes, he did feel the Council should come up with some concrete rules and regulations relative to such contributions.

"We must draw the line somewhere and I think it is about time we nip this in the bud. I think we have a responsibility to the citizens of this city to disburse their tax dollars wisely," Anderson pointed out.

Teen Dance Friday

PORT ST. LUCIE--A chaperoned Teen Dance will be held this Friday, May 20, 7 to 11 p.m. at the St. Lucie Catholic Church Education Building, Prima Vista Boulevard.

All teenagers in the Port St. Lucie community are invited to attend. There will be music for dancing and refreshments at a reasonable price. Admission is fifty cents.

There will be a dress code: no halters, no shorts, and shoes are a must.

A spokesman for the sponsoring group says that if this dance is a success, there will be more in the future months. For information, call Joan Eastman at 878-2220.

Services, barbecue

PORT ST. LUCIE--Memorial Day ceremonies will be conducted by V.F.W. Andre Matton Post 10130 at the Port St. Lucie Community Center at 11 a.m. May 30. City dignitaries will be in attendance and the public is urged to attend the memorial service, which will be under the direction of Carl Palazzotto.

A chicken barbecue will be served from 1 to 5 p.m., the menu to include baked beans, potato salad, rolls, coffee and soft drinks.

Bonnie McIntyre shares travels

Bonnie McIntyre, Garden and Mary's lovely daughter who came to America for her sister's wedding, has told us some of her impressions of the many foreign countries in which she has lived, worked and studied in the past several years.

A Canadian citizen, Bonnie speaks English, French and Spanish and now, as a resident of Rio de Janeiro, is learning Portuguese. She thinks in four languages, too, so her letters to her family are often a puzzle to them, but it goes without saying, are always most interesting and entertaining. Herewith is a brief account of her travels:

Central America, Colombia, Venezuela, and later 14 Caribbean islands. I spent a couple of months in Jensen Beach before heading for Europe, where I lived in London for three months and Paris for four years, visiting Switzerland, Belgium and Holland. I'm now living in one more. I have life-time friends in Mexico and they are people I love. But that was only eight months, what about the four years in Europe, 1/2 of my life so far.

"I worked in two jobs in London, Victoria Station and near Oxford Circus, of course, the ocean and its beaches, but unfortunately as everywhere, it's polluted and a bit more...and poor Rio is being destroyed as high rises replace mountains and beautiful landscapes. Copacabana is, statistically speaking, one of the densest populated areas in the world. If everyone evacuated the buildings, there wouldn't be no standing room in the streets.

"...and there is another unforgettable place where people say "Good morning" and "have a nice day"...where it's clean and there is at least concern about it being clean...a place where you can ask a neighbour for a cup of sugar and sing a song about loving an armadillo, even if you can't sing. A place where...well, go out and look at the stars tonight, feel the warm wind dancing around you, listen to the bugs, and the wind blowing through the trees, the waves hitting the shore. It's beautiful and you never really appreciate it until you've missed it.

"Of all the places I've been, I'd love to live here at Jensen Beach and I'm sure you all understand why."

Bob and Irma Barton, enroute to Alaska, spent two delightful days at Petrified Forest. They say the weather has been good and the scenery wonderful.

Don and Dee Finch are enjoying having there daughter Pat and husband Tim Kluesner here from Holly, Michigan. They will be visiting two weeks. It is Tim's first visit to Florida and he is enjoying the fishing, beach, and the casual living at H O

Ruth and Wes Arbo packed a bunch of guests into their Winnebago and whisked them off to the Admiral's Table for breakfast, then on to the Flea Market in Stuart where they browsed and purchased many things to take home with them. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. L. Ullman, Mr. and Mrs. R. Lemon, Mr. and Mrs. J. McConnell, Alice Perrault, Mr. and Mrs. B. Youngdrow and Mr. and Mrs. J. Arnau.

+ + +

Artis and Libbie Smith returned to Blacksburg, Va., where they found a sad state of winter damage to a new well and the decks of their fully furnished settlement around a cove. Their plans to take a trip to California will be delayed. We are sorry to hear this and hope the repairs don't delay them too long.

+ + +

George and Florence Poor visited Bertha and C.J. Ouellette at Cape Cod, Mass., for a weekend.

+ + +

Wes Arbo is now in a new business, successfully, we hear. He has purchased a grinder and has made real peanut and cashew. I understand it is delicious. A new diet regimen necessitated Wes making his own nut butters.

+ + +

Mr. and Mrs. R. Vansant arrived in Michigan after having perfect weather and road conditions. Beautiful weather greeted them, too.

+ + +

Joe and Edna Vansant and daughter write that the return home was good and that Joe made the trip well. Now we wish that Joe gains back his health this summer.

+ + +

When Clancy and Peggy Guthrie were all packed and ready to leave the park for the summer, Clancy picked up their mail and found to his dismay a notice to report for jury duty in Vero. They had not wanted to leave so soon but Clancy's mother was not well and needed them at home.

After several trips to Fort Pierce, they finally managed to see the judge and were granted a postponement of the summons. Their trip home was delayed two days but perhaps it was just as well, the weather was better the latter part of the week.

+ + +

Alice Perrault and Harriet Price were dinner-guests of the Al Rays when Bud and Barbara Harvey of Toquesta stopped by unexpectedly. They were all much amused by Bud's unusual humor.

+ + +

Homemade doughnuts and braided bread were enjoyed on Alice Perrault's porch by the Wes Arbos, Bob Youngs, Harriet Price, Josephine Arms, Ed Frosts, J.C. Freemans, Jack McConnell and the Al Rays

+ + +

Mr. and Mrs D Terri arrived at the Gilberts for a visit on Monday and then on Wednesday they and their hosts left for the west coast to spend a few days.

+ + +

J.C. and Ellen Freeman entertained Alice Perrault and the Rays Wednesday night with a delicious southern chicken pot pie

+ + +

Anniversary congratulations go this week to John and Catherine May, May 19; Joseph and Agnes Wasilla, May 21; George and Jessie Shute, May 23

+ + +

Happy birthday wishes are extended to Bob Murphy, May 21; Eileen Hunter and Ginny Stratford, May 22; Kathrin Greenberg, Delores Brink and Florence Poor, May 23.

Leaving Canada for Mexico in '71, I studied Spanish for six weeks, then I soon gave up three suitcases for a knapsack and hitch-hiked for eight months through Mexico and all of Central America.

Rio de Janeiro, Brazil

"Many people have asked me what I've enjoyed the most in my trip. As a country, Guatemala was unforgettable. Lake Atitlan and Antigua were small, charming, beautiful paradises. There was a memorable week sleeping in a hammock near the Mayan ruins of Tikal in northern Guatamala. I took a ride in the ruins from British Honduras, or Belize, on a truck, which took three days to go 80 kilometres because they were buying corn, and trucks were very empty...no other rides. The enormous ruins were a work of art-called hippies in early mornings and evenings as "tourists" were only flown in and out again in the afternoon. Another precious moment was spent outside of a U.S. Peace Corps clinic near Antigua explaining to the Mayan women, who were waiting to see the doctor, that a man was walking on the moon. They just couldn't believe it.

"Any distance had to be described to them in numbers of days in a bus because that's all they knew. Problems? Bad moments? I never had any. It was either luck or good judgment. I'd like to think the latter.

"The most unforgettable people were the Mexicans, who are the most informative and colorful people I've ever met...these musical people are wonderfully romantic, and a disaster if you believe every charming word they whisper in your ear. You may actually start to believe them!

One thing great about the Mexican family is that they always had room for Artis and Libbie Smith returned to Blacksburg, Va., where they found a sad state of winter damage to a new well and the decks of their fully furnished settlement around a cove. Their plans to take a trip to California will be delayed. We are sorry to hear this and hope the repairs don't delay them too long.

When Clancy and Peggy Guthrie were all packed and ready to leave the park for the summer, Clancy picked up their mail and found to his dismay a notice to report for jury duty in Vero. They had not wanted to leave so soon but Clancy's mother was not well and needed them at home.

After several trips to Fort Pierce, they finally managed to see the judge and were granted a postponement of the summons. Their trip home was delayed two days but perhaps it was just as well, the weather was better the latter part of the week.

IN TONS OF WHAT?–Sixth graders from the Stuart ne School pose with a small portion of the 45 pounds of tar they picked up on a section of northern Jupiter Island. The students determined there were more than seven tons of crude oil, or "tar", on the beach of Jupiter Island that day.

Oil tar pollutes beaches

BY ROBBIE BEDELL

JENSEN BEACH–Beachgoers these days may be wondering what that dark stuff is they find between their toes after an afternoon spent along the shore.

Well, no one seems to know for sure exactly where it comes from but most say it comes from the holds of oil tankers as the ship's tanks are scoured after unloading crude oil.

Sixth grade students of the Stuart Middle School recently conducted an experiment to try and determine just how much of the stuff has drifted up to local beaches.

during a two day program held by the Martin County Environmental Center, the students studied physical aspects of the Indian River and learned how they apply to living specimens in the wet lab and museum back at the Center.

During a lunch break the first day, the students were taken to Peck's Lake on Jupiter Island for lunch. After lunch they were taken to the beach and shown the large amount of tar-like crude oil that has collected on the beach. Under the direction of center instructor, John Whitcar, the students plotted ten-meter sections of beach, four meters wide, to a length of about a football field.

Within 15 minutes of collecting golfball size and larger chunks of tar, the group had collected 45 pounds of the goo.

Counting the 20-mile stretch of Jupiter Island from Jupiter Inlet to the St. Lucie Inlet, the students determined there were at least, and probably more, seven tons of the crud.

"If we counted the smaller pieces we could have come up with as many as 20 tons of tar," Whitcar said.

Whitcar said he has asked a lot of beachgoers and tourists where they think the tar comes from. Some say it comes from the holds of ships and others say it could be the remnants of an oil spill which occurred not long ago off the Florida Keys and has been taken here via the Gulfstream.

"Evidently something happened," Whitcar said. "There seems to be more tar. The funny thing is that man seems to be becoming more and more used to seeing the tar on the beach and he is learning to put up with it. Tar on the beaches seems to be becoming more and more an everyday occurrence."

SC charges Southern Gulf rates

NSEN BEACH–Sewall's Point and hinson Island rates charged by hern Gulf Utilities are discrimina- according to a hearing examinder e Public Utilities Commission.

he hearing examiner reported to the that new equipment should be lled at Sewall's Point, that new pumps be installed at Sewall's Point, that backup generating equipment be installed, and that the equipment be automated. He also asked that the rates be revised.

The hearing examiner, William Thomas, also added that fire-fighting service is inadequate for the condominiums on the island, creating a building moratorium that hinders development.

Southern Gulf has agreed to the needs for new equipment, and has ordered some of the equipment.

The rates vary with the contracts held by Southern Gulf, from $4.72 for the first 4,000 gallons in Sewall's Point to $13.30 for Martin County residents of the island.

hamber will sponsor uly Fourth Parade

NSEN BEACH–Though you may realize it, the day is getting closer re the skies above the Jensen Beach eway will again be filled with bs bursting in air.

e Jensen Beach Chamber of merce this year will sponsor the annual Jensen Beach Fourth of Parade, with the theme "Third ury America."

cording to Chamber Parade rman Andrea Webb, paraders will p behind the Jensen Beach Bank on Street and Palmetto, proceed east ommercial Street, north on Indian Drive, then east on the causeway the parade will disband.

ntries are asked to complete the route and not disband until the parade reaches the east span of the drawbridge.

Paraders will line up at 7:30 a.m., July 4, and all are to be in position by 9:30. Prejudging is to be done at 9:15, so if you want to be judged, be in position by that time. The parade is to begin at 10 a.m. sharp.

Trophies are awarded for several categories and a special trophy will be given for a float best depicting the theme "Third Century America."

Those who wish to participate in the parade can pick up entry forms at the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce or call Rose Price at 287-5170, or Novy Hoon at 283-6041. After June 5, call Andrea Webb at 334-2896 instead of calling Novy Hoon.

Vets plan memorial seryices Monday

JENSEN BEACH–War veterans will be traditionally honored this year in Memorial Day ceremonies to be held at All Saints' Cemetery in Jensen Beach.

Jensen Beach American Legion Post 126 Commander Louis Villano said the American Legion will decorate more than 150 graves at All Saints' Cemetery with flowers and American Flags. Then on Monday, Memorial Day, the Legion will travel to Stuart to join ceremonies at Fernhill Cemetery beginning at 10 a.m. Later in the day, at 1 p.m., ceremonies will begin at All Saints'.

Villano said there will be a traditional rifle salute followed by the Memorial Day Address by Fr. Frank Alvarez of All Saints' Episcopal Church.

The public is invited to attend the ceremonies.

'Air conditioned room just for the bait'

JENSEN BEACH–At the foot of Commercial Street there has been a building providing services to the public for many years.

Before 1905 it was the Ricou Fish House. It then became the Jensen Hardware and Thursday it will officially become the Jensen Bait and Tackle Company.

Owner Clark Collins said he intends to make the store the "best bait and tackle business going."

The building has been under renovation for the last eight weeks, workers doing carpentry and cleaning out the remnants of the old hardware store. Sighting eastward down Commercial Street, the store is still a landmark.

"We intend to carry more fresh water tackle," Collins said. "I've discovered a great need for more fresh water tackle with the Savannas right here. No one here has a lot of fresh water tackle. I'll have fly tackle and everything. There's no point in going second class."

Collins said he is going to keep his store open from 6 a.m. to 8 p.m. seven days per week.

Collins will have Joe Bumbera as the manager of the store. He said there will be an elaborate bait system to keep live shrimp and, eventually, he will have a cage outside so he can provide his customers with live mullet.

"It's going to be really good," he said. "I'm going to have an air-conditioned room just for the bait."

In addition to the live bait, Collins will stock frozen shrimp, ballyhoo, ribbonfish, bunker and sand fleas.

Besides the bait fish, there will be fresh frozen shellfish and fresh fish when they are available. He said he will carry Alaskan King Crab, shrimp, lobster, crab and rock shrimp.

"We will have something for everyone," Collins said. "We will carry top of the line."

ICANS' PROBOSCIDES–The pelican population in n Beach these days can be counted as some of the healthiest long-noised birds around. Here the grey-billed bombers accept a free hand-out of cut ribbonfish.

State lifts fire ban

JENSEN BEACH–After last week's major brush fire in the Jensen Beach area, residents have some mixed news.

There has been enough rain so that brush fires might not occur so easily within the next few days.

But, the fact that the rain has fallen has prompted the Florida Division of Forestry to lift its ban on controlled burning.

Though the ban has been lifted, forestry officials are urging citizens to be extremely careful when burning leaves or trash.

Residents of Sewall's Point are reminded they must check with the Town Hall before doing any burning.

Coast Guard to study bridge closing

SEWALL'S POINT–A request by Sewall's Point Mayor Ed Gluckler to have regular bridge opening hours set for the Evans Crary Bridge has been taken into consideration by the U.S. Coast Guard.

The Coast Guard has agreed to study traffic flow over the Crary, or "Ten Cent", Bridge, to decide whether or not during rush hours to open the bridge on the half-hour basis only. In doing so, motorists would not be stopped by random traffic from 7:30 a.m. to 9 a.m. and from 4:30 p.m. to 6 p.m.

Time rules went into effect more than a year ago for the Roosevelt Bridge going into Stuart and bridges in more populous towns to the south have had full-day bridge restrictions for several years.

Another first for Jensen

JENSEN BEACH–With the various commercial centers popping up in the Jensen Beach area, there is no limit to the services which are becoming available to home-town folks.

As an example, two local women, Mrs. Margaret Fulford and her niece, Mrs. Zona (Betty) Bond, have teamed up to open the only exclusively children's wear shop in the area.

The opening of the Lad n' Lassie marks another first in Jensen Beach and is a definite plus for area parents and grandparents. The shop features brand names that are well known for quality and durability from infants wear to size 14.

The owners have stocked their new ship with dress clothes, playwear and swimwear. A complete line of accessories and a variety of toys are also available in the Commercial Plaza shop.

The Fulfords, Margaret and Fred, are 14-year residents of the Jensen Beach area.

PRETTY–Vicki Lunstrom, visiting from Waukegan, Illinois, discovered pretty fashions for sizes 0 to 14 in the brand new LAD N' LASSIE shop in Commercial Plaza, Jensen Beach.

Forced busing is fought

BY CONGRESSMAN SKIP BAFALIS

WASHINGTON—If you have friends and relatives in other states, you can help pry loose from the House Judiciary Committee a Constitutional Amendment to prohibit forced school busing.

All you have to do is write those friends and ask them to write - or call - their Congressmen to see if they have signed discharge petition number one. And, if their representatives haven't signed it, have your friends urge them to do so as soon as possible.

Discharge petition one, which now bears some 180 signatures, is designed to pull from the pro-busing Judiciary Committee a proposed amendment mandating that all youngsters be allowed to attend the schools in their neighborhoods, unless their parents consent to a transfer.

All that is needed for the discharge petition to be successful and for debate on the amendment to begin on the House floor is 38 more signatures - less than one from each state.

So, just by writing your friends and relatives, you can strike a blow for neighborhood schools and against forced busing.

The drive for a discharge petition was unveiled just a week ago. And the mere fact we already have 180 signatures is a significant breakthrough, because rarely does a discharge petition obtain anywhere near enough signatures.

The list of us behind the petition - Representatives Ron Mottl of Ohio, Marjorie Holt of Maryland, Mario Biaggi of New York, Joe Waggonner of Louisiana, Steve Symms of Idaho and myself - made the effort public in the hopes the American people will rally behind it and get their Congressmen to sign.

As we told a news conference, "We are now appealing to the American people, the same public which opposes forced busing in the polls by margins of 5-to-1. We are asking the American people to contact their Congressman and ask him if he has signed Discharge Petition number one."

I sincerely believe in the neighborhood school concept. Furthermore, I, along with any number of other Americans, both black and white, am convinced forced busing has no places, just numerous minuses.

It has caused resegregation of school systems. It has pushed school systems to the brink of bankruptcy. It has caused chaos and disorder in city after city.

And now, with President Carter urging the American people to conserve our precious fuel, it seems ridiculous to pump gasoline into school buses, which get only five miles to the gallon, just to move our children from their own neighborhoods to some school across town.

But we need your help to get this message across. We need the help of everyone in the 10th District who knows someone in another state who feels strongly about this issue, someone who will write his Congressman and get him to sign the discharge petition.

Believe me, if enough people write, those Congressmen who haven't been willing to sign the discharge petition yet will do so in a hurry.

Because they know how strongly the people feel about this issue.

So drop a note to your friends up north and enlist their help. The results will be worth it.

Letters to the editor

To the Editor:

I have read Allee Hickey's column in the Port St. Lucie Mirror regarding rezoning tracts A and B, Section 6, to C-1 Commercial. While I do not agree entirely with your thoughts as they appear in oversimplify a very complex problem, I do, however, agree with your final suggestion that the Church, City and GDC work out a trade for a more suitable location of which there are many in Port St. Lucie.

We own a lot within 500 feet of tracts A and B and have our home in North Carolina for sale. We had hoped to move to Port St. Lucie and build a new home in a quiet, peaceful location with good neighbors and surrounded by nature, well kept lawns and beautifully landscaped lots in a prime residential area. I guess 301 never understand why people will hunt for the most beautiful, the most quiet and peaceful location they can find, then move in and immediately begin to destroy the beauty and serenity of the area.

I believe that business and commercial activities, schools, churches, recreational areas, parks, etc., should be grouped together in suitable areas and that residential areas should be kept strictly residential and not ruined by spot zoning. While I have no objection to a church only, after working for 45 or 50 years I certainly do not want to live in a traffic congested, noisy, littered area.

I hope that the Planning and Zoning Board, together with the City Council, will heed your suggestion and want to thank you for presenting both sides of the question.

Very truly yours,
s-D.A. Fischer

lugfest shatters records

JENSEN BEACH–When Manley Construction and the Lions Club took the field Thursday night, very few expected the game to be much of a struggle. But it not only was a struggle, but different home run records were broken in the process and a new Player of the Week was crowned, as the Lions defeated the Builders 10-9.

Jim Tucker and Bob "Mighty" Casey established home runs for the Lions and Builders respectively. This smashed three records for Pony League home runs.

The first record to go was the one for most home runs (over the fence) in one Pony game (3), and that was followed by the first ever double-team home run performance. That is, a player from each team hitting one out of the park. Finally, the record for most home runs in one season was broken by Casey, who hit his second, a far cry from Babe Ruth, but, nevertheless, a new mark for his league.

In addition to all the fireworks, Scott Casey, Bob's brother who plays on a different team, was named the Mirror "Player of the Week" for his game-winning hit in the sixth inning. This capped a three-run, two-our rally which preserved the Lions' undefeated second half record and extended their winning streak to 14 in a row.

Casey follows Second Half Players of the Week Brent Laycock (Colt League-Kermit's), Bruce Delaney (Bronco League-VFW), and Chuck Dixon (Mustang League-Rick Carroll).

In action Monday night at Langford Park, Rick Carroll won the Mustang League championship with an 11-8 victory over Aycock's Gang. Dixon was the winning pitcher, and Eddie Justice took the tough loss.

Rio wins Bronco League; Tourneys begin

BY DONNIE WILKIE

JENSEN BEACH–Scoring five runs in the fifth inning and three more in the sixth, Rio Civic Association edged VFW 10-9 in what turned out to be the championship game for 1977.

The astonishing comeback was the result of a protest filed when the game was originally played three weeks ago. The protest by Rio Civic Manager Mike Shue involved a fair-foul ball rule which the general committee ruled was misinterpreted by the game's umpires.

The score was 7-3 in VFW's favor at the point of protest, but Rio had loaded the bases on walks given up by VFW pitcher Bruce Delancy with only one out.

When the game was resumed Monday night, David Eldridge, who had hit the ball which caused the turmoil, drew a walk, starting with the 3-and-0 count he had at the point of protest. The walk forced in the second run of the inning (the first had been scored during the original game) and made the score 7-4. Then, after Blair Feinauer struck out for the second out, Ricky Sullivan smashed a triple to right field. It was a alleing drive that sailed past VFW right fielder Paul Richardson. All three baserunners scored to tie the game at 7-7, but when Sullivan tried to score on a bad throw to the plate, VFW catcher Courtland Brock retrieved the ball and threw to Delancy to nail him at the plate.

VFW bounced back from their five-run disaster when they notched two markers in the sixth frame. After one had been retired, Mark Sands reached on an error committed by Rio second baseman Derlick Jochem. Brock then tripled into left field to score him and make it 8-7. Bruce Delancy's single moments later made it 9-7.

But Rio was not through. They apparently did not want to play another game (if VFW had won, they would have won the second half, and would have had to play first half champion Rio again last night - Tuesday - for the regular season title), so it was now or never.

VFW had it sewed up, though, when Delancy struck the first two hitters in the bottom of the ninth. But hold your horses! Rio had one last chance. That chance, Kenny Ham, drew a walk, as did Jochem minutes later. Both then stole to third and second, respectively, and that set things up for Todd Jackson.

Jackson, seeing that a single would tie the game, walled for a fast ball down the middle. That's exactly what he bit into centerfield for a two-run, game-tying single. With the pressure removed and the third man in the batting order coming to the plate, it seemed Rio might even win the game (in the sixth. VFW, of course, was hoping for extra innings.

Justice hit another Delancy fastball well into left field, and he actually rounded the bases. But with Jackson on third before the pitch the had stolen second and gone to third on a wild pitch), he was credited officially with only a single. Nevertheless, his smash won the game and the second half title for the Niosns.

Thus, Rio becomes the second double-half winner of the season, a modern record. They join the Jensen Lions, who had hall records of 9-1 and 8-0. Rio finished 6-1 and 7-1. VFW, meanwhile, rebounded from a 2-6 mark in the first half to finish a respectable 6-2 in the second half, as they were directed by budding young Manager Joel Dramis.

Meanwhile, double-elimination action is underway on both youth fields, featuring all the teams in the baseball program.

Monday night's Pony League game was the best Pony game of the year, and certainly would deserve top billing any other time. But the game ended so late—and it really hadn't ended yet at press time. The game, between the Elks and Kiwanis, went nine innings, and finally, somewhere in the night, the game was suspended with the score still tied 9-9. The game was rescheduled for Tuesday night, May 24, at 7 p.m., with the conclusion hopefully in sight. It might be noted that the longer this game goes more and more stress will be placed on the pitching staffs of these two squads. Both teams were scheduled to play again later this week, and due to a rule banning pitchers from more than ten innings of action per week, both teams will be in trouble against their late-week foes. The record for the longest Pony League game ever is 10 innings, so obviously it will be tied, and probably broken.

Tonight's action includes the tournament debut of the Lions Club, who are scheduled to take on the winner of the "marathon game". In Bronco League action, Todd's takes on the Knights of Columbus, the only team to upset Rio Civic in the second half.

Action continues at the park throughout the next two weeks. The Mirror Player of the Year Awards for the Mustang, Bronco and Pony Leagues will be announced in two weeks.

The purpose of merger, said Huang, is to allow e diversification of GDC. "GDC credit agreements place ents on investments in outside ginns," said Huang. "With this ger we will be able to invest in some r activities. We are presently otiating several companies and ering many others. However, no ite plans have been made as yet. it is unlikely that we would invest in y different fields than those GDC is ently involved in. It is hope that with program we may be closer to our kholders realizing a cash divident on e share," concluded Huang.

GDC has not paid its shareholders a cash dividend since 1953. Louis E. Fisher, president of GDC, explained it has been necessary to expend cash reserves on future roads and utilities in the GDC communities.

Fischer further assured stockholders that he is no longer "cautiously optimistic" for the coming year as he has been for the past three years.

"I am very optimistic for '77," Fisher said. He further enumerated GDC's progress in its Commercial, Utilities, Homesite and Home Sales Divisions.

Fischer also quashed rumors that GDC may be contemplating the sale of Sandpiper Bay Resort.

"We view Sandpiper as an amenity although it is now operating on a commercial basis. Losses have occured in the past, however, we are looking forward to Sandpiper breaking even in 1977."

All in all, Fischer and Huang both predicted a year of strong growth and progress for General Development Corporation. Many stockholders in the audience expressed their confidence in the merger and the optimistic forecast.

TTENDANCE–Victor Georgeff, owner of Victory Construction, Inc., and the loper of a proposed $100,000-a-home subdivision known as Vikings Landing, was City Hall Tuesday with his engineering consultant, Ken Ferrari, left, when ity agreed to annex and re-zone a 30-acre tract located just west of the country . Georgeff proposes to build 38 to 40 single-family homes on the property.

City approves Vikings Landing annexation

PORT ST. LUCIE–In rapid fire succession, city officials, Tuesday, agreed to the annexation and rezoning of a 30-acre parcel of land surrounded by the City of Port St. Lucie and situated just west of the country club.

Victor Georgeff, the developer of a proposed $100,000-a-home subdivision known as Vikings Landing, and Ken Ferrari, engineering consultant for the project, were present at the Tuesday meeting when the two ordinances were passed on the first reading.

According to City Manager Elmer Cox, letters will go out immediately to property owners within 500 feet of the property to be zoned for the Planned Unit Development (PUD).

In his original appeal to the city for annexation of the property, Georgeff told both the Council and the Planning and Zoning Board time was of the essence regarding the closing date to acquire the property.

According to the developer, the subdivision will have forty lots, homes of over 3,000 square feet, private roads (built to city specifications), security guards, tennis courts, and, if permits can be obtained, a small marina in a pocket inlet.

When Georgeff's request for utilities service from General Development was rejected, he said he would be willing to put in septic tanks and wells on each of the half-acre lots.

The developer said he has purchased a residential lot he plans to use for entry into his property. The road will be built to city specifications and eventually dedicated to the city.

At this point it appears the developer can expect little or no opposition to the proposed development. The annexation of the 30 acres could be finalized within the next four weeks.

Georgeff owns another 140 acres in the same area but, aside from saying access to the property would have to be by way of a bridge over the C34 Canal, he was reluctant to discuss any tentative plans of development.

Georgeff, owner of Victory Construction, Inc., was the developer of the Holiday Country Club Estates in Stuart.

Island home for serious seminars

BY ROBBIE BEDELL

JENSEN BEACH–At the south end of Hutchinson Island there is a house which for the past several months has been bustling with the activity of carpenters, remodeling an already enviable beach house.

The house is the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Grund, and it is named "Sunrise". It's located along a strip of beach homes noteworthy for their individual artchitecture. But Sunrise is different, it is planned not only to be a home for the couple and their five children when they are in Martin County, it is proposed to become a place where artists, writers and musicians can come to discuss and share their ideas and hold seminars and exhibits and recitals of their work.

The rooms of the two story home which face the ocean have windows offering an incredible seascape of the beach, reefs and rumbling Atlantic. Aside from the living quarters of the home, there are rooms with recording equipment for serious local musicians to record, and others for painters to exhibit their work. There is room for small audiences to watch films and discuss a variety of issues.

Just last week the home was the scene of a seminar on nuclear energy with conservationists and officials from the Florida Power and Light Company, students, journalists and concerned citizens.

The seminar, Mrs. Grund said, is the first of a number of such events which, she hopes, will cover current events and political issues as well as discussions of music, art and literature.

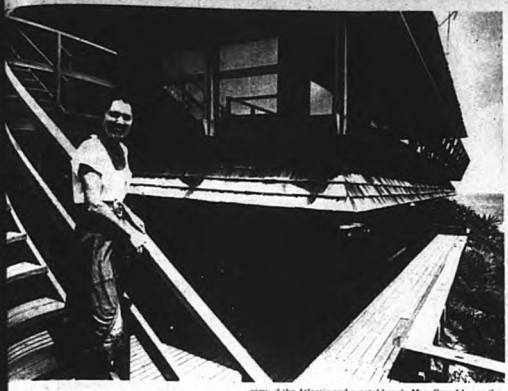
"The recording studio will enable serious musicians in the area to record what they are doing," Mrs. Grund said. "I would also like to hold master classes where accomplished artists might teach what they know to serious students."

There is a piano on the first floor of the home and there is a place where a projector and screen will be set up for the showing of documentary films.

Mrs. Grund explains that the creation of "Sunrise" is a "natural evolution" of the events of her life. A cultural anthropologist, she speaks four languages and has traveled the world studying foreign societies. At her home in Woodstock, Ill., there was a place where there were featured speakers and literary sessions where people could discuss works they had read.

It was a place where people were prepared "to get good mental work done," she said.

She thinks that "Sunrise" can become such a place, explaining that a beautiful natural area like Martin County must be "more than a strictly recreational area. It will be a meaningful place close to the mainstream of activities. We will not be trying to push ideas down people's throats. We're just providing a setting to let people think for themselves," she said.



BEACHFRONT VIEW–The ocean view of the Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Grund home on Hutchinson Island affords an idyllic view of the Atlantic and coastal beach. Mrs. Grund hopes the atmosphere will be conducive to work discussed in seminars held for local artists.

PATRON OF THE ARTS–Josephine Grund, a cultural anthropologist residing on Hutchinson Island, has remodeled her beachfront home into a place where local musicians, painters and other talent can hold seminars to discuss the work they are doing and exchange ideas.

FOOD FROM THE SEA–Rick Scammall, left, and Gary Kingett, stand in front of their new store, Jensen Beach Seafood. The store, located in the new Spruce Center Plaza, is the only store in Jensen to deal exclusively in seafood

At the May meeting, some 13 persons signed up. Bill said a total of 40 participants is needed to warrant making arrangements. So, if you want a pleasurable trip on the boat, plus a hearty meal and an old fashioned vaudeville show, get in touch with Bill at 878-0857, or with Jim Kearney at 878-2920.

Incidental intelligence: Last year, 153 volunteers from the Lakeview AARP Chapter in Louisiana gave a total of 67,678 hours of service to a broad range of worthwhile projects. The Lakeview folks were followed fairly closely by the Lancaster, Pa., chapter, which reported that members, serving as volunteers with 63 community agencies and organizations, had provided 43,908 hours of volunteer work.

This type of activity might well give our chapter something to think about. About the only thing we've done so far is the income tax assistance program, which probably doesn't warrant being included in the category of community services, although the help given there was not restricted to AARP members

O.B. a good place to live

While biking around the park in search of news, I asked the folks, "Why is Ocean Breeze Park such a nice place to live?"

Practically everyone said it was the "friendly people"; next, "The trees make it a pretty place"; then, some said, "It's home to mee"; others, "You feel as though you belong"; and many said, "Harry made us want to live here and we still feel he does"

"Near shopping" was mentioned; and "reasonable rents"; and "An attractive mobile home can be obtained, prices we can afford". Please think about it, for I'll be asking again next week.

DO YOU REMEMBER WHEN....

Many folks may have attended the Hurrican Preparedness meeting in the Harry Hoke Room of First Federal S&L Tuesday and wonder just what does happen when a hurricane strikes the park. So, here's an eye witness account from Freda Peterkin's scrapbook.

The hurricane of Friday, August 26, 1949, didn't miss us at all. The radio began to warm them about 3 a.m., so folks were frantically boarding up, stowing water and supplies in their cars, jokingly locking the doors to keep out the wind and rain, not realizing what was in store.

They began to wonder if it was a false alarm, for at 10 a.m., there wasn't a cloud in the sky and only the usual mild offshore breezes were blowing. But soon there was no doubt something was coming their way for by 4 p.m., there were sustained winds of 25 mph.

The river was wild with winds and rain increasing by the minute. The winds roared and the rain slashed at 80 mph by 10 p.m., and still the screaming winds increased in violence so that by 11 p.m. it was a steady 125 mph with gusts to 160, as the eye of the storm passed through Jupiter.

Fred notes, winds started to die down by 1 a.m. the next morning, but it continued to rain all that day, to give 14 inches in a 24-hour period.

It was a sorry sight later when the sun came out bright and clear to see trees down, trailers turned over and some still upright, but with all the paint sand blasted off one side.

But soon Harry had his crew out, setting up trailers, covering the damaged areas to keep out the rain, and clearing away the debris. Then he sent telegrams to all the folks up north, letting them know that all was taken care of and they could relax, knowing that their home in OBP would be ready and waiting for them in the fall.

It was some blow, but all the ol' timers survived it in good shape and enjoy talking about it, even though they wouldn't relish going through it again.

How many remember this, do you have anything interesting to add?

RAMBLING AROUND

Irvin and Leta Keith received a call from Ray and Jo Bradley of 20 Indian River Dr., saying they had a safe trip to Springfield, Mo., and they are now busy putting in a garden.

Luther Weeks, 8 NW 6th, has been up on the roof everyday for a week putting his 11 year old solar heating system in first class condition. You see, Mary, Luther's wife, knew that the system would require repairing within the next five years and she figured it was better to have an 85 year old husband up on the roof now, than to have a 90 year old husband up there then. So, she got after Luther to do it now!

Fred and Lenore Viland of Skipper (in the park since 1954) have just returned from a two week trip back to Ohio to visit friends and relatives. Beautiful spring weather with lilacs in bloom. They stopped off at Nashville, Tenn., to see George and Evelyn LeBon and found them very well.

The Nixons have heard that Ruby Wren of 10th Street had a smooth flight to Detroit and will visit around there before going on to Canada.

Hilda Giblin got a newsy letter from Virginia Dryer of Pepper, saying she had a good trip to Reading, Mich. Good weather. Granddaughter on trip with her. Getting garden ready so she can do her usual canning. Says, "Asparagus delicious, but strawberry blossoms frozen."

Fred and Ann Erdmann, 7 Cypress, from Stony Brook, L.I., were enjoying Florida weather on their patio with Buster and Marion St. Onge and two other Anns: Ann Ballinghoff and Anne Bartle, with Ann Erdmann's brother Bob Mills. They have to leave soon as Fred must get his tomato plants in, but Bob said he got in a lot of swimming and spaghetti eating.

Otto and Dorothy Schorer, 16 Ocean Breeze Dr., won't go to Iceland and Scandinavia as planned, as they'll be attending Otto's granddaughter's wedding on June 11 at Wesport Harbor. Then they'll spend most of the summer at Norwich Lake, near Huntington, Mass. Dorothy hopes they can make the Iceland trip next year.

Al and Avis Colby, 14 SW 9th (from New Hampshire and Maine), have daughter Mary Wall from Downey, California, visiting them for a week. Mary mentioned that her mother, English grammar school teacher, never gave her the slightest benefit of the doubt when grading her papers, but did have to admit that Avis turned out more pupils that later got the highest grades.

Avis has heard from Frank and Dorothy Glazier, 5 NE 10th, saying they survived the big snow storm in Keene, N.H. Also, Sarah Scott, 1 NE 7th, writes that she is home in Gardiner, Me., right on the banks of the Kennebunk River and, on her way home with her sister-in-law, Margaret Kierstead, they stopped off in Columbia, S.C., to visit a daughter.

Then, Avis heard from Alden and Alma Burnham of 17 Kumquat, saying they are fine up there in Naples, Me., getting their boat ready on Long Lake.

PUTIAN SCENE—No, Gulliver did not pass through Jensen Beach this week. However, teachers and workers at Jensen Beach Elementary School were dwarfed by the Viking statue erected last week in front of the school building. The Viking is part of an ongoing program to landscape the schoolgrounds.

Jensen gets Viking statue

JENSEN BEACH—Travelers down Savanna Road last week may have glanced down the driveway of the Jensen Beach Elementary School and thought they saw a scene from a Jonathan Swift novel.

In realty, it was not a scene from "Gulliver's Travels", but school teachers and employees were dwarfed by a large fiberglass Viking they were erecting on the school campus.

When the previous owner of the 20-foot Viking statue, David MacMillan, heard that the school's symbol is the Viking, he decided to donate his statue to the school.

For several months it lay prone on the campus until warm weather came. It was then the students and teachers got to work. The kids painted it green and gold, to match the color of the school building and grounds.

In conjunction with a beautification program sponsored by the Men's Garden Club, the Viking was erected in front of the school and, soon, landscaping will adorn the surrounding ground.

The teacher in charge of the project was Coach Martin Figun. Teachers Lea Ruzzolo and Bill Kincaid assisted with getting the Viking upright and Denise Larson, a parent, painted the face of the statue.

Channel 6 is now on as Perry turns on microwave system

JENSEN BEACH—The long awaited Channel 6 from Miami snapped on the air Tuesday at 4 p.m. as Perry Cable turned on a new microwave system that also featured a clear, sharp Channel 2 and 4.

The $130,000 system was turned on by Helen Richardson, manager of the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce, as Charles Locke, vice president and general manager of Perry Cable, explained the system.

Designed by Ted Huf, a Perry engineer, the new electronic equipment will provide better reception from south Florida positions that serve the cable company. Local dignitaries, invited to the event, applauded as the three channels suddenly came in clear as the West Palm Beach stations.

The new equipment — microwave dishes, antennas and a 400-foot high tower west of Jupiter, provides the new service.

The signal is beamed by microwave to the Stuart facility on Britt Road, Locke said.

In the Stuart, Jensen Beach, Port St. Lucie, Hobe Sound, Palm City and Salerno areas, the new equipment will enable cable subscribers to see Miami's Channel 6 for the first time. The station is actually Channel 8 on the cable.

Perry also serves Palm Beach Gardens, North Palm Beach, Lake Park, Palm Beach Shores, Jupiter Inlet Colony and surrounding areas.

Killer battles night swordfish

BY ROBBIE BEDELL

JENSEN BEACH—Living in a community where many people fish, most have heard at least one story of a fish that was very big and, for some reason or another, it got away.

This happened to Jensen Beach angler Gene Killer last weekend, but it was no ordinary fish.

Anglers along the east coast of Florida last year discovered a way to catch broadbill swordfish who, in the spring and summer months, swim in the deeper, cooler waters of the Atlantic.

These anglers have learned to fish in the dead of night, drifting with squid or another type of bait, northward in the gulfstream.

Killer was fishing in just such a manner Sunday night with Capt. Bob Pelosi aboard Dr. John Schoppe's 24-foot boat, "Gremlin."

The three aboard the Gremlin left Palm Beach Inlet at sunset along with the boats "Reelsong" and "The Sting."

During the early night, anglers on the Gremlin hooked and lost three fish. Later Dr. Schoppe caught a 200-pound swordfish. At about 2 a.m., Killer hooked a very large one on his big 9-0 reel loaded with 80 pound test line.

Under the nearly full moon, Killer said he saw the big fish jump twice.

"It was a very big fish," he said. "I saw it jump twice in the spotlight we had on him. I fought for three hours with a freight train on the end of my line."

The big swordfish pulled the boat around the Gulfstream for a half an hour before the anglers were able to get the fish alongside the boat. They finally did so and were even able to gaff the fish with a flying gaff, a large pole with a hook attached to the end designed to separate from the pole when hooked to a fish. When the fish was gaffed, the gaff hook, attached to a stout line, kept the fish at the boat, for a while.

"The fish spent out of his mind," Killer said. "It beat the boat with his bill and tail, it did everything."

Eventually the fish pulled the gaff free from its body and once again became the freight train at the end of Killer's line.

"It pulled the gaff and I still had him," he said. "I fought him for another two and a half hours after that. I had him on for three hours and three minutes."

After that the line went slack. After the long fight, the fish did not break the line but the hook simply pulled from his mouth. Killer does not regret the outcome.

The anglers aboard the Gremlin estimated the swordfish to weigh in the neighborhood of from 500 to 600 pounds.

"I've never had a fish like that before," he said. "Even though it got away, it was the fight. I loved every minute of it. I was tired but I loved it. It's the kind of thing you really can't put into words."

Fire Auxiliary winds up season

JENSEN BEACH—Members of the Jensen Beach Fire Department Auxiliary will meet at the Ocean Village on Hutchinson Island for a luncheon June 4 at 1 p.m., and the last meeting for the summer will be June 6, 7:30 p.m. at the Fire House.

Members are reminded to bring treasures for an auction to the meeting.

$1 million for inlet

JENSEN BEACH—While the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers dredge "Merritt", as a temporary measure, dredged the St. Lucie Inlet last week, the U.S. House, Appropriations Committee approved the spending of $1 million for the first phase of improvement of the St. Lucie Inlet.

A report from Representative L.A. Skip Bafalis stated that the money was approved by committee and would be voted on by the House on June 10.

The $1 million figure represents the first year expenditure of a $3.6 million overall plan to permanently deepen the inlet and construct jetties on the north and south sides.

If the money, which is part of the Public Works Bill, is passed by the House, it still could be vetoed by President Carter.

In the meantime, the inlet is being dredged because shoaling has made navigation hazardous. The cost of the "Merritt" dredging is more than $900,000, according to Martin County Engineer Jim Winn.

TRANQUIL MORNING—After a week of wind and rough water, seas have calmed in the Indian River, creating an atmosphere of peace. These four sailboats were moored near the Waeha bridge Memorial Day morning, gammed together during a weekend cruise.

Age is a state of mind

BY DICK CAMPBELL

JENSEN BEACH–Bill Weiss, the bustling, hustling senior citizen of the Jensen Beach Lions Club, just can't seem to stop moving.

"There's no reason to do so," Weiss said. "I've got so much to see and do."

With his wife, Dottie, Bill has stopped wearing the badges from various Lion's Clubs and moves throughout the world. It would be too heavy. The small badges cover a wall in his home in Jensen Beach.

His enthusiasm is still unchecked as Bill Weiss continues his spirited work on travel and on local club projects. Weiss recently worked as hard as ever on the eyeglass collection that provides thousands of pairs of glasses to the district for shipment to needy persons from Africa to South America.

There was pride in his eye as Weiss talked about his meeting with Charlie Smith, the nation's oldest citizen, now 134 years old.

"I met him at a meeting, and I think there is a story in him. He is a fabulous citizen, bright and cheerful and intelligent," Weiss said.

Smith lives in a convalescent center in Bartow, but in 1883, just 14 years ago, he was operating a soft drink stand in that city...at the age of 120.

Charlie was kidnapped by slave traders in 1842 and brought to America. He was sold to a Texas rancher named Charlie Smith, who gave him his name when he died.

As he grew older he adopted the Smith philosophy that you enjoy what you have while you have it, because you won't be able to after you die.

The Bartow Democrat newspaper arranged to have a birthday party for him, and the event drew attention and made him famous. He is now on a circuit to talk to and meet people as a very special person.

He doesn't believe that a spaceship went to the moon, considering it not exactly a lie, but rather, a ghost charade.

"I think that Charlie Smith is a perfect example of a person who grows old with grace and interest, with a bright mind and someone we can look to as an example of living in our older years," Weiss said.

LAND CHARLIE–Bill Weiss recently met 134-year-old Charlie Smith at a Lions convention. He said he was impressed with the vitality of the nation's oldest citizen.

Sandpiper Bay hosts ladies golf group

PORT ST. LUCIE–Diane Weston, Connie Whitfield and Edith Horn led the field of 136 golfers to top honors in the monthly tournament of the Upper East Coast Ladies Golf Association.

The Sandpiper Bay chapter of the association hosted the group last Friday at the Banners course. Eight clubs competed in the event.

Sandpiper Bay golfer Diane Weston was the low gross winner with a score of 76. Helen Horn of Port Malabar led the field in low putts with 27. Connie Whitfield of Vero Beach and Edith Horn of Martin County tied for low net scores of 65.

Each March through October the members of the Upper East Coast Golf Association meet at one of the participating clubs for the monthly tournament and luncheon.

Prizes are awarded for each flight as well as for low gross, low net and low putts for the field. A running score is kept of the four lowest scores from each club with the winning club receiving the trophy at the annual two-day event held in October. A delegate of last year's winner, Port Malabar, chairs the aggregate score committee.

Participation in the group is limited to 25 members from each club and each new member with a handicap of 28 or less.

The Upper East Coast Women's Golf Association was organized in 1958 and is the oldest ladies' golf association in the area.

Participating clubs are Sandpiper Bay, Indian Hills, Vero Beach, Cocoa Roebledge, Sun Tree, Martin County, Port Malabar and Patrick AFB.

The champion of the event will be recognized at the banquet which will be held Friday, June 10, at a Stuart restaurant.

Winners in the regular weekly play Saturday morning, were as follows:

Flight A, Bert Moore and Charles Jennings tied with a low net of 58. Bob Jones had a 59 and Bob Lawyer a 63 to secure the top honors in Flight B.

In Flight C, it was Charles Fields with a 56 and Jim Hensel with a 58, while Sam Garofolo and Cy Leap tied for Flight D honors with 57's.

SHELL ARRANGER—Ed Lawrence, known locally as the creator of Frances Langford's Outrigger Restaurant, stands next to one of the seven shell collages he recently made for a club on Andros Island in the Bahamas. Lawrence makes the collages now on custom order and for gift shops.

Lawrence creates shell collages

BY ROBBIE BEDELL

JENSEN BEACH—Many times the first thing people do when they move to Florida is sell their old "northern" furniture and decorate their homes in a more tropical theme.

One motif used is the sea and the seashore.

In a little workshop in the corner of a warehouse in Jensen Beach there is a man who makes collages from shells and flotsam and jetsam, each one an original, never are two the same.

The man's name is Ed Lawrence and he has been "fooling around" with shells for the last thirty years.

Surrounded by shells and dyed beach grasses inside his workshop, Lawrence proudly displays one of seven larger collages he recently made for a club on Andros Island in the Bahamas.

His method of making the collages is to place a variety of shells and beach grasses in various compositions and seal them in a thick layer of fiberglass resin. The final product shows clearly the colors of the shells and beach grasses with a translucent background allowing light to enter the composition from behind creating the underwater feeling.

Lawrence's first serious try at making the collages was in the decoration of Frances Langford's Outrigger Restaurant when it was constructed fifteen years ago.

Lawrence collected the shells and built the collages that can be seen today under the rafters of the polynesian restaurant.

"I couldn't find anyone else to do the job so I had to do it myself," he exclaimed.

The shell collages in the Outrigger are assembled in a clear, fiberglass resin base. Lately Lawrence has been making his collages with a deep blue aquamarine background which gives the viewer the feeling he is looking at an underwater marine scene.

Surrounded by the odor of fiberglass resin, Lawrence said he comes to work at his shop "Whenever I get the urge to come and do it."

He said he has created about 250 of them within the last few years.

"I create them as I go along," he said. "There's no way in the world to make any two alike."

the Bi-racial Committee to present their opposition to busing from the overcrowded south county school, Mrs. Wallace said three attempts had been made to do so.

"On three different occasions we (Mrs. Wallace and Mrs. Bob Post, another parent in the group) requested permission to speak before the committee. We wanted to present our proposal, even before it was presented to the school board, and had hoped they would offer input and work with us for the benefit of all.

"On all three occasions we were denied the opportunity to appear," Mrs. Wallace said.

Unhappy over the latest development, Mrs. Wallace said, "To lose our struggle because we couldn't raise the money, or because of a decision from Tallahassee, would have been one thing, but to lose because our project has been termed racial really disturbs me."

Presently there are approximately 26 black students attending the Port St. Lucie School. Fifty percent of these children are being bused from the northern portion of St. Lucie County.

Under the stipulation spelled out in the court order for integration, any student in St. Lucie County can file application to attend any school in the county where his race is the minority.

LARGE CROWD ATTENDS--An estimated 100 persons turned out for the 11 a.m. Memorial Day Services conducted at the Community Center in Port St. Lucie. This was probably the largest crowd ever attending the local services.

Supper auction, dance is planned for Center

PORT ST. LUCIE--From all indications the Community Center will have little or no difficulty in maintaining substantial operating funds as long as they have a special events committee capable of coming up with new and different ideas for an afternoon or evening of fun.

Another--first in the Center's fun activities was announced this week by Mrs. June Johnston, chairman of the events committee.

The occasion will be a box supper aucion and dance to be held at the Center, Friday evening, June 10.

Festivities will begin at 6 p.m. when Mayor Bill McChesney becomes auctioneer for an evening.

How will it work? Each lady attending will have prepared a box supper for two. These dinners will be auctioned off to the men in attendance by Mayor McChesney starting at 6 p.m.

To dine with the lady of his choice, each man will have to bid the highest price for his supper.

A social hour and dinner will follow the auction.

Music for dancing will be provided by Charlie Bloehm and his Sound Investments beginning at 8 p.m.

All proceeds from the event will benefit the Community Center's operating fund.

Tickets for the fun evening are available from the Center office, trustees, or by calling Mrs. Johnston at 878-2412.

Channel 6 is now on as Perry turns on microwave system

JENSEN BEACH--The long awaited Channel 6 from Miami snapped on the air Tuesday at 4 p.m. as Perry Cable turned on a new microwave system that also featured a clear, sharp Channel 2 and 4.

The $130,000 system was turned on by Helen Richardson, manager of the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce, as Charles Locke, vice president and general manager of Perry Cable, explained the system.

Designed by Ted Huf, a Perry engineer, the new electronic equipment will provide better reception from south Florida positions that serve the cable company. Local dignitaries, invited to the event, applauded as the three channels suddenly came in clear as the West Palm Beach stations.

The new equipment -- microwave dishes, antennas and a 400-foot high tower west of Jupiter, provides the new service.

The signal is beamed by microwave to the Stuart facility on Britt Road, Locke said.

In the Stuart, Jensen Beach, Port St. Lucie, Hobe Sound, Palm City and Salerno areas, the new equipment will enable cable subscribers to see Miami's Channel 6 for the first time. The station is actually Channel 8 on the cable.

Perry also serves Palm Beach Gardens, North Palm Beach, Lake Park, Palm Beach Shores, Jupiter Inlet Colony and surrounding areas.

CHATTING--St. Lucie County Sheriff Lanie Norvell and P.W. Clift spent a few minutes chatting after the Memorial Day Services at the Port St. Lucie Community Center.

Jeff Walters to receive Eagle award Friday

PORT ST. LUCIE--Jeff Walters of Scout Troop 499 will receive his Eagle Award, scouting's highest honor, this Friday evening, June 3, at St. Andrew's Lutheran Church.

The Eagle Court of Honor will begin at 7:30 p.m. and Scoutmaster Ed Swanson welcomes all residents of the community to attend the impressive ceremony.

Moving to the area in 1973 as a tenderfoot, Jeff has moved rapidly through the scouting ranks, passing his Eagle Board of Review in March.

Jeff has earned twelve skill awards and 24 merit badges during his scouting career. He is assistant senior patrol leader of Troop 499 and is also a member of Explorer Post 499.

Jeff is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Spencer Walters of 225 N.E. Orchard Street.

Gang enjoys summer fun

PORT ST. LUCIE--For the past two sessions the Friday Nite Gang has enjoyed itself, even though there have been no visitors and no first timers. The Snooper, who has been having an easy time of it, broke the ice last session, however, when she reported one birthday: Dorothy Pierelli, a newcomer to Port St. Lucie, the sister of Fran Lee, who was celebrating her 39th birthday. She was properly saluted by the Gang and everybody enjoyed the cake furnished by Fran Lee.

The main prize of the May 20 session was won by Gertrude Wysinski, and last Friday's main prize went to Marie Benz.

The Gang operates every Friday evening at the North Port Marina, starting at 7:30.

TE SCULPTOR–Local artist Joe Pavin is shown above in carport studio as he sculptures his subject into slate from the roofs of early New England homes. Pavin's unique art work will be on display in the lobby of the Port St. Lucie Bank from June 1 thru June 7.

ocal artist displaying nique slate sculptures

RT ST. LUCIE–Several chisels, a of slate from the roof of an early England home, acrylic paint and a are all that is needed by local Joe Pavin to turn out a unique erpiece.

sidents of the area will have the portunity of viewing the sculptured s which will be on display in the y of the Port St. Lucie Bank from 1 through June 7. Pavin will also be hand daily to demonstrate the ing phase of his unusual work.

rmer New Englander, Pavin hand tures his subject into the stone ing a basic layout. Once he has pleted the sculpture, he uses les and a dry brush technique to olor to the stone 'canvas'.

"The under paint or primer is so important to the tones and colorations of nature and the patina of age accenting each subject and grouping," Pavin said.

Carving a slate 12" by 22" will take Pavin from two hours to a week to complete and he will wear out at least one right hand glove per day while working with the slate.

Pavin says his favorite subjects are inanimate objects and he leans towards an Early American theme. While he has sculptured various subjects including nudes and the mask of comedy and tragedy, by and large his works consist of tools, household items, crocks, milk cans, wooded implements, buildings and structures.

Using the open carport of his Port St. Lucie home as an open air studio, Pavin's unique medium has attracted much attention, awards and recognition.

He shows his work extensively in the southeast, New England, and in the New York area.

Pavin resides at 111 E. Arbor Avenue with his wife Joan and their two children Tina and Chris.

MARKETING COMMITTEE–Herbert D. Haughton, president of the Port St. Bank, recently appointed a new marketing committee which will promote the bank through community service and advertising. Pictured above, left to right, Mrs. Linda Price, chairman, Mrs. Mary Jane McMartin and Mrs. Charlotte ne. While the group is busy formulating plans, they have arranged for local Joe Pavin to display a collection of sculptured slates in the bank lobby from 1 through June 7.

EXCELLENCE—The Jensen Beach Mirror won the coveted first place award for "General Excellence," among seven awards in the 1976 Florida Press Association Better Newspapers Contest. Mirror Editor Dick Campbell received the award from FPA president, S.L. Frisbee IV, at the Cocoa Beach convention of the group

Mirror wins eight journalism awards

COCOA BEACH—In what was heralded as the largest, most highly competitive newspaper contest in the history of Florida, The Jensen Beach Mirror received three first and second, two third and one honorable mention awards at the Florida Press Association convention in Cocoa Beach last weekend.

The Mirror was first place in General Excellence, the most highly prized of the 29 divisions of the contest. Other first place awards were for Best Issue, the bicentennial edition; and Best Color in a Single Advertisement, the painting of Independence Hall by Carl Engel, sponsored by First National Bank and Trust Company of Stuart.

Jean Scott, classified advertising manager of The Mirror, received the second place award for Best Classified Section.

The Mirror received a third place award for Community Service on editorial and news writing by Alice Hickey and Campbell.

The year long support of purchase of the Jensen Savannas won a third place award in Conservation writing.

A photograph of a sunrise by Dick Campbell received an honorable mention for feature photography.

Over one thousand entries made judging of the contest difficult, and only four points separated the top four newspapers in the state. The Mirror placed fourth in total points. In 1976, The Mirror was second in total points.

Campbell, who is chairman of the 1977 contest committee of FPA, said that the contest "indicates the quality of Florida newspapers. Judges, made up of prize-winning editors of the Texas Press Association, were highly complimentary of the newspapers entered."

The Mirror sponsored "Claudia Ross Memorial Award for Investigative Reporting," named for the former Mirror reported murdered in Thailand, was won by Mary Beth Herzog and Kim Banks of the Vero Beach Press Journal.

The convention was attended by Mr and Mrs Campbell, and Mr and Mrs Jack Scott.

psi men'S GOLF

PORT ST. LUCIE—The foursomes of Chuck Schwarz, Ven Lewis and Don McConnell all finished 26 under par in last Thursday's golf tournament of the Port St. Lucie Men's Golf Association, but a match of cards made Schwarz's the winner in three best balls of foursome competition on the Saints Course of Sandpiper Bay.

Leading teams Thursday were Schwarz, Herb Pulidor and Tony Quarino (the fourth score was selected at random from a 13-14 handicapper playing another foursome because the fourth member cancelled out); Lewis, Dick Lundin, Rick Vernon and Charley Swan; McConnell, George Blackmond, Bill Dunlevey and Walt McNally, all at 180. George Castigliano, Bob Engelbert, Len Schnell and Miles Harvey, 192.

Gross scores under 80 for the day: McConnell, 74; Tom Wood and Castigliano, 76; Sam Dewhurst, Ken Simmons and Al Van Nostrand, 77; Bill Coane, 78; Walt Wilmas, Charles Brown and Chuck Porteous, 79.

This Thursday, it's individual stroke play.

CHAPTER OF AARP

ERNIE CURWEN, 334-0756

Senior citizens, this week, will probably find the activities of MCCA (Martin County Council on Aging) of the most interest. Therefore, the Council's May meeting will be reported in some detail.

Russ Causey, project director, reported that donated bus number 2 was due by May 30, and donated bus number 3 about 10 days later, making three buses serving the senior citizens of Martin County and, as they'll be equipped with CB's, their effectiveness will be greatly enhanced.

President Leta Williams pointed out that the Meals on Wheels project could be expanded during the summer months, when fewer hospital patients might make more meals available for distribution. This is a completely donated service and, therefore, can be very flexible in changing to fit local conditions.

A $46,000 budget was approved by the advisory council and the executive committee for Title III and Title XX federal funds, and will be sent to the Gulfstream Council for consideration.

Mrs. Williams discussed the Title VII congregate meal program being planned at four locations: 41 meals, East Stuart; 25 meals, Hobe Sound; 24 meals, Indiantown; and 25 meals, Jensen Beach. Detailed plans call for the start to be made by July first.

The United Way contribution of $9,000 will not be accepted this year as, with the advent of changing from United Fund (Stuart) to United Way (West Palm), a number of new restrictions on outside donations would make the very successful busing and Meals-on-Wheels projects unworkable at this time.

Walter Egan, chairman of the nominating committee submitted a proposed slate of officers to be elected at the regular annual meeting, Thursday, June 23. Nominated are Leta Williams for president; Natalie Prentice, first v.p.; Kathryn Bishop, second v.p.; Bill Bishop, treasurer; Mildred Capone, secretary; and Ruth Woodruff, Natalie Prentice, Orell Aldridge, Ruth Rund, Ida Mae Carter, Jim Nixon, Maggie Hurchalla, Boyd Smith and Kitty Perryman, directors. (Note, most are also AARPers.)

It's getting monotonous. Inflation seems to be the one topic AARPers always get to sooner or later. It seems that just about everyone says it's our number one problem, but just so with Congress, as they still want to spend more than there is and more than the president says is OK.

Dale Cassens, our representative in the Florida Legislature, says in his weekly news letter that he has been "Nay sayin'" all week on increased spending and increased taxation. It looks like about half the elected officials feel that each year (good or bad) more and more services must be offered, even if it means increases in taxes on folks that don't quite keep up with them now.

If senior citizens feel that it's better to hold up on more and more new services in order to keep taxes at present levels, they should write other legislators. It'll give Dale encouragement to continue his fight.

Martin County Chapter 2223

The AARP event of last week was the planting of a purple bottle brush tree in Lake Clare Park to match the one planted there last year. Of course, we know rain is needed, but it needed it 3 p.m. Friday, May 27, when the dedication was scheduled? Actually, it didn't rain right at 3 p.m., but it came down in buckets right up to 1:55 and then started up again about 2:30, causing most folks to stay back home under cover. The affair was in commemoration of "May, Older Americans Month" and despite the inclement weather there were 16 AARPers, city officials and media people on hand. Pictures were taken and the following AARPers securred to the safety of their cars as the clouds got very heavy: Al and Ethel Tucker, Wendy Morris, Lottie Lee DeBerry, Mildred Capanna, Frank and Betty Edwardson, Eleanor Overfield, Lyle Burdon, Kitty Perryman, Frank Kirk, James McPhail, Cele Berky, Ernie and Marion Curwen.

The Picnic-ExCom scheduled for Thursday, June 2, is the next event of importance. It will be held on the Jensen Beach Causeway, starting with ExCom meeting at 11 a.m. Al Tucker is going to have a meeting of his "Call girls" at 11:30 and, at 12 noon, folks will set up for the picnic lunch. Remember to bring your own meat and drinks and a beach chair and TV table, as sometimes there isn't room for all on the picnic benches.

After eating too much, Lottie Lee DeBerry has some interesting and entertaining games planned. It's fun, bring a friend!

Don't forget, if you want the August issue to follow you up north this summer, send in your change of address. Also, if you want AARP and Martin County news each week, subscribe to The Mirror at $7.50 per year, which includes a $2 family membership to the chapter.

Port St. Lucie Chapter 2696

The possibility of a change in meeting place for the PSL chapter will be considered anew at the board of directors' meeting to be held next Thursday, the day following the anniversary picnic on Palm Island. The Northport Marina is a convenient meeting site, and the chapter is grateful to General Development for making it available at a very nominal fee, but the fact is that the Marina is just too busy a place to allow our meetings to proceed under satisfactory conditions. An art class meetings on the porch of the building, right next to our meeting room, and the hubbub that goes on there sometimes drowns out, or at best, competes successfully with our meetings. In addition, our membership has grown to the point where the room itself is becoming inadequate to handle the number of people who attend.

The auditorium at the Port St. Lucie Catholic Church is being considered as a new meeting place. Recently opened, the room has a capacity of about 200 people, and there is plenty of parking space available. It also has the other required facilities for a comfortable and smooth meeting. Several members have attended recent functions there and have come away with a good opinion of the auditorium.

At all events, the June 16 meeting will still be held at the Marina.

Program Chairman Maurine Arlisch announced there will be two speakers whose subjects will be health and rehabilitation care. Mrs. Ruth Anne Roy, administrator of the Harbor Home Health Agency, will discuss the services provided by her agency as related to the Medicare program. Mrs. Suzanna Hutchison, co-director of the Tri-County Rehabilitation Center of Stuart, will describe the work done there. The main objective of the Rehabilitation Center is to put mentally retarded and emotionally disturbed people to work productively. It is there that the chapter's monthly news bulletin is printed. Roger Hazel is co-director, with Mrs. Hutchison, of the Center.

A couple of reminders:

The anniversary picnic will be held on Palm Island, in the Savanas Reservation Area, on Wednesday, June 8, starting at 10 a.m. Bring your own food, eating accommodations and ideas.

The last Defensive Driving course of the summer will start Monday, June 13, at the Environmental Studies Center in Jensen Beach. As in the past, it will run two weeks, with two classes Monday and Wednesday, each week. Eight members of the Port St. Lucie chapter had signed up at last count, according to Gordon Long, who coordinates this participation. Incidentally, there is concrete evidence that people who pass the course receive a 10 per cent discount on their automobile insurance premiums from Colonial Penn. Maurine Arlisch, who took the course, said he had just received notification from CP that he was being given the discount.

Progress is being made toward better provision of information on the AARP insurance program with Colonial Penn. Gordon Long said he has received from George Walquist, the Colonial Penn regional representative in Hollywood, the manual which covers most questions that arise in connection with insurance, or at least tells the persons concerned what steps he should take to deal with the situation.

The St. Lucie County Council on Aging is working to raise $7,500 in matching funds against a $15,000 federal grant for the operation of its bus system, the only thing approaching a public transportation facility in this area. Sam Lawder, executive director, has contacted all organizations in the county, including AARP, interested in the continuance of the system for its contributions.

Fred Wiggin, chapter president, and our chapter made a nominal contribution. He feels strongly that all possible support should be given the Council. Its bus comes to Port St. Lucie on Monday morning and Thursday afternoon to take about 25 people each day to shopping centers of transportation to Fort Pierce. This is a door-to-door service, requiring only that those in need of advice the Council phone 465-2220 in advance. Persons using the bus are also invited to contribute whatever they can afford toward its support.

There are hundreds of people in our area who have no means of transportation, and the problem is growing all the time," Fred said. "This is a vital service which deserves all the help it can get.

Jane and Marvin Wininger went camping around Sebastian and were finally tracked down to be told of the death of Lois Wininger's father, Luther Boggs. Mr. Boggs had spent most of the winter here with Lois and Don Wininger, but was home in Annville, Kentucky, at the time of his death.

Lois and Don, of course, left immediately to be with her family and Jane tells me the funeral was last Tuesday in McKee, Kentucky. Our condolences to Lois and her family.

A few days ago they left to visit friends in Atlanta before going to Beaumont and Big Bend National Park in the Lone Star State, then, eventually, they will make their way to the home of their daughter and son-in-law, Shirley and Everett Zane in Sewell, New Jersey, where their grandchildren, Daniel, Keith and Craig await their arrival. Then, at long last, they will go to their own place in the Poconos.

Our regular callers for bingo were absent last week, so I volunteered, and you know what happens to volunteers! It was a first for me, and I neglected to lock the door of the cage, resulting in a barrage of balls flying hither and yon all over the rec hall. Agnes Surrency won the jack pot.

We are a wee bit early but we don't want to be late in congratulating Arthur and Agnes Surrency on the 58th wedding anniversary, which will occur June 7. That's quite a record!

Turtle festival begins Monday

JENSEN BEACH–The Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce this year is planning a weeklong festival in celebration of the nesting of sea turtles along Hutchinson Island.

A seminar, conducted by two local turtle experts, will be held at 7:30 p.m., Monday, at the Martin County Environmental Center in Jensen Beach.

A slide and talk presentation will be given by Bob Wagner. Ross Witham, a marine biologist for the Florida Department of Natural Resources, will also talk and show a film.

Witham is known for the research he has conducted on the hatching and migratory patterns of green turtles. Since the early 1960s he has hatched and raised green turtles in captivity and released them along different spots on the Florida coast.

At 5 p.m., Wednesday, June 15, Witham will conduct one of his turtle releases at Jensen Public Beach. The public is invited to come and see the hundreds of baby green turtles, only inches long, scamper toward the Atlantic the moment they are released.

At 9 p.m., Friday, June 17, the annual turtle watch will be held at Jensen Public Beach. Those who intend to participate in the event are asked to wear appropriate clothing to keep from being bitten by mosquitoes, and to bring insect repellant.

The turtle watchers will meet at the beach and will be summoned to the appropriate location as soon as a turtle is located.

TURTLE'S TEARS–A giant loggerhead turtle, found Monday night about a half mile from the St. Lucie Inlet, cries as she strains to perform her annual task of laying and burying her eggs on the beach. Researchers have estimated that less than one per cent of the turtles hatched from the eggs ever reach maturity. Loggerhead, and some other species of turtles, will nest on Hutchinson Island from Fort Pierce to the St. Lucie Inlet through September.

"Then, a good number of those won't be able to dig their way out of the sand. Then the birds can get them and they have years of dodging fish in the ocean before they grow big enough so they won't be eaten."

Ross Witham, a marine biologist for the Florida Department of Natural Resources, has been hatching green turtle eggs in captivity since the early 1960s.

The green turtle eggs, carefully collected from nests along the beach, are hatched at the Jensen Beach Causeway. The young turtles are then raised to various ages, tagged and released along different spots on the Florida coasts.

"The oceanic dispersement we are getting is very interesting," Witham said. "A turtle we released during a conference on sea turtles on July 25, 1976, was found in the Azores six and one half months later."

When Witham first began releasing turtles in 1964 he did not tag them so there is no positive evidence that some of those coming here to nest are the same ones he released then. But the major tagging program began in 1972 and in 1975 there was a 100 per cent increase in the number of green turtles coming to Hutchinson Island to nest. Witham said it is possible that some of these turtles are the same ones he released in the 1960s because of the size they are and the fact that it takes plus or minus 15 years for a given turtle to mature.

So far, no green turtle nests have been spotted this year on Hutchinson Island, but one "false crawl" was seen in Boca Raton. Green turtles usually do not show up in this area until June 10 or later.

In the 1800s it is reported that there was a heavy concentration of green turtles nesting in the Indian River area but their desirability as food caused overharvesting and nearly devastated them in this area.

AND BACK TO SEA–With her prehistoric ritual completed, the turtle lumbers back into the surf. Just offshore, her mate waits, ready to resume an odyssey that has never been completely chronicled.

NESTED TURTLE–Oblivious to lights and sound, the loggerhead turtle lays up to 120 eggs in the nest she has dug with her powerful flippers. Visitors who attend the turtle watch Friday will be able to watch the eggs fall into the deep hole. Once finished, the turtle covers its nest in a manner that makes it appear that there is no nest at all before moving back to the ocean.

Umbrellas, food eyed for beach concessions

JENSEN BEACH–The Martin County Commission Tuesday decided to seek bids for the renting of beach paraphernalia and set up a committee to study the possibility of permitting a concession to sell food at Jensen and possibly other county beaches.

A discussion of the rental concession arose at the last commission meeting and, Tuesday morning, the commission voted unanimously to seek the rental bids. If a company is chosen, it will be given a 40-day trial franchise.

The rental concession includes beach umbrellas, rafts and similar materials.

The commission also decided to study a food concession under a separate franchise. County Commissioner Frank Wacha said he would like the food franchise to have some control of the food sold at the beach, some of which is sold now from trucks.

"I think we owe it to the public to offer them some food service, rather than have them take the chance of being served ptomaine poisoning," Wacha said.

PSC asks Southern Gulf to restructure rates

SEWALL'S POINT–Citing that rates charged for water on Sewall's Point and Hutchinson Island might be excessive, the three-member Florida Public Service Commission (PSC) has given Southern Gulf Utilities 20 days to explain why its rates should not be restructured.

The order is a result of an investigation of the water company following public hearings held in Stuart in February and March.

The investigation, conducted by the PSC, points out that rates charged by Southern Gulf are discriminatory in that residents of Sewall's Point are charged more for water than those served by the company on Hutchinson Island, both in St. Lucie and Martin Counties.

The report shows that those in Sewall's Point pay a minimum of $4.72 for the first 4,000 gallons per month, while those on the island pay a minimum of $4 for the same amount.

"It is readily apparent...that there is discrimination in the rates charged to the same class of customers served by the Southern Gulf system," the report states.

The report also states that there is a danger of ground water infiltration and line collapse at some four-story condominiums. Some residents, in order to try to increase water pressure to their apartments, have installed booster pumps which put a negative pressure within the main supply, causing the line danger.

The installations are not approved by the Department of Environmental Regulation.

The PSC has given a 30 day deadline for Southern Gulf to come up with an engineering study with a timetable on how to solve the problems in the system.

The PSC has ordered that no further connections can be made on the system without the approval of the commission.

The report states that the water company's president and consulting engineer were present at the hearings and "acknowledged some of the service difficulties described...and corroborated the need for immediate remedial measures."

FIT graduation is Thursday

JENSEN BEACH–A total of 190 students this Thursday will graduate from the Florida Institute of Technology in Jensen Beach.

Graduates will receive Bachelor of Science degrees in oceanographic technology or environmental technology, or they will receive Associate degrees in oceanographic, environmental, medical, electrical or offshore marine technologies.

Honored during the commencement ceremonies will be Margaret Korty of Hinsdale, Ill., Kevin Tucker of Toledo, Ohio, and Frank Deeney of Feasterville, Pa. The three will receive the Outstanding Senior of the Year Award. They came within one hundredths of a point from one another in a 3.8 of a possible 4.0 grade average.

Graduates will also receive the Jerome P. Keuper, president and founder of the Florida Institute of Technology.

The graduation ceremonies will be held in the school chapel with a reception following in the adjoining breezeway.

...of the furor surrounding the ...nuclear generating unit, St. ...ie Hutchinson Island, the only ...r that has not been represented is ...the consumer. The construction ...ucie II is apparently advocated by ...ommerce, unspecified labor and ...ment, all of whom stand to ...the capital expenditure of an ...ated $886 million to a probable $1 ...in St. Lucie County. The local ...mmercial groups are solemnly ...ed to the project as they quibble ...the potential hazard to the ...ity and the environment, or the ...of the plan site selection process ...elaying tactic.

...mit that, as valid as these issues ...m to each special interest group, ...is an even greater and more ...ding interest – that of the ...er who must bear the total cost of the final decision. Has anyone attempted to justify this enormous expenditure on the basis of cost effectiveness in the supply of energy to the captive consumer? I suggest that such a procedure is in order and of prime importance.

First, it should be demonstrated by Florida Power & Light that the proposed additional capacity is needed to satisfy the energy demands of the franchised area.

Second, it should be demonstrated to the Florida Public Service Commission, in open and public hearing, that the proposed facility (St. Lucie II) is the most cost effective means of satisfying the demonstrated additional energy requirements.

Let it be understood, at this point, that the major question to be faced, in our opinion, is not the relative safety of a nuclear plant. The reliability of operation expressed as lack of downtime, the unit cost of energy in maintenance and operating costs plus the capital expenditure per kilowatt hour in comparison with alternate methods of electrical energy generation are the items of primary concern to the consumer public.

In sworn testimony before the Florida Public Service Commission on March 23, 1977, I commented upon these two points in the presence of the F.P.&L. attorneys with the right of cross-examination. The testimony was not challenged or commented on by the F.P.&L. representatives during that hearing.

First, in regard to the physical need for additional electrical generating capacity:

The existing generating capacity exceeds the 1976 actual peak load by at least 25 percent (R.J. Gardner, F.P.&L. forecast 1975-75, "Value Line", Jan. 7, 1977 report on F.P.&L. operations and profitability).

In the last three years, F.P.&L.'s growth rate, in customers and KWH sales, has been less than 3 percent per year (Ben Johnson, Office of Public Counsel, before F.P.S.C.).

Six older generating plants have been "mothballed" but retained in the capital structure at $30 million to generate $2.8 million per year in revenue to F.P.&L. (Paula Hawkins, Chmn., F.P.S.C. in Miami Herald 3-23-77).

F.P.&L. has negotiations underway to purchase the Vero Beach Utility electrical franchise and customers for $42.6 million. The Fort Pierce Utility has received "feelers" from F.P.&L. regarding the purchase of an even larger franchise for their electrical customers. This seems to indicate a shortage of customers more than a shortage of generating capacity.

The above factors raise a serious question as to the physical need for additional generating capacity. In the interest of the consumer, these questions should have been resolved before any additional capacity was authorized. In regard to the financial need for additional generating capacity, St. Lucie II would be an outstanding revenue producer for F.P.&L. At the present authorized rate of return on common equity, F.p.&L. St. Lucie II would yield a revenue of between $130 and $140 million per year, depending upon the final cost, for just setting on Hutchinson Island. Operational, maintenance and fuel costs will be over and above these figures.

Second, nuclear generation of energy is not cheap. There is a serious question as to the cost effectiveness of nuclear energy in the face of escalating costs of nuclear facilities. To illustrate: the actual capital value of the F.P.&L. plant as of Jan. 1, 1977, was $3.555 billion. The generating capacity of the plant was between 1,822 MW and 9,900 MW depending upon the data chosen.

St. Lucie II represents a reported 802 MW generating capacity. At the estimated cost for St. Lucie II, this represents a 25 percent to 28 percent increase in capital investment in plant for a mere 6.5 percent to 9 percent increase in generating capacity. Any plant or project manager in a competitive, free enterprise system would examine such a proposal with great skepticism. Florida Power & Light should justify such a seemingly uneconomic capital expenditure to the Florida Public Service Commission and to the consumer public in its service area.

For F.P.&L., St. Lucie II would be a great revenue producer, even when it was shut down! Under the existing regulatory procedure, the authorized rate of return is greater than its cost of capital funds, providing an incentive to expand its facilities. Excessive capitalization and plant expansion is encouraged because the utility can earn more than its costs to get the funds to build and hold the plant. There is little, if any, concern for a cost effective operation aimed at providing the needed service at minimum cost under these conditions.

It is suggested that the Florida Public Service Commissionuse its considerable influence upon the regulated utilities to require justification, both physical and economic, on all capital facilities that directly affect the rate base to the consumer. The present procedure is too heavily weighted in favor of the utilities, to the detriment of the captive consumer public.

To the Editor:

As residents of Port St. Lucie we have been asking the city to stop the thru trucks on St. James Dr. going north or south. These trucks are twenty wheel trucks, such as Johnson Oil, Western Auto, fruit trucks and covered box cars.

Talking to General Development, going to a council meeting, and much time an aggravation, an ordinance has been passed to have St Lucie Blvd. the entrance and exit for thru trucking.

A sign has been put up at entrance of St. James Dr. coming south for several weeks, but nothing has been put up at the parkway to direct trucks to use St. Lucie Blvd. in accordance with the ordinance. To have one sign at St. James Dr. and nothing at the parkway exit seems ridiculous.

These trucks have been breaking the law by ignoring the sign at St. James Dr. and without cooperation from the Sheriff's Department to enforce it is negligence someplace.

We live in the City of Port St. Lucie and should have the same consideration as any part of the city. One of the homes has a crack in the foundation from the tremendous weight of these trucks.

Until a sign is put up at the parkway and enforced by the Sheriff's Department, the ordinance has no meaning. This is not the way to run a city.

It was good to see Lois Foster back on her lot 415 for the weekend. Lois and Dale are living in Illinois at present where Dale is employed. They use their trailer as a summer home on one of the Wisconsin lakes.

Lois was here with her sister and brother-in-law, the Kenneth Kettners of Lake Park, Florida. The Kettners have been frequent weekend guests on the Fosters' lot.

Ginny and Vince Stratford departed Friday in their motor home for a tour of several months duration. The first stop on the itinerary will be in New Jersey to visit their son and his family, then to the New England states, Nova Scotia and other beauty spots in Canada. Sounds like a delightful summer!

Dot Blair called with the good news that she has been discharged by the specialist who was treating her in Wilmington, Delaware. She still has to check with the surgeon at home each month, but is very encouraged at the progress she is making.

Now Bill says they just have to toughen her up so that they can get down here in early November. Is it that rough here Bill?

Ben and Arlene Macierowski came up from Hialeah for the start of a busy two week vacation. Despite the gloomy weather, they spent the first three days painting the exterior of their trailer. Then they flew to Providence, Rhode Island, to be with Ben's mother on her 85th birthday.

This Saturday, they will leave Providence, fly to Atlanta and from there to Los Angeles to visit friends. While they are in California, Arlene's sister Eleanor Phillips and her husband Tom will join them for four days.

Ben and Arlene wisely saved the last weekend of vacation to spend at home in Hialeah resting before returning to their jobs, she with the Central Bank and Trust Company of Miami and he with Eastern Airlines.

The Arenas and Youngs had a great Sunday afternoon at the Stuart Elks Club open house.

Before Peg and Al Ray said "Goodbye" Thursday to start their summer travels in Georgia, South Carolina and North Carolina, they had a surprise visit from their son Bob and his wife. Rob and wife hope to be able to spend a few weekends on Mom and Dad's lot in Holiday Out while the seniors are away.

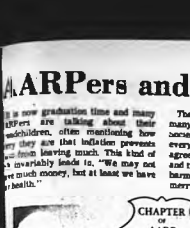
ARPers and grandchildren . . .

is a new graduation time and many ARPers are talking about their grandchildren, often mentioning how they are that inflation prevents them from leaving much. This kind of s invariably leads to, "We may not get much money, but at least we have ir health."



GH JENCKS. 878-3856

ow, maybe that's something we ld leave to our grandchildren...a ge chance for a good long active life. AARPers and all folks retirement age confronted with many deaths of ost neighbors and relatives, some there is at least one every month and ost cases it is because of smoking ted disease. This death cause could eliminated for our grandchildren if ge mighty effort was made, and the AARPers could start it.

The Surgeon General says smoking too many cigarettes will kill you; Cancer society confirms it; researchers in every country have proved it; AMA agrees; cigarette makers now admit it and try to filter out, unsuccessfully, the harmful ingredients, but Congress goes merrily along grazing subsidy to the farmers to grow more tobacco.

There's a suspicion saccharine could be bad, so it's banned. The same with red dye, etc. But not with cigarettes that have been proved tin and again to kill. Agriculture says it's not our problem; Food and Drug won't have it; and so it goes, with more and more cigarettes being smoked each year, piling up early painful deaths for our grandchildren. Most AARPers quit smoking many years ago and found it well worth the effort. You ask them and they'll say they wish they'd done it sooner.

Therefore, if smoking is as bad as records show, Congress should take the bull by the horns and do something, han it, make it a prescription drug, or at least stop subsidizing tobacco. Marijuana, which does not seem to kill anyone, gets a lot of government attention, so maybe Congress could be made to look into the "killer". If AARPers want their grandchildren to live longer, write your Congressmen and tell them to have tobacco labelled the "Deadly Poison" that it is.

Martin County Chapter 2223

The EzCom-Picnic would have been rained out if it had been held on the Jensen Causeway as planned. The night before prediction of 80 percent rain indicated there could be a problem, so Vince Bocchino, superintendent of Langford Park, was contacted and said the use of the clubhouse would be OK. Then, the telephone brigade got busy notifying AARPers of the change and they were very successful, as about 40 turned up on a very rainy Thursday, June 2.

+++

The EzCom meeting started about 11 a.m. with the following business being handled. Called to order by Pres. Ernie Curwen. Minutes, treasurer's report and correspondence disposed of. By hand vote, it was decided to skip the July EzCom-Picnic, too near the Fourth.

+++

Programs - Edith Hill, appointed chairman, will make a tentative listing of programs for all next season's meetings, compile a list of all suggested ideas and explore possibility of "specials".

+++

Fair Booth - Wendy Morris has AARP listed for a booth next year, location designated next Sept. Art and craft items for sale should be started now. Edith Hill will sponsor the first get together. All interested, call 334-3440.

+++

Health - Hazel Wyse, chairman, said recount shows 48 at May Martin County Health Clinic instead of 40. Next one, Friday, June 17 at 9 a.m. at Langford Park. Free blood pressure checks and nutrition counseling.

+++

The youth will be using Langford Park during the summer, and Vince Bocchino would like to have some health movies for them on clinic day. This could be right in line with AARP "GAP" (Generation Alliance Program).

It has been felt that AARP should be represented on the Health Planning Council and the request is on its way through channels.

Pearl has found that the hospital will not bill you on the 80 percent that Medicare takes care of if you have proof that your minimum has been met, thereby eliminating all that waiting for months and months for the refund to come through. For info, call 334-5888.

Senior Info Center - Boyd Smith, chairman, is also chairman of the revitalized Crisis-Line which should be in business by Labor Day. He feels that the Info Center will follow right along and is proceeding to get a crew together. All interested call 334-2244.

+++

Tax Aid Coordinator Paul Berglund informed the members that some changes have been called to his attention, such as: sick pay data applicable revised; elderly and income credit changed back; retirement income credit new, not Oct. 76 date. If IRS has billed and fined you on these, don't pay; write, telling of above. If you don't understand, which I don't, call Paul, 283-2990.

+++

Congregate Meals - Frank Wachs was contacted. Said they were all cleared away at the local level, locations approved, etc., at Jensen, East Stuart, Indiantown and Hobe Sound. Now up to Gulf Stream Council on Aging, but it still is possible to get program underway by July 1. Volunteers to serve and supply entertainment are needed. For info, call 334-0756.

+++

Retirement Housing Chairman Mildred Capanna said there was little or much to report on the Route 76 project, except they may have to build a 10 foot fence around it. Buccaneer Inn will have complete facilities, rooms, meals and entertainment; now open for inspection. Call Ma Ringe or Santini, 287-4500, for complete information. Sharp Riverhouse, 2975 NE Indian River Dr., an adult congregate living facility (Hefel 1) will be completed about June 15, open house date will be announced. Call Mary Sharp, 334-7575, for info.

Travel Chairman Jill Morris said the Jungle Queen Cruise of December is, of course, a long way off, but mark it on your calendar. Also, start making a list of bus trips around Florida that you think would be interesting, so Jill will have some ideas to start with next fall.

Classes - don't forget, another Defensive Driving class starts Monday, June 13, 2 p.m. at the Environmental Studies Center, Jensen. Call 287-4400, ext. 130, for info and registration.

LETTERS FROM AARPers

Some folks said they'd write and they did. So far letters have been received as follows:

Past Pres. "Chlac" MacIntyre writes from Glenwood Springs, Colorado: "Had a miserable trip out here. Trailer tire blew out in Orlando, hose connection blew out in Ocala and lost all antifreeze; trailer spring broke in Santonio (@127.50) and all day snow in Colorado going over the mountains. However, it's fine here now, swimming every day, air temp. 70 degrees, water 92 degrees."

Director Dot Beck writes from Beverly, Mass., "now instead of Dollar Days, they have Senior Citizen Days with 10 per cent off everything."

Ethel McDowell writes from up there somewhere, "Colonial Penn has just informed me that they will insure my mobile home on a rented lot."

Dick Aumiller, country music combo player, writes from Fort Royal, Pa., "Spending a couple of hours every day at Senior Center along with getting our room rent for $1.00."

Frank Glazier sent a clipping from the Keene, N.H., Evening Sentinel showing him with a group of dignitaries as they turn over the earth for their $195,525 Senior Center improvement project.

DISCOVER LIGHTLY

Friday, June 10: Swimming at Martin County High School Pool, also every Tues. and Fri. For time, call Helen Lauchley at 334-3126.

Monday, June 13: Start of Defensive Driving, 2 p.m. Environmental Center.

Wednesday, June 15: Senior Activities Club, Yacht Center, Stuart, 1 p.m. Cards and crafts. Every Wed. until further notice.

Port St. Lucie Chapter 2696

Congratulations of a hearty nature are in order for two institutions with which our chapter has had direct connections. First, we tender rousing kudos to Dick Crandell and all the friendly folk at The Mirror for walking off with practically every award in sight at the Florida Press Association convention. Such awards constitute recognition of professional skill and integrity, and having toiled in this vineyard for quite a few years, we know that they mean considerably more when handed out by your peers than they do when coming from groups outside the profession. So, a doff of the AARP bonnet to our friends at the Mirror.

Equally in line for kudos are the people at the Coalition of Florida Consumers which fought the Florida Power & Light request for a $349 million rate increase. Out chapter contributed $100 to the exchequer of the CFC, whose operations were financed entirely by contributions.

The CFC, headed by Bob Brunton, was the only organized consumer group to appear before the Public Service Commission in opposition to the FPL request. The importance of such an appearance cannot be over-estimated. The PSC is required to reach its decision on rate increase requests on the basis of testimony presented at its public hearings. If no one appears to speak for the consumer, the request may be granted, in effect. By default.

The PSC action granted FPL $185.5 million, far under the $348 million request.

THE MIRROR JUNE 8, 1977 PAGE 9

The difference means that you, as a consumer of FPL electricity, will save from $4 to $5 a month on future electric bills from what those bills would have been if the FPL petition had been granted in full. Nice going, CFC!

By the time this appears, the anniversary will have been held and a good time will have been had by all as preparations replies have been sent out into the act and send showers down that day. We're keeping our fingers crossed.

In the meantime, Jim Kearney and Bill Armat, who handle such activities for the chapter, have been busier than ants at a picnic. In addition to making arrangements for the picnic, they have two trips planned for August and October, one of them a real crall blazer for our members.

The first of these events is scheduled for Wednesday, Aug. 17, and it is one of those very pleasant excursions, a trip aboard the Jungle Queen, up the New River to the island, from Fort Lauderdale and back. As those who have enjoyed this trip know, the traveler gets a standard dinner on the island, after which he is treated to an old-time vaudeville show right next to the dining hall, then boards the vessel for the return trip. Usually, there is a songfest on the boat going back to Fort Lauderdale. A bus will leave the Northport Marina to take participating members to Lauderdale at between 3 and 4 p.m. The bus returns with its passengers when the Jungle Queen docks and usually reaches the Marina a bit after midnight. The cost for this outing is $20 for members and $23 for non-members, who are welcome to join the group, according to Jim. Checks should be made out to Ask Mr. Travel and may either be taken there or delivered to Jim or Bill.

The trail blazer mentioned above is a five-day voyage to the Bahamas, known officially as a "Bahamas." The M S Sunwind II of the Bahama Cruise Line, a vessel of 15,000 tons, refitted and equipped with stabilizers this year, will carry the merrymakers to a series of islands in the Bahamas. Participants will leave by bus from the Northport Marina at 4:30 p.m. Monday, Oct. 9, and board the Sunwood II in Miami that evening. Tuesday, the group will disembark at Georgetown, Great Exuma Island; Wednesday and Thursday will be spent in Nassau, leaving the afternoon of the latter day for Club Cay, Berry Island. The Sunwood will pull into Miami harbor at about 8 a.m. on Friday, Oct. 12, and the bus will be waiting to bring the tourists back to Port St. Lucie.

Jim Kearney says he is aiming at a target of from 40 to 44 persons in the group that will make this trip. The cost is not yet known but will be announced later. Jim is now negotiating with the Bahama Cruises people on the fare.

We talked with Sam Lawder, executive director of the St. Lucie County Council on Aging, about the transportation situation mentioned last week. As will be recalled, the Council has received a $15,000 grant for new buses, subject to raising $7,500 in matching funds.

Sam said about $1,200 has been raised so far and he feels confident the remainder will be gathered in before the deadline, June 30. He said any individual donations would be welcomed. Send your checks to: St. Lucie Council on Aging, Room 127, Arcade Building, Fort Pierce 33450.

If the money is raised, the Council is considering two alternatives - buying two 12-seat buses, or one 19-center. Whichever route is chosen, the Council will be able to expand its transportation services, and in an area where no public transportation of any kind exists, this will be a godsend. So, if you can spare $5 or $10, please send it along to the Council.

Grass is greener . . . .

This week there'll be no mention of the gorgeous Martin County weather, except to say the grass is greener. Those of us dancing, shuffleboard, ceramics and cards, is free, the woman alone need spend little for amusement."

There was a lot more, but first, let's see who remembers those days.

RAMBLING AROUND

Walter and Elsa Lindell, Circle Dr., say Ken Smith is with his brother in Fort Lauderdale, but would like to come back to OBP. Write to him c-o Merle Smith, 70 Compass Lane, Bay Colony, Ft. Lauderdale 33310.

Ellen Nixon, industrious letter writer, heard from three friends this week. Dick and Julia Aumiller are fine up there in Port Royal, Pa., with two blankets and furnace at night and air conditioner in the afternoon.

Ralph and Ruth Ortt, 7th St., had a good trip to Kingston, Ill. Ralph and daughter Betty have put in a big garden and plan to go to lake (Gulliver, Mich.) in July.

Bob and Mary Strohm, 13 8th st., had a good trip to Kansas City, Mo., in the new compact car that averaged 34 mpg. Found that neighbors had planted tomatoes for them.

Vi Watts of Banyan sent a card saying: "Nice trip to New Hampshire, visited Ethel Rafuse and found her enjoying Lake Winnipesaukee.

+++

Eden Yeago, 13 S. Melaleuca, heard from Deedee and Orvil Mertz of Almona the other day. They are fine up there in Indiana on a lake where Orvil used to fish through the ice in the winter.

+++

Warren and Evelyn Grove, 9 N 4th, are back here after visiting a daughter in Newport News, Va., where there was a new 9 month old granddaughter; and after visiting a son in Harrisonburg, Pa., where there was a new 7-month old grandson. Also, they found Ted and Olive Witmer in great spirits, living nearby.

When I stopped by to visit with Bessie Mead, I almost got put to work as Bessie had just had a faucet leak flood her cupboard, but Claude Keppie was on his way to help (an OBP trait).

It's a little lonely up that way now, but Maggie Davis is a good neighbor out back, and Maggie's dog Ginger tells 'em in no uncertain terms if a stranger approaches.

There was a surprise party at Pearl Wheelock's the other day. Hilda Giblin asked her friend Mabel Stevens to go for a walk one noontime and they walked right up to Pearl's and into a birthday party for Mabel, a huge chicken dinner and all the fixin's with cake. It was a complete surprise to Mabel when out popped Margaret Weeks, Ruth Phelps and Pearl.

Nancy Rositer, 19 Almond, in another ardent letter writer, so she gets frequent replies. Lately she has heard: Jack and Edith Dodge of Arborvitae are at Sabago Lake, Me., with two grandsons, one graduated Summa Cum Laude.

Frank and Georgiana McDonough, 6th St., are at Lake View, Mich., AOK, and Frank is mowing grass all the time.

Carl and Ethel Birchfield, 4th St., are in Marysville, Tenn. They are real oldtimers and married over 50 years. Both are fine and loafing all day long.

Also, Nancy has had letters from Jennie Haunsess, British Columbia; Hazel Wilson, West Virginia; Mary Gordon, Pennsylvania; Ira Gill, Maine; Nettie Christie, Michigan, all saying they are fine

Nancy now has to hurry and answer all those nice, interesting letters so we'll have further news, later in the summer.

You all here know all about it, period.

However, it does look as though the drought has turned, as there were some "showers" last week and some practitioners have parked their travel trailers on Lil Bit Lane, and who can forget them, when there's constant music in the air with mockingbirds singing on high and a flash of brilliant red as the cardinals dart through the trees.

OBP is a good place to be.

There is a notice up: "Free Blood Pressure Check by the Martin County Health Dept., Fri., June 17, 8 a.m. at Stuart-Ford-Park." The notice also reminds us of the nutrition counseling program to find out what if these services are used they will be discontinued and, if not patronized, the types of services offered could be increased.

PARK EVENTS

What do the folks do in the summer? Why, they go to bingo twice a week and clearly at that, to get all the news that will be printed in this column! They go bowling morning and night time, too.

Then, as an added treat for the summertime OBPers, Ruth Hoke is going to have one of those grand pot luck affairs that were so popular last year. It'll be Friday, June 10, at 6:30 p.m.

All who want to attend must sign the list at the office, designating the "cash, for four or more, that they'll bring. Signing the list is very important as one time last year a vast number failed to do so, making an unpleasant confusion just at eating time as one table after another had to be brought out and set up. Therefore, Ruth requests, "Please sign the office list, no adequate preparations can be made."

Don't miss this first pot luck.

CARD SCORES

Duplicate, June 4: Mike Dryer and Val Wells; Gladys Gilbert and Mildred Skinner and Jay Ehringer and Vinnie Taylor, tied for second; Trudie Chalsea and Gay Cammack, third.

Canasta, May 31: Connie Hileman, Josephine Dorgal, Vinnie Taylor.

Pinochle, May 28: Warner Johnson, Charles Wiedemann, Veronica Snyder.

Pinochle, June 2: Ruth Troger, Mildred Epler, Sue Johnson, Irene Burgess.

Pinochle, June 4: Irene Burgess, Warner Johnson, Myrt Huntington, Charles Wiedemann.

HOSPITAL, ETC.

Donations were made to the ambulance fund in memory of Walter Neva by Anna Larson, Mr. and Mrs Carl Engel, Axel and Mildred Beck.

Walter Neva, 14 S. Key Lime, died June 1 in Rochester, New York.

Mrs Katherine Grant, 1 NE 5th, died late in May in Kennebunk Nursing Home after a long illness (per clipping submitted by Avis Colby).

Ellen Failing, 13 SW 6th, is in the hospital, but an early release is expected.

Peggy Dryer, 7 Almond, is back home after a short stay in the hospital.

DO YOU REMEMBER WHEN....

This week's pot luck supper brought to mind some of the affairs of years ago but, since available records are skimpy and memories confounded, ol' timers are asked to do some recollecting for a more detailed account next week.

But from Fred Pettit's scrapbook it was learned that the pot lucks of bygone days were associated with state nights. It seems that after the suppers, different groups by the states, would supply entertainment such as, bubble gum blowing contests; a mock trial, complete with judge, jury, lawyers witnesses and culprit; the "traveling men", two men with two suitcases of women's clothes who had to put them on and take them off while everybody watched. Then, there was the man who had lost his wife and asked the undertaker for some remembrance and, blindfolded, was given eye glasses and other weird parts. Also, one time there was a man's fashion show that probably wouldn't be permitted in these gay times. Who can correct or amplify.

While digging out the above, some quite interesting things were uncovered, such as an article by Findleys on "Widows of OBP", published in "Mobile Living" in 1960.

Talking about how nice it is here for the widows, here's a direct quote:

"Most agreed that, having a nice coach to begin with, a woman could live adequately on a little more than $100 a month and handsomely on $175. Necessary monthly expenses are rent, about $25; electricity and bottled gas, about $5, and food, about $50. Since all of the planned park entertainment, such as

Jim Horne's goal? Cruise the islands

BY ROBBIE BEDELL

JENSEN BEACH–Some say a boat is nothing more than a hole in the water you pour your money into.

For many boaters this may well be true, but for Jim Horne of Jensen Beach, his boat is a labor of love.

In September Horne traveled down to Ft. Lauderdale and bought a 29-foot, 11-year-old Japanese-made ketch sailboat in dubious condition.

"The hull was OK but the deck was all torn up," he said. "I knew that I was going to have to rebuild the whole deck and cabin."

The boat was ordered built in Japan by an American Navy officer in 1966. The officer left Japan, however, before the boat was completed. Someone back in America found out about it and went to Japan and sailed it across the Pacific, through the Panama Canal to Ft. Lauderdale.

Though the boat needed a lot of work, the mahogany-planked hull was suitable when Horne brought it up in September.

Horne, who is employed at Whitacar Boat Works in Stuart, uses the knowledge he gains from his job to complete the intricate carpentry tasks on his boat in Jensen Beach. He keeps his ketch at Bailey Boat Company.

"I knew it was going to be a big job," he said. "And it's costing me a lot of money. It's all top quality, though. I'm using all stainless, bronze and mahogany. A boat in as good a condition as this will be when I'm finished could cost $20,000."

What is Horne going to do when he finishes his task?

"Cruise," he said.

He and his wife Nancy, along with friend Doug Feindt and others who own their own sailboats plan to cruise the waters of the Bahamas and the Caribbean.

Horne said he has gotten a lot of advice on woodworking from Jensen Beach resident Hans Lukat, a master carpenter who does woodwork at the Whitacar yard. Whitacar's as well known for making custom sportfishing yachts.

Horne also said he would never trade his boat for a newer one of fiberglass construction.

"I like the feel of wood," he said. "I've learned an awful lot about it while working with it at Whitacar's. It's really a good yard. I really don't think I would ever buy a fiberglass boat."

City to rebid post office

PORT ST. LUCIE—While city officials in Port St. Lucie have, from time to time, tried shaking the political tree in hopes of getting a first class postal facility in their area, it was learned this week that the Postal Service is considering the possibility of constructing a Postal Service-owned facility in the area, and that the project is in the Service's Five-Year Capital Budget Program.

Meanwhile, during the Monday night workshop session, city officials were quick to support the city manager in his efforts to have the present contract between the city and the United States Postal Service terminated as soon as possible.

"No one can deny that this small post office, located in City Hall, has been a great convenience to the people of Port St. Lucie. I think it is a pity that a city the size of this would have to subsidize the U.S. Postal Service to the extent of more than $6,000 per year," City Manager Elmer Cox said.

According to Cox, the Port St. Lucie station grosses approximately $30,000 per year.

"It would seem that $200 out of that is a mere pittance for the services we perform," Cox said.

He gained the support of the Council when he said he has taken administrative action to ask the local postmaster to contact higher authorities to declare the contract be terminated.

For the past two to three years the city has received $200 annually for operating the contract station in the City Hall.

Cox pointed out that one of the staff secretaries of the city devotes 85 percent of her time to the operation of the contract station.

"This means the city is subsidizing the Postal Service to the extent of approximately $6,000 per year," he said, adding that, while the local post office is a worthwhile facility, it is petty bad when a city like Port St. Lucie, because of its limited operation and revenue, would have to support an empire like the U.S. Post Office.

"I think it only fitting the City get a stipend of $800 to $1,000 to help us support their station," Cox told his listeners.

The purpose of having the present contract terminated is merely a formality which would allow the city to rebid for the station at the higher figure. According to the city manager, this is the only legal way of accomplishing this end.

July 4 plans take shape

PORT ST. LUCIE—Plans for the City's July 4 celebration begin to really take shape as the Parade Committee this week selected the Grand Marshal and the winning parade theme.

Clement A. Bramley, Jr., has been selected as the Grand Marshal. Bramley is the former president of the Port St. Lucie Bank and is a resident of the Country Club area.

"For Freedom We Won" was judged the winning theme for the parade. Nicky Gallo was the fifth grade student of the Port St. Lucie Elementary School who submitted the winning entry. He was presented with a $25 bond, donated and presented by Councilman Schuyler Sharpe during the workshop session of the City Council Monday evening.

Second place entry in the parade theme contest was submitted by Damon Gilmore, who received $10 in cash donated by Mrs. Alice Jensen for his efforts, "Hip Hip Parade".

The Port St. Lucie Bank will participate in the parade as a key entry, now that the band is equipped with blue and white bolero jackets, all 40 of which were custom made by Mrs. Jensen. Band members have purchased appropriate caps to make their appearance impressive.

The fireworks have been ordered and the program, which will cost $600, is expected to last approximately 20 minutes.

The Port St. Lucie Lions Club will be responsible for the assembly of the parade units in the North Port Marina area and streets immediately west of the marina.

The parade will begin at the Marina at 10 a.m. on Monday, July 4, and will proceed from the Marina on Prima Vista Boulevard west, ending at Sportsman Park.

Those wishing to enter floats, marching units or other entries in the parade are asked to call 334-0097 or 878-0097 as soon as possible.

SECOND PLACE—Damon Gilmore was awarded a $10 cash prize donated by Mrs. Alice Jensen for his July 4 parade theme "Hip Hip Parade". The award was presented during the Monday night workshop meeting at the Port St. Lucie City Hall.

Council on salary suit--R.I.P.

PORT ST. LUCIE—For the first time in more than two years, the City Council has unanimously agreed not to pursue any further action to collect overpaid salaries to former councilpersons.

Seymour Fleming, president of the Civic League and a leader of the one-time Interested Homeowners of Port St. Lucie, a group that three years ago brought suit against the City, said during the Monday night workshop session that he thought officials (mainly the city's finance committee) was "Kicking a dead horse."

During a recent meeting, the City's Finance Committee requested the City Council to attempt to collect nearly $4,000 former Councilman Larry Kimmel allegedly owed the city from overpaid salaries (holding and being paid for more than one job) before he can receive the money (about $4,000) due him under the pension plan.

Fleming said the city has paid three other former councilmen and a former city attorney nearly $20,000 from the pension plan, so why shouldn't Kimmel receive his money.

The courts ruled the pension plan was legal, but the City Council later revoked it on the claim it was an "unethical" plan.

Fleming told his listeners, "We did everything we could do under the law to collect the funds from these people and I think it is time to put this matter to sleep once and for all.

"It is not as part of a personal vendetta against any one individual."

Assistant City Attorney Fred Horowitz said that Kimmel's pension payment was not being held up because of any money he supposedly owest the city for dual salaries, but it is a matter of determining his (Kimmel's) vested rights in the plan.

"The difference between Kimmel and the other three councilmen who have already collected under the plan is that the others were one hundred per cent vested while Larry Kimmel is 40 per cent vested. The only holdup on Kimmel's payment is awaiting the proper figures from the accountants," Horowitz said.

While Councilman Schuyler Sharpe and Councilwoman Lolita Kernohan have consistently opposed dropping the collection efforts, both agreed during the Monday night meeting the city would stand to lose more than it could gain in bringing about a suit to collect.

Former Councilman Frank Rose also advocated collection by any means available, while Larry Kimmel and Bill McChesney have always been on the opposite side of the fence.

At the close of the lengthy discussion, and following a straw vote of the council, City Manager Elmer Cox was instructed to put the matter on next Tuesday's agenda where the entire issue "could be laid to rest once and for all".

Mayor McChesney said the only thing that can come of this matter is more unfavorable publicity by members of the press.

Jim Horne's goal? Cruise the islands

BY ROBBIE BEDELL

JENSEN BEACH—Some say a boat is nothing more than a hole in the water you pour your money into.

For many boaters this may well be true, but for Jim Horne of Jensen Beach, his boat is a labor of love.

In September Horne traveled down to Ft. Lauderdale and bought a 39-foot, 11-year-old Japanese-made ketch sailboat in dubious condition.

"The hull was OK but the deck was all torn up," he said. "I knew that I was going to have to rebuild the whole deck and cabin."

The boat was ordered built in Japan by an American Navy officer in 1966. The officer left Japan, however, before the boat was completed. Someone back in America found out about it and went to Japan and sailed it across the Pacific, through the Panama Canal to Ft. Lauderdale.

Though the boat needed a lot of work, the mahogany-planked hull was suitable when Horne brought it up in September.

Horne, who is employed at Whitacar Boat Works in Stuart, uses the knowledge he gains from his job to complete the intricate carpentry tasks on his boat in Jensen Beach. He keeps his ketch at Bailey Boat Company.

"I knew it was going to be a big job," he said. "And it's costing me a lot of money. It's all top quality, though. I'm using all stainless, bronze and mahogany. A boat in as good a condition as this will be when I'm finished could cost $30,000."

What is Horne going to do when he finishes his task?

"Cruise," he said.

He and his wife Nancy, along with friend Doug Feindt and others who own their own sailboats plan to cruise the waters of the Bahamas and the Caribbean.

Horne said he has gotten a lot of advice in woodworking from Jensen Beach resident Hans Lubat, a master carpenter who does woodwork at the Whitacar yard. Whitacar's is well known for making custom sportsfishing yachts.

Horne also said he would never trade his boat for a newer one of fiberglass construction.

"I like the feel of wood," he said. "I've learned an awful lot about it while working with it at Whitacar's. It's really a good yard. I really don't think I would ever buy a fiberglass boat."

Salthouse will preach at Community Church

JENSEN BEACH—Dr. Arlen Ross Salthouse will be the guest preacher at the Jensen Beach Community Church this Sunday, June 12, at 10 a.m.

Dr. Salthouse is from the Reform Church of Three Bridges, New Jersey. He attended Rutgers University, the Toronto School of Theology, and earned his doctorate at Birmingham University in Birmingham, England. He spent seven years with the Presbyterian mission in Granada.

Mrs. Salthouse will accompany her husband, and the congregation is invited to meet the couple at the Dialogue Session following the worship service.

Sailfish Club summer tourney

STUART—Recent entries in the Stuart Sailfish Club Summer Tournament included a 43-pound cobia, caught by Richard Scott of Wheaton, Illinois, while fishing aboard the Gannett II with Capt. Ed Engebretsen.

A 58-lb. 12 oz. wahoo was entered by Fred R. Morgan of Port St. Lucie.

PSL Women's Golf

PORT ST. LUCIE—The Port St. Lucie Women's Golf Association played "4-club" golf on the Sinner's Course of Sandpaper Bay on Wednesday, June 1.

An awards luncheon followed play.

Winners during the three month period were Margaret Wilson, Ruth Kretsch, Mary Jacobi, Millie Kursi, Joanna Hart, Kay Stabler, Ann Bozarth and Ann Fraher in the 18-hole group.

Turtle festival is under way

JENSEN BEACH–The turtles are here, the turtles are here!

Turtle Festival Week got underway Monday with a larger than expected crowd showing up at the Martin County Environmental Studies Center to hear and view presentations by Ross Witham and Bob Wagner.

Wednesday evening at 5 p.m., Witham, a marine biologist for the Florida Department of Natural Resources and pioneer turtle researcher, will release several hundred baby green turtles he has hatched from eggs recovered along the beach at Hutchinson Island.

The public is invited to attend the release which will be held at Jensen Public Beach.

On Friday night, the public will have a chance to see turtles on the other end of the life scale.

At 9 p.m. turtle watchers will congregate again at Jensen Public Beach in hopes of locating a mother turtle in the process of laying her eggs.

The Florida Marine Patrol, the Martin County Sheriff's Department and others will be scouting the beach looking for a turtle. When one is located, the crowd will then move to the area where the mother turtle is laying eggs.

Fred Meeker, Chamber of Commerce director and turtle watch organizer, said he is looking for someone to donate th use of a dune buggy to help locate the turtle. Anyone willing to help out should call Helen at the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce, 334-3444.

Witham said there are several rules of courtesy to heed while looking for and watching turtles.

Never make noise or flash lights on the beach while walking and looking for a turtle. If you do you will frighten those that have approached the beach with plans on coming up to lay.

Once the turtle does start laying eggs, however, you can talk and take snapshots.

Witham reminds everyone that it is against Florida law to disturb or molest turtles, so don't touch them or attempt to ride them back into the water.

One last thing, don't; don't, forget to dress with long pants and shoes with socks and bring a good supply of insect repellant. If there is no breeze off the water, you're going to be harassed by mosquitoes.

...URE–I am a loggerhead turtle. You can see me almost any night on the ...hes of Hutchinson Island. But, don't approach me when I am coming up the ...h, or I will go back into the surf. Wait until I am laying my eggs, then you can ...it up and see me do my thing. I did a nest I don't approach. If you shine a ...light in my eyes before I am laying eggs, I'll lumber back into the ocean. Don't ...on my back when I'm laying eggs. How would you like it? Don't ride on my back when I am returning to the ocean. I'm tired, and that is just too much. I'll put it this way. Treat me as you would be want to be treated before and after you laid more than 100 eggs in the sand. Then, we'll get along really well, and I'll keep returning each year so that your children can watch me, too. For the correct way to watch me, attend the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce Turtle Watch this Saturday night at the Jensen Beach public beach pavilion, beginning at nine p.m. I'll be there

...ensen Chamber goes ...o governor on DOT

BY ROBBIE BEDELL

...NSEN BEACH–The village of ...en Beach still has no sign at the Port ...Lucie interchange of the Florida ...pike.

...ter repeated attempts to deal with ...Florida Department of Transportation (DOT) and a request for help from ...resentative Dale Cassens, the ...mber has voted unanimously to ask ...istance from Governor Reubin ...'.

...e Chamber asked for the sign in the ...place to allow motorists driving ...on the turnpike to get off at the new ...St. Lucie interchange of the ...pike. By doing so, the travelers ...have the extra drive of going south ...e Stuart interchange and then back ...to Jensen Beach. The City of Port St. Lucie passed a resolution several months ago supporting the Jensen Chamber's request.

The sign was requested from the DOT by the Chamber several months ago, but in the successive attempts to correspond with the state agency, letters came back with an assortment of reasons why the request could not be granted. The Chamber was not satisfied with any of the answers.

"We are a tourist oriented community," the letter states, "and have no other local payroll, as such. We are concerned about every possibility of promoting Jensen Beach, both for the survival of the businesses and the general welfare of the tax paying citizenry."

The letter states that the Chamber has had no success in dealing with the DOT and asked that whatever reasons preventing the erection of a sign be "struck from existing regulations."

"We do not have time to sit around for months or years while the bureaucracy moves in a favorable manner, if at all," the letter says.

The letter continues, saying, "We are putting the ball in your lap and we expect that you will take the necessary steps to help us reach our goal."

"We are prepared to release the necessary information to whatever media we would deem necessary to help us in accomplishing this aim."

The letter is signed by Jack Klett, president of the Chamber, representing the board of directors.

TURTLE FEST–A banner stretched across Commercial Street by the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce announced the dates of the Turtle Festival.

IN THE AIR–Perched atop the one year old flagpole at House of Refuge are Bob Fenton and the pole's builder, Pat Kenny. Kenny, at the top, is installing a new ball to replace the one which, last week, was knocked off by a bolt of lightning.

...ightning bolt prompts ...efuge flagpole repairs

...NSEN BEACH–"It was a funny ..." said House of Refuge Keeper Ian ...erfield. "I've heard it before but this ...had a crunch like a bagfull of ...intercrumbs being crushed."

...oking up at the two figures perched ...the tall white flagpole, Butterfield ...explaining the experience of ...ing a bolt of lightening sear into the ...the pole just feet away from where ...d his wife reside on the oceanfront ...d of Refuge compound on ...nsen Island.

...e alarm went off and I thought it had hit one of the power poles outside," he said.

But a closer inspection revealed that it had struck the pole and in doing so cut off the ball at the top and split the top section for the first couple of feet.

On Monday morning the builder of the pole, Pat Kenny, and local tree trimmer Bob Fenton, scaled the pole to make the repairs.

Kenny, who used to make ships masts in Newfoundland as a youth, gazing up at the damage, recalled when he finished building the flagpole a little more than a year ago.

"Former Keeper Chris Nahm and I looked at the pole, just put up, clean and white against the sky," Kenny said with a smile. "Then Chris said, "you know Pat maybe we should have put a lightening rod on it." I laughed and said, "Well, it's too late now. Here we are, a year later and its been struck."

Kenny and Fenton went up the pole and in two days working in the summer sun, managed to repair the split, put a new ball at the top of the pole and install a new copper lightening rod.

No word from PSC on SGU

SEWALL'S POINT–The Town of Sewall's Point has heard no reply from the Florida Public Service Commission (PSC) regarding the opposition of a moratorium on water hook-ups to new construction served by the Southern Gulf Utilities water company.

In a letter to the PSC, Mayor Ed Gluckler last week opposed the moratorium citing that Southern Gulf does not have the same problems within the limits of Sewall's Point as it has on Hutchinson Island in both Martin and St. Lucie Counties.

Southern Gulf was ordered more than a week ago by the PSC to improve the quality of water service within the range of its customers. Hutchinson Island residents, especially those living on the top floor of condominiums, have been plagued by low water pressure. Some residents have installed booster pumps to get the water to their apartments causing a burden on the lines, the PSC stated.

In his letter, Gluckler said there are 25 homes under construction in the town, all of which are single-storied structures, and failure to have water hook-ups would cause a health and economic hardship to the owners of the homes. He also stated the failure to provide water to the homes could prove to be more of a fire hazard than providing the water even if there were low water pressure.

The PSC order to Southern Gulf also said that the water company should explain the present rate structure charged to customers in the town and on the island. The PSC stated the rates charged are discriminatory because they are higher for town residents than island residents.

House votes inlet funds

WASHINGTON, D.C.–The U.S. House of Representatives Tuesday afternoon passed the Public Works bill with $970,000 earmarked for improvement of the St. Lucie Inlet.

Congressman L.A. Skip Bafalis' aide Jack MacDavitt called The Mirror just before deadline Tuesday and reported that the bill passed in the House with a 356 to 54 vote.

The bill will now go to the appropriations committee of the U.S. Senate for study.

"We've got a pretty good shot at it," MacDavitt said, "with Senator Lawton Chiles as a member of the Senate appropriations committee."

Correction!

JENSEN BEACH–The Mirror two weeks ago incorrectly reported the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers dredge "Merritt" is costing more than $900,000. The cost of the project is $90,000.

Women cadets are proud of West Point service

BY ROBBIE BEDELL

JENSEN BEACH–"It's a pretty stiff ...m, to be quite frank."

...e are the words of Susan Fulton, ...r of Martin County High School ...el Clara Fulton and a member of ...t class of women cadets to attend ...oint.

...along with classmates Sonya ... Debbie Johnson and Jane ...e, are staying in Jensen Beach ...k during their summer break ...ayed by a Jensen Kiwanis Club ...n to tell about their experiences. ...ur of the women said they have ...their roles challenging but time ...n become accustomed to the ...of military life.

"...e are three basic programs," ...said. "The first is academic ..., the second military educa... ...of the third, physical education." ...ysical education, the four study ... math, English, economics, ...eng. foreign language and ... science.

"...e like a regular college," she ...ed out you have to keep in mind we ...y small classes. They are kept ...15 to 20 students. I don't think ...e class where there have been ...an 30 students. The teacher-... ratio is very good. Most of the ...rs are Army officers with ... or masters degrees."

"...e second program, physical ..., is also stringent, Fulton said. ...ave mandatory swimming, but ...our everyday swimming," she ...e survival swimming. We have ...e fatigues carrying packs and ...rifles."

...men are also taught self ... while the male cadets have ...ory boxing and wrestling, ...ake karate and judo.

"It's roughly equal to what the men get in boxing and wrestling," she said.

The third program, military training, is "subdued during the academic year" but concentrated during the summer months at Camp Buckner, a camp near West Point used during sophomore training.

During the summer program the women learn to handle the various military weapons used in the Army. That means knowing how to fire howitzers and learning how to drive tanks.

"The military training is important because that will be our job when we get out," Fulton said.

One of the complaints the cadets do have is the limited vacations they get in relation to other schools. They get two weeks for Christmas, one week in the spring and 27 days during the summer.

Fulton said, however, that vacation time grows as a cadet moves into higher classes.

One point the women are proud of is that the attrition rate predicted by the male cadets is lower than they expected.

Of the 119 woman cadets who started there are 85 who have remained, which is an attrition rate of three or four per cent.

"Some of them were greatly surprised," Fulton said.

When the women graduate they will be sent to command medical, transportation or service branches rather than in infantry or armor, she said. She said last summer their male cadet classmates had a good attitude toward working side by side with the women, but later, in the academic programs, some of the upper classmen were not as easy to get along with.

"In the academic program, the opinions changed a lot," Fulton said. "But it varies from company to company."

The four cadets are proud of the part they are taking at West Point and their class motto shows it: "Pride and Excellence in the class of '80."

Panama Canal giveaway

BY CONGRESSMAN SKIP RAFALIS

WARRINGTON–The Panama Canal – will it be ours when we usher in the year 3000.

Not if the negotiations with Panamanian dictator Omar Torrijos, slated to resume this week in Panama, go as predicted.

The Panama Canal, built by American ingenuity and engineering skill in the first years of the 20th Century, apparently will pass from our hands on the last day of the 20th Century.

Sources say negotiations have agreed on December 31, 1999 as the day for all Americans to leave the Canal Zone and turn over the entire area to the Panamanian government.

No more American technicians to operate the canal. No more American troops to guard it against sabotage or attack.

No more American presence at all, when the 21st Century starts.

It will be a sad day, for it will mark the end of a chapter in U.S. diplomacy about which none of us can be proud.

The Panama Canal Zone, a 10-mile long and 10-mile wide stretch of land along the isthmus which separates the Atlantic and the Pacific, has been U.S. territory since 1903. Our country was given perpetual control of the zone by a treaty which the then new country of Panama signed freely and willingly.

But treaties freely arrived at apparently mean nothing when one of the signatory countries is taken over by a leftist strongman.

That's understandable – deplorable but understandable. After all, leftist nations have been ignoring treaties and agreements since the Bolsheviks took power in the Soviet Union in 1918.

What is difficult to understand is the willingness – no, the eagerness – with which our State Department has entered into these agreements.

The screams of the "Hate America" dictators and demagogues which reverberate through the halls of the United Nations were heeded, not the wishes of the American people.

Every poll of public opinion ever taken on this subject shows the American people overwhelmingly opposed to relinquishing control of the canal zone. In 1974, I asked the voters of the 10th Congressional District how they felt about giving up the canal.

In that questionnaire, 93.8 per cent of those responding – and it was the biggest response we've had yet – were firmly opposed to turning the canal over to the Panamanian government. Only slightly more than 3 per cent favored the turnover, while another 10 per cent were undecided.

And, I'm convinced that would probably be the results of most polls around the nation.

However, it apparently means nothing to our negotiators – to Ambassadors Ellsworth Bunker and Sol Linowitz, who are the principle architects of the [illegible] which reportedly will give the U.S. only a few more years of total control over the canal we built.

As it now stands, the canal zone will reportedly become Panamanian territory three years after the treaty is ratified, although the U.S. will still operate the waterway itself.

But only until 1999, when it all becomes Panama's.

Unless, the Senate refuses to ratify the treaty.

HERE–I am a loggerhead turtle. You can see me almost any night on the ...es of Hutchinson Island. But, don't approach me when I am coming up the ...h or I will go back into the surf. Wait until I am laying my eggs; then you can ...p and see me do my thing. I did a nest (don't approach). If you shine a ...ght in my eyes before I am laying eggs, I'll lumber back into the ocean. Don't ...y back when I'm laying eggs. How would you like it? Don't ride on my back when I am returning to the ocean. I'm tired, and that is just too much. I'll put it this way...treat me as you would be want to be treated before and after you laid more than 100 eggs in the sand. Then, we'll get along really well, and I'll keep returning each year so that your children can watch me, too. For the correct way to watch me, attend the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce Turtle Watch this Saturday night at the Jensen Beach public beach pavilion, beginning at nine p.m. I'll be there.

Turtle festival is under way

JENSEN BEACH–The turtles are here, the turtles are here!

Turtle Festival Week got underway Monday with a larger than expected crowd showing up at the Martin County Environmental Studies Center to hear and view presentations by Ross Witham and Bob Wagner.

Wednesday evening at 5 p.m., Witham, a marine biologist for the Florida Department of Natural Resources and pioneer turtle researcher, will release several hundred baby green turtles he has hatched from eggs recovered along the beach at Hutchinson Island.

The public is invited to attend the release which will be held at Jensen Public Beach.

On Friday night, the public will have a chance to see turtles on the other end of the life scale.

At 9 p.m. turtle watchers will congregate again at Jensen Public Beach in hopes of locating a mother turtle in the process of laying her eggs.

The Florida Marine Patrol, the Martin County Sheriff's Department and others will be scouting the beach looking for a turtle. When one is located, the crowd will then move to the area where the mother turtle is laying eggs.

Fred Meeker, Chamber of Commerce director and turtle watch organizer, said he is looking for someone to donate th use of a dune buggy to help locate the turtle. Anyone willing to help out should call Helen at the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce, 334-3444.

Witham said there are several rules of courtesy to heed while looking for and watching turtles.

Never make noise or flash lights on the beach while walking and looking for a turtle. If you do you will frighten those that have approached the beach with plans on coming up to lay.

Once the turtle does start laying eggs, however, you can talk and take snapshots.

Witham reminds everyone that it is against Florida law to disturb or molest turtles, so don't touch them or attempt to ride them back into the water.

One last thing, don't, don't, forget to dress with long pants and shoes with socks and bring a good supply of insect repellant. If there is no breeze off the water, you're going to be harassed by mosquitoes.

...ity contributes ...500 to PSL band

...T. LUCIE–It has taken ...weeks to reach a decision, but ...y morning city officials, by a ...ner vote, agreed to make a $500 ...tion to the recently organized ...t Lucie Band.

...man Merle Anderson opposed ..., claiming it was not good ... to use taxpayers' money to ...rivate organization of any kind. ...ray along Anderson has maintained such action would set an unfavorable precedent and that any other private organization would have an equal right to ask for a donation of taxpayers money.

Anderson has suggested the necessary funds be raised through voluntary public donations.

"In this way, the band members would be inspired by footing the community was backing them.

Asked for his advice on the matters, Assistant City Attorney Fred Horowitz told the listeners he could see no problem with the city contributing so long as the money is for a public service.

Councilman Schuyler Sharpe reminded that for the first time "we will have our own band playing in the July 4 parade."

"If we could pay $200 to Central High Band for cleaning their uniforms after marching in last year's parade, certainly we would be better off to go along with this 'one-shot' deal and support our own band with $500," Sharpe said.

Councilwoman Lolita Kernohan pointed out how some citizens have set precedents.

"When citizens like Mr. and Mrs. Bob Jensen make and donate uniforms for some 36 band members, they set an example that city cannot ignore," Mrs. Kernohan said.

"Not only has the band committed themselves to march in the July 4 parade but they have also agreed to participate in the city's Christmas festivities," Mayor Bill McCheaney said.

The $500 contribution was to be placed in the city's recreation fund and disbursed as needed to help cover band expenses.

Meeting time will be 2 p.m.

Speed is 25 mph at park area

PORT ST. LUCIE–Motorists traveling along west Prima Vista Boulevard in the area of Sportsman Park had best keep an eye peeled for the installation of new speed signs which will most likely be erected within the week.

Safety Director Doug Stout received Council approval Tuesday to reduce the speed limit to 25 mph in the two block stretch between Airoso Boulevard and Curtis.

When Stout asked that one large traffic sign with flashing yellow lights be Sign fees set

PORT ST. LUCIE–After much debate, an ordinance was passed Tuesday establishing the permit fees for signs located within the City of Port St. Lucie.

For signs located on commercial property including "For Sale" or "For Rent" signs not exceeding 16 square feet in face area the fee for the permit will be $10. This same fee will apply to temporary or special signs erected upon commercial property.

For political signs, the permit fee will be $20 for the first 35 signs. Additional political signs will cost 25 each. Providing these signs are removed within ten days after the election the entire permit fee will be refunded.

All other signs will require a permit fee of $25.

erected on wooden poles across the road, Vice-mayor Mike Reeb suggested the city was being penny wise and pound foolish.

"While it will cost considerably more to have the sign mounted on concrete poles, I think we should go all the way with it. I think money should be the least of our concern where safety is so important," Reeb said, adding that he thought a sign should be erected at each end of the two block stretch.

When City Manager Elmer Cox said he was quite capable of adjusting the City's budget to cover the expense of two signs and concrete poles, the Council authorized the action.

Don White...far from retired

BY ALICE HUSSEY

PORT ST. LUCIE–While retirement means different things to different people, to one Port St. Lucie resident retirement means having the time to become actively involved in community affairs and projects.

Moving to this area just 14 years ago, following his retirement, Don White has been instrumental in such major projects as getting a community center and a library built and furnished, not to mention the fact that he has served as an officer, trustee, director and chairman of many organizations.

As general manager of the Albany Protective Service for years before his retirement, White was on call 24 hours a day. He was so involved with his work that he found little or no time to do many of the things he liked.

He was always interested in governmental operations, and quite critical when they didn't operate according to Hoyle, but he never had the time to do anything about it.

Today, White has a keen interest in local government and attends at least on session per month of the St. Lucie County Commission. When there is a matter before the commission which concerns the south county area, White is generally in attendance.

When he and his wife first moved here, his first involvement was to serve as treasurer for the bowling league, where he went on to know many people. Shortly thereafter he was elected as a director with the Port St. Lucie-River Park Homeowners Association, and by 1970 he became president of the organization. While he no longer holds an office in the group, he presently serves as the chairman of the Public Affairs Committee, which he laughingly says, "keeps me a damned sight busier than being an officer."

It was while White was serving his term as president of the Homeowners Association that he became involved in the library project.

"I have a lot of respect for the center and will do nothing I can for it," said White, who, incidentally, still serves as a trustee.

"I was in Jack Sheridan's (GDC general manager of Port St. Lucie) office one day while he was talking the president of General Development Corporation about the possibility of constructing a library in our area. When Jack handed the phone over to me, I was asked whether or not I thought the homeowners group could raise $7,500 to furnish a library if one were constructed," White said.

While White said he could not guarantee the group could raise that kind of money, he did promise they would at least spearhead a drive to raise the necessary funds.

"After I made the promise, I got to thinking it over. While said. "I decided that if General Development was willing to give the land, build the building, and then turn around and give all that to the county, then why the hell couldn't the county give them the $75,00 to furnish it?"

White has since served as a trustee, director and treasurer of the library.

With that in mind, it was White himself who approached the county officials, where he was successful in obtaining $3750 from the commission, and the remaining $3750 from the library association.

The library was constructed in 1971, and furnished.

The CESA (Port St. Lucie Community Center) was another project in which Don White played an important role.

White was one of the original 20 member steering committee that got the first phase of the local community center off the ground. Those 20 members put in $10 each to get enough money for office expenses, correspondence, phone calls, etc. Within one year from the time the steering committee was formed, the actual building was under construction.

Those members of the steering committee became the first 28 trustees.

White was also active in forming the Coalition of Florida Consumers, Inc., the local group who provided the rebuttal to the Florida Power and Light Company's requested rate increase before the Public Service Commission.

White's most recent involvement came about when he was appointed chairman of the St. County's Dog Committee, a group formed to assist the St. Lucie County Commission in the ways and means of setting up a county ordinance for the control of animals ... particularly dogs running loose over the county.

When asked why he stays so involved, White said he has a philosophy.

"I believe the older people have got to keep active mentally and physically if they want to expect to keep good health. So I guess in that respect, my wife and I have been a bit selfish. We both stay busy and we are both healthy," he said.

Beside all of his activities, Don White spends the better part of each morning reading at least three newspapers from cover to cover ... except the classified sections.

"I don't have anything to sell, I am not interested in buying anything, and I sure as hell don't want a job," he chuckled.

As for hobbies, bridge is his favorite.

"Do you and Mrs. White play as partners?"

"No, indeed we do not. She is a better player than I," he answered.

The Whites had visited his brother here a couple of times before purchasing their home on Sandia in 1963.

Up until just a year or so ago, White did all his own lawn work and home maintenance. He claims, however, at nearly 80 years of age, he is too old for that now.

The Whites celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary in 1975.

"We are very fortunate," White said. "We enjoy our home, we have a lot of nice friends, and the people down here we find to be exceptionally nice."

Newsom casts for Anglers' Club

BY ROBBIE BEDELL

NSEN BEACH–Above the roar of surf a lone figure stands on the beach s long pole resting in his arms.
stares out over the waves and dy drops the front of the rod low in of him. Still seeking and wondering his quarry may be, the rod tip is ed up and back and a projectile with a on the end is hurled several nd feet out into the Atlantic.
ndays, when an angler ambles tackle shop, he has a tremendous ay of fishing rods to choose from.
sticasters have always had to choose ger of the rods so they can throw bigger baits a long distance past eak in the surf to where the fish be located.
was inevitable that such a sport
d give birth to tournament casting H.W. "Will" Newsome, a pioneer
r who now resides in Sewall's made and casted some of the rnament rods.
mbers of the Martin County er Club last week heard some of ome's philosophy of surf casting learned the basics of correctly ng a long rod.
ere are five distinct types of ng and about 1,000 sloppy thers," Newsome said.
onstrating with a 9½ foot rod he 5 years ago, he showed the anglers e basic casts.
first cast he said the rod should ld straight overhead. It is then quickly swung back, accelerating as it goes, and then propelled forward.

"It's a smooth cast so it won't knock off a shrimp or a sand flea," Newsome said. "And you can do it sitting down on a wall or standing on the beach. It's handy and you ought to learn it and use it as your number one cast."

The second cast is done like swinging a baseball bat. Newsome said the overhead cast is more accurate but some prefer this snap cast. Unfortunately, it can only be done if there's no one standing near you because it takes up a lot of room.

The third cast is designed for combatting a strong east wind blowing directly on the beach.

"The best wind is the east wind because it keeps the warm water and the bait right up against the beach," Newsome said. "In the east wind keep the bait low in the cast, low and out of the wind. Start with the rod in front of you and swing it back. When you feel the line tighten behind you, hit it and swing it out low. It, like the snap cast, is also dangerous if there are other fishermen or bystanders nearby."

The fourth and fifth casts are for experts who are interested in making long tournament casts.

In England casters wear spiked shoes and cast on lawns. In the fourth cast they lay the rod flat with the ground behind them and step forward in the spiked shoes. When they feel the line tighten behind them, they pull the road and then push the bait out as hard as they can.

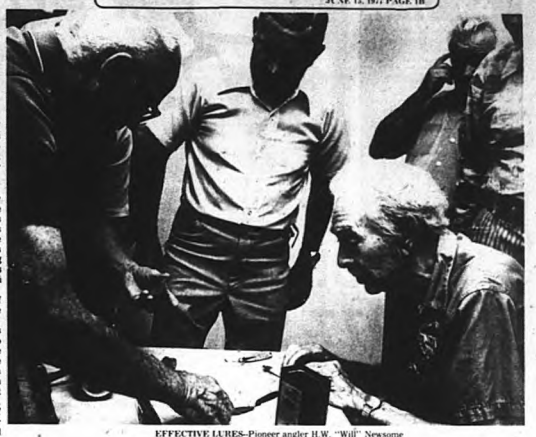
"In this cast they can develop a lot of speed," Newsome said. "It's mass times acceleration. Casters can reach distances of 850 to 1,000 feet with this cast, but you have to have an extra link in your back."

The last cast was invented by Newsome when he was a member of the Tidewater Anglers' Club in Virginia. It's a difficult cast to master and it takes practice to learn. Newsome said the angler holds the rod straight up in this cast and then lets the bait swing forward. It gains momentum and is swung back and then swung forward on the release.

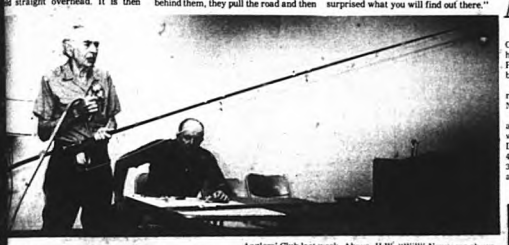
In addition to explaining the facets of casting, Newsome also told some of the secrets he has learned over the years.

He showed a number of the metal baits he has used, all weighing around two to two and a half ounces. Each has a little keel on the bottom and, when they are cast and pulled in along the bottom, a groove is made in the sand. The fish eventually find the groove and follow it to see if there's any food at the end of it. If casts are made in a number of directions from one spot, sooner or later the angler will locate a fish and it should follow a groove to the lure.

"Cast making triangles and, where the grooves cross, that's where your fish will be," Newsome said. "You won't get them everywhere but you will be surprised what you will find out there."



EFFECTIVE LURES–Pioneer angler H.W. "Will" Newsome shows member of the Martin County Anglers' Club some of the metal lures he has used in surfcasting.



NG TECHNIQUES–The rudiments of effective surf were demonstrated to members of the Martin County Anglers' Club last week. Above, H.W. "Will" Newsome shows one of his surf rods, one he made 35 years ago. Seated is club president, Fred Dushanek.

Crime programs presented

STUART–In its continuing program in community service called "Safeboard against crime", the Kiwanis Club of Stuart-Sunrise will be making several presentations during the month of June, according to Donn Duffy, president of the club.

Presentation teams consisting of three Stuart-Sunrise club members will show a 20 minute film, "You Can't Judge a Crook by His Cover" and hand out checklists on how to prevent burglaries in your house, telephone labels of emergency telephone numbers, and other items.

Duffy said the program has been successful so far and that the Kiwanis Club of Stuart-Sunrise is looking for additional groups interested in having the presentation. Those interested should contact Program Chairman James E. Knight at 286-2277.

Tom Falkenburg Invites You To Be the Judge Of Our Courts

Tennis pro, Tom Falkenburg, an outstanding senior player, provides both private lessons and clinics for Tennis Club members.

So, come on out to the special pre-opening celebration of Indian River Plantation Tennis Club on Saturday and Sunday, June 18th and 19th. Try out the 11 brand new championship Har Tru courts. Because the best way to judge them is to play on them.

As Tom's guest you can play free. And if you're an intrepid player, you can even challenge him to a couple of games.

Indian River Plantation tennis courts are, without doubt, the finest in a 4 county area. But, don't take our word for it. Come and judge for yourself.

Five of the eleven courts are provided with arc lighting of over 50 candlepower which has the effect of bringing daylight to night tennis. This kind of lighting qualifys the courts for professional tournaments which are planned for the future.

Misting the courts is only one example of the perpetual maintenance system which assures members of year round play. One of the big advantages of Har Tru surfaces is their quick drying properties. Courts can be played on in about 30 minutes after a rain shower.

Sweeping is another maintenance must to keep the courts in top condition. You can see the courts are designed in batteries of two, with return fences and windscreens. In the background are the temporary quarters of the pro shop which will carry a full assortment of top quality tennis merchandise.

To get to Indian River Plantation Tennis Club, just turn off A1A at the Elliott Museum and go ½ mile south on old MacArthur Blvd.

is scheduled to reach the Marina at 1:30

$20 for AARP members and $22 for any guests they want to bring along.

The Bahamarama is planned for October 8. Deadline for signing up for this cruise is September 1. The ship will make calls at Georgetown, on Great Exuma Island; Nassau; and Chub Cay at Berry Island. As with other trips arranged by the committee, this one includes everything: bus transportation from the Marina to Miami, the days aboard ship, and the trip back to Port St.
Lucie. The tab will be $250 if an inside cabin is reserved, and $270 for an outside cabin. Anyone would have to go some to beat that kind of cost. To meet the economics of the situation, Jim said, at least 40 people need to sign up. About a dozen or so have already indicated interest.

Just before the rain started to fall, the board of directors held its June meeting in a corner apart from the merrymakers. Present were President Fred Wiggin, Marie Arluck, Jim Kearney,
Gordon Long, Muriel Sysak, Esther
Thompson and Hugh Jenks. Imbued with the spirit of the picnic, the board devoted its attention mainly to plans for the first annual luncheon to be held in December. Long and Arluck are looking into possible sites for the luncheon and invited nominations from the board members for the recipient of an award to be made at the luncheon. The plan is to make this an annual award to a person who is judged to have contributed significantly to the welfare of senior citizens. The person receiving the award need not be a member of AARP and, likewise, need not be a resident of Port St. Lucie. It is to be a broad-gauged sort of thing and the winner may be chosen from near or far, depending on his qualifications in the opinion of the board.

chairman, has been hearing a lot about a testing clinic in Fort Pierce, as she investigated. It's called United States Health Test Clinic, Inc., and is located at 322 So. US 1, Fort Pierce, FL 33450, with Ronald L. Kaminski, manager. Call collect, 464-5380, and they'll give a 10 percent discount to AARPers.

Although many have gone north, those left are just as busy as ever. Cele Berky, co-chm. of the Nominating Committee, has called a committee meeting for 7:15 p.m. Monday, June 13, at Teddy Bergland's. and President Ernie C. has called a board meeting for 1:30 p.m.
Tuesday, June 14, at the Martin County Public Library.

Along with being busy, some AARPers are taking on more tasks. For instance, the call for a turtle feeder and handyman at the House of Refuge was taken up by Al Tucker, 2nd vice president. So, Monday through Friday, 8:30 to 11:30, his wife Ethel and the rest of us know where to find him.

+ + +

A Senior Center has been the concern of all Senior Citizens for some time and Al Tucker, before taking on the above venture, made out a list of things that might be done to get it started.

Al says let's organize and incorporate a building association, then make it a point that part of all funds raised go into that account, starting with the ever popular 50-50; going on to card parties, square dances, bake sales, fair booth sales and a $2000 car raffle as suggested by Louis Laflamme, day time bingo, trading post, profit from Craig, etc.

Then, with some money in the bank, a large committee of 50 to 75 could track down every acre of land that could be used and, when something suitable is found, make a down payment. Once there is something to build on other steps can be taken.

$100,000 divided by 750 comes out to $133.34 per member. Each person could give, earn, or by a project, raise that amount. It might be possible to assess each member $5 or $10 for a $7500 fund to be used for mail order fund raising by experts. There are many things that could be done to get necessary "front" money to qualify for government funds.

Furthermore, there are probably retired seniors who have been successful architects and contractors who could be of great assistance in the design and construction of such a project.
Therefore, during these summer months, it is hoped that all AARPers will consider these suggestions and think of others, so that next fall the chapter can take some positive steps to get a Senior Center for Martin County.

.B. reaches 'high even' point

...folks are still leaving, but some ...is coming back, so it's about at ...ast even point.

...was a surprise in store for the ...ers. Some streets were pile gutter ...ter fifteen feet -high with tree

"know-you-when-I-see-you glimpse" then gave their name, address, where they were from, what they did before retiring and why they came to OBP.

It was a great affair and all said they'd like to do it again. Therefore, Ruth said, (there'll be another pot luck early in July. Watch the bulletin board for a showing of park events at Clement Hall.)

CARD SCORES

Duplicate, June 11: Mike Dryer and Val Wells, Jay Ehenger and Vinnie Taylor, Clay Mitchell and Treva Kane.

Contract, June 7: Therese Wittenbert, Jo Doring.

Pinochle, June 6: Charles Slezak, Veronica Snyder, Charlie Wiedemann.

Pinochle, June 9: Charlie Slezak, Irene Burgess, Bobby Beaucleric, Charles Wiedemann.

the park had a so-called picnic in the clubhouse with 20 to 30 attending each time. Dorothy says they had great fun, but there was some comment about "singling out the widows", so it was discontinued. (See picture.)

Some inquiring about pot luck, the following interesting items were donated:

There was a stormy cruise to Mexico in 1971, couldn't land at Merida, so OBPers put on some entertainment. Square dancers demonstrated how to slip and slide through a dance as the ship lurched this way and that. It was a hilarious mixed up affair that was enjoyed by dancers and watchers. Also, there was a hat contest by the men, with Harry Bartle, Paul Tyree, Dan Knopp and Earl Ehrmann winning prizes.

Then, there was that McCall's award of national honor for an outstanding mobile home park (Nov., 1971). The award noted that the Town of Ocean Breeze had 885 legal freehold residents to elect their own mayor and council and the park was designated as precinct number fourteen.

And there were speeders way back then, too. An article of Nov. 28, 1980, says that a misappropriated car going 75 mph in a 15 mph zone hit trell and crashed trailer of Dorothy Bunting, narrowly missing Mrs. Robert Seal, sending both ladies into shock. (Traffic signal lights are now on order to prevent such accidents in the future.)

RAMBLING AROUND

Leta Keith, 6 Vista Dr., has just returned from a trip to Illinois where she saw her son, a 2-month old great grandson, Andy Brown, and her stepmother. She also visited a niece in Minneapolis.

She enjoyed her trip very much, but was glad to be back and glad to find husband Irvin had made out OK, even to getting in some good fishing right off the wall with catches of four or five big sheepshead for two or more days in a row, but could only get a lil' bitty one for Let's supper, first day home. That's the way it generally goes with fishing.

George and Jeannette Levangi, 10 Key Lime, just heard that Nellie Smack of Kumquat is up in Naperville, Ill., visiting a son and his family after a good 36 hour trip north by Amtrak. She'll be back by the end of June.

Mary Adrean, Fifth, reports that Ada Baum of 1 Pepper is now with her family in St. Williams, Ontario, after a short stay with more family in Cleveland. She says it's very dry up there.

Mary also had word from Art and May Langtic, 20-5th. They are in Clayton, N.Y., and announce that Robert Smith (brother), who came to OBP by travel trailer in 75 and 76, passed away recently.

+++

Warren and Sue Johnson, 12 Tenth and Cheshire, Ill., had a letter from John and Gertrude Gartner, P.O. Box 358, Caseville, Mich. 48725. They are at 8 N. 10th during the winter. At a Retirement Club near there, the talk is about coming to Florida, and with three days of rain, 50 degree weather and furnace on all the time, the Gartners with they were back in OBP. Mentioned that Frank Geertsema comes to see them often.

Dick and Doris Reed, out on the end of Lil Bit Lane, heard from Ethel Ariens in Jeffersonville, Ind. She sold her home and is living with son Bill. She will be back to OBP next fall.

Dorsa was busy digging out ... while Big Blue, the gian heron, looked on. Dorsa said feeding the birds is a problem and wonders if the family increase entitles her to food stamps. Then, Walter Lindell brought Dorsa a half dozen 15 inch senate fish (never heard of them before), skinny things, but Dorsa says they are delicious, something like mackerel.

Dorsa took a look out across the river where some mullet were leaping and remarked, "When the wind and the rain drive us inside, we think 'we've had it', but the next morning, as we look out over the beauty of the early morn, we know we have the best spot around and who'd have thought back in our working days that we'd be able to retire to such a paradise."

Pearl Wheelock, 4 Banyan, heard from Len and Mary Ann Ballanger. All fine up there in Manton, Michigan. 40 degree nights but days are great.

Madelynne Lillie, 18 Key Lime from Charleston, W.Va., is back here with a guest, Mrs. Florence Maulice of Mt. Dora, Fla. They are spending most mornings at the beach. Also, Florence is noting the changes since she was here in 1965; admired the new bank for one thing and enjoyed the pot luck supper.

Ellen Nixon, as usual, received a bunch of letters. Bernie Taylor at 72 Prospect St., Northampton, Mass., says now that she's seen her family, she's ready to come back to OBP.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Covell, 24 10th, are at Bright Long Lake, Route 2, Fernwick, Mi. 48834, and want to be remembered to all.

Rausy Mathews of 7th St. is up near Grand Rapids, enjoying good weather, ...and visits from Doc and Ruth Roberts, who are fine.

Ethel Lowe, 28 Seventh, and Ken and Rea Beyers of Sixth had a good trip north to Amsterdam, N.Y.

Art and Sue Bygd of Skipper say they are getting lots of rain up in Wisconsin, want to send some down here as there's a regular river running through their gate.

Flora Derr, 7th Street, is planting all kinds of flowers in her garden at Middletown, Pa., says it's cold there, needs furnace.

Hilda Gibbin, 23 Sixth, also gets lots of letters. Gen Garn, up there in Elmore, Ohio, and the Fairs in Hendersonville, N.C., are just fine.

Fritz Springman of 1 Vista Dr. is still in Philadelphia receiving treatment but hopes to be back in Florida by mid-June.

George Reeve is fast recovering with his usual daily walks to town and around the park.

DO YOU REMEMBER WHEN...

This being pot luck time, it was hoped that an account of one way back in the early days could be reported, but none was forthcoming.

However, Dorothy Geeben of 1 Ocean Breeze Dr. did remember that in 1959, Feb. 11 and Easter time, the widows of

UP PRIVY–The outhouse which was built during the House of Refuge operation more than a year ago still sits in the Indian River after falling off the end of the dock several months ago.

House of Refuge outhouse and dock needs $5,000 in repairs

BY ROBBIE BEDELL

JENSEN BEACH–The green outhouse which used to perch smartly at the end of the dock at the House of Refuge on Hutchinson Island is still awash in the Indian River.

Several months ago the dock where the outhouse sat gave way when pilings underneath rotted out. When the outhouse hit the water it was washed by northeast winds toward the riverbank where it ran aground.

It now sits about 20 feet offshore gathering moss and barnacles.

The privy was built more than a year ago when the House of Refuge was restored to its original state, resembling the building of 100 years ago. The outhouse was a replica of the one which was there before the building was equipped with modern plumbing.

Officials of the Martin County Historical Society have said the outhouse will be taken from the river when the Martin County Commission budgets money to repair the falling down pier. The county, which owns the pier, has obtained an estimate for solving the dock problem but, so far, has not come up with the funds to do it.

According to County Attorney Jim Winn, a dock builder said the whole pier could be replaced for $5,000. The plan would include the construction of a covered area with benches at the end similar to one of the pavilions at Stuart Beach.

In the meantime, Winn said he is trying to have a section taken from the first portion of the dock to prevent someone from walking to the end causing the dock to further fall into the river.

"It all hinges on the $5,000," Winn said.

Ralph Hartman, president of the Martin County Historical Society, said he has contacted County Commissioners to have the dock repaired, but so far, he has received no reply.

"I clipped out an editorial from the Jensen Beach Mirror and sent it to Commissioners (Tom) Higgins and (Frank) Wachs asking, please, please, let's get the dock repaired," Hartman said.

In the meantime the Historical Society is budgeting money to have the parking area on both sides of the museum repaved, adding more parking spaces for visitors.

"Now that we are showing our part, maybe it will set an example for the county to do their part," he said.

In the meantime, Hartman said, he will look for some volunteers to get together to have the outhouse taken out of the river.

Fireworks softball ourney this weekend

BY DONNIE WILKIE

NSEN BEACH–This weekend's schedule features the 11th annual orks Slow-Pitch Tournament at ford Park, opening Friday, with e continuing until Sunday.

owerful field of 22 teams will fight for the coveted Jensen Beach title, the favorite, Stuart National Bank, e trying to rid themselves of the which has beset local teams ghout the history of the classic.

e tournament has not been won by a team since it first was played in This was the year of Krauss & e, as they defeated Abood of Fort 4-3 and 5-3 in the final round. But was a very weak field, consisting y of local teams. Thus, the champs only seven teams to defeat.

e closest a recent team has come in st years came when Stuart National ed second to Dolphin Discount two ago (1975). The Bankers lost twice lphin in that tourney, and outside of setbacks were undefeated.

s year's field could be the strongest to set foot on Langford Park in. Among the teams that SNB will to overcome is defending champion e Lumber of Melbourne. However, record would seem to favor a team the south, as over the last nine teams from south of Jensen Beach won six times, while the northern ds have won but on three occasions.

ers who could challenge the ers include Collins Irrigation, am of Miami, Oine Lumber, am of Fort Lauderdale, Cruise t, and the Martin County hants, another Martin team.

e tournament will include a total of mes (this could be stretched to 43 ue of the double-elimination final) Friday kicking off the classic on Friday. Taylor Rentals will be the first team to take the field, as they will Pratt & Whitney Aircraft at 7 p.m. y evening on Field One.

er games in on Friday night include an 8:30 p.m. matchup between the Martin County Merchants and the Boca, Merchants, Friendly Tavern will be meeting Bigham of Fort Lauderdale, and American Security of Stuart will be challenged by Gipper Barwick. Both of these games will be played at 8:30 p.m. The 9:45 games include Stuart National meeting Security Central of West Palm Beach, and the Hollywood Merchants going up against another locaIer, Gary's Paint and Body. The Stuart News will round out the schedule with a game against the Broward Merchants, also at 9:45 p.m.

All the local teams will play on Friday night, in a sort of preview of what to expect. Of course, the attention will be mainly on SNB and the Merchants of Martin County.

Saturday's action will begin at 9 a.m., and will last through the rest of the day and evening. This is the day in which most of the lesser teams will meet their end, while the better squads will tune up for Sunday's championship rounds.

Saturday night's slate will include some winners' bracket games which could be exciting, as there is a strong possibility that many of the top teams will meet each other in this quarterfinal stage.

The finals are scheduled for sometime around 2 p.m. on Sunday afternoon. Of course, if the losers' bracket team wins that game, there will be a second and deciding game at around 3:30 p.m.

The past winners of this prestigious tourney include: Krauss & Crane (1967); Vero Beach Abbco (1968), Melbourne T.V. (1969), Big Daddy's (1970), Jerry's Catering (1971), Mark's Brothers (1972), Bigham Ft Lauderdale (1973), Waldrop & Son Roofing (1974), Dolphin Discount (1975), and defending champion Senne Lumber (1976).

Concessions will be open to accommodate all three fields at the park on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, and as always, there is no admission charge.

BLACK CLOUD–On Tuesday afternoon shopkeepers along Commercial Street in Jensen Beach could be seen standing in front of their respective businesses staring, awestruck, at the sky. It seemed as if a hurricane were descending upon the village from the west. Black clouds rising at high speed billowed above the Savannas and the west part of town, first sprinkling small droplets of rain and then drenching the area in a deluge. The storm hung over Jensen Beach for most of the afternoon, giving a much needed drenching. Winds were clocked at 40 miles per hour during the peak of the storm and 1.6 inches of rainfall were recorded.

Auxilians are 'winners'

JENSEN BEACH–The state convention of Veterans of World War I and the Auxiliaries was held June 9 through 12 at the Galt Ocean Mile Hotel in Fort Lauderdale.

Those attending from local Barracks 854 and Auxiliary were Auxiliary President Therese Wittnebert, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Diffendal, Julia Callahan, Henrietta Horton, Hazel Houghton and Averil Tillman.

The ladies came home with a bunch of awards, including Hospital Service, Community Service, Veterans Administration Volunteer Services, Publicity, Publicity Book, Radio and Television Coverage, Legislature, and Americanism. Monetary awards were also received for Americanism and Publicity. Mrs. Horton's award joins previous awards totaling 1300 hours of volunteer hospital work.

Turtle festival is termed a success

BY ROBBIE BEDELL

JENSEN BEACH–The couple of hundred people who waited around at Jensen Public Beach Friday night to see a mother turtle lay eggs had a long wait. But those who stuck it out were able to see real egg-laying in action.

The organized turtle watch, the last event of the week-long Jensen Beach Turtle Festival, afforded viewers with three loggerhead turtles which kept everyone up past 1 a.m.

Fred Meeker, the coordinator of the festival, said he considers the watch a success.

"We had three come up for viewing," he said. "The first one was at about 11:50, a loggerhead up by the Hutchinson Island Club. We found another at 12:20 a.m. south of the Holiday Inn, and the third was found later at Park and Fish. Everyone who stayed to see one got to see one."

Meeker said he learned of a few things which might be done differently next year.

"We will have a turtle festival next year," he said. "What form it will take will be left up to the board of directors. I'm assuming that there will be some changes. There are such a large number of visitors interested in turtles and egg laying. I think we need more education to inform the public as to what's going on."

He said the whole evening went off pretty smoothly except that some people on the beach, not part of the organized watch, threw some beer bottles and sand on the vehicles going up the beach hunting turtles.

A turtle release, held last Wednesday afternoon, attracted about 500 people. Exactly 219 turtles were released.

The small turtles, which were hatched and raised for eight months by Marine Biologist Ross Witham, are part of a long-range study of the migration and nesting habits of the green turtle.

Green turtles were once plentiful in the Indian River area but, because their flesh is reported to be good eating, overharvesting nearly depleted the species locally. Through the efforts of Witham, the turtles are appearing in greater numbers as years pass and information is being learned of their migration patterns.

Witham's tagged green turtles have been reportedly sighted in the Azores, New York, Virginia, the Carolinas, Georgia, Florida, the Bahamas, and many islands of the West Indies, all the way down to the countries in South America.

Guest preacher at Community Church

JENSEN BEACH–As the search for a new lead pastor for the Jensen Beach Community Church continues, this week's guest preacher will be Dr. John Di Gangi. The service will be at 10 a.m. Sunday, June 26.

Ordained in 1967, Dr. Di Gangi has a degree from Columbia University, Colgate-Rochester Divinity School, and McCormack Theological Seminary. He has served three churches, and is presently serving the First Baptist Church of Jackson, Michigan.

ART–Billed as "Martin County's t tennis event ever," the Martin y Tennis Championship will be his weekend at the Indian River tion, a new tennis facility on nson Island.

Director of Tennis, Tom berg, says he expects about 100 pants for the tourney, which y will be held every year at the nds.

highlight of the weekend could be 's Open Division final, which Falkenburg against another top nal player, Frank Froehling.

The Open final will be played sometime on Sunday. (The exact time is not yet set.)

There will be over 25 different divisions, including four ringles divisions for both men and women. There will be some junior competitors who will benefit from this, because they'll get a chance to match their skills against some of the best players in Martin County.

About 150 people were invited to come out and see the facilities last Friday night and they no doubt were impressed by what they saw. Indian River Plantation has 11 courts, five of which are lighted, and a Pro Shop which is now under construction. Each court is surfaced with Har-Tru, a surface which plays smoothly and dries quite fast. In fact, after a hard rain, the courts can be ready for play in only 30 minutes.

Falkenburg set up clinics for children, young adults, and adults in July, and he also plans another tournament. "I am planning to have a Martin County Juniors tournament late in July," says Falkenburg, a top seniors player himself. However, the dates have not been set.

Some of the other divisions in the tournament include: Husband and Wife Doubles; Men's Seniors (35, 45, 55 and 65 years old); and Women's Seniors; Men's Open Doubles; Women's Singles and Doubles (4 divisions); and Mixed Doubles.

The entry fee for each contestant was $7, with a three-event maximum per player. Play will begin at 9 a.m. Thursday morning and will continue through the rest of the weekend.

In addition to planning the tournament, Falkenburg has set up membership rates for the club. The price for a single membership will be $350, while a family membership will cost $450.

Dushanek is deep in fishing world

BY ROBBIE REDELL

JENSEN BEACH—His eyes, protected from the morning sun by the brim of a long-bank and fishing hat, look intently out over the river for tell-tale signs of fish or possible flats or holes where fish may be lurking. His light tackle instinctively darts to his desired targets.

Fishermen in the Martin County area are familiar with the face which comes on their local television station every other night informing them of the fishing conditions in the inshore areas.

Viewers have shared some of his extensive knowledge of the rivers and marine creatures which live in them.

The man is Fred Dushanek and, as president of the Martin County Anglers Club, Manager of the new Jensen Bait and Tackle Company, and fishing reporter on channel 11 television news, he is a major force in the fishing world in Martin County.

Dushanek was born in Crystal River and, unlike a lot of Florida natives, he moved with his family to New Jersey when he was a child.

"I was raised in New Jersey and lived on the Jersey coast," he said, as he gazed out the tackle shop window looking over the Indian River. "I have fished since childhood and there I fished for striped bass, bluefish, flounder and tilefish in the Hudson River Canyon. I've been fishing as long as I can remember."

Though he has been trout fishing in Maine and Canada, fished offshore and once held a New Jersey state record for largemouth bass, he now likes to wade in the Indian River for trout.

"Now my favorite thing is wading," he said. "I still do a lot of surf fishing for blues, too, but I like wading with artificial bait. I don't remember the last time I used natural bait."

He has built such a name in the trout fishing world of the Indian River that he has had a local lure-maker, Art Ryan, name a plug for Dushanek. It's called "Fred's Popper" and it is well known for being a reliable trout and snook catcher. Ryan also makes a bluefish plug named "Big Freddie." An old standby for blues along the surf, the plug was also named for Dushanek.

During his life, fishing and working to promote the world of angling, Dushanek has also worked for a number of outdoor magazines as a contributing writer.

He has also fished with some of the angling greats, names like Mark Sosin and Stu Apte. He has fished with them in the Florida Keys. And he has also been on fishing trips with Homer Circle and Ted Williams.

"I enjoy every kind of fishing," he said. "But now, because it is nearby, wading is what I do."

Several months ago Dushanek began his new role as television fishing reporter for channel 11, the local Perry Cable news show produced by Jerry Bowers.

He said he enjoys his new show and is accepting it as a challenge.

"It's a local program for local people," he said. "I do the inshore reporting and Ladies Minor does the offshore. I want to start doing some more fresh-water reporting, also. Each program I find myself more and more relaxed, each time I try to give a little more on fish and fishing."

...ING AUTHORITY—Fred Dushanek, local master angler and television ...nality, has fished in Florida for the past 20 years and has fished inshore and ...ore since he was a child. He is now the manager of Jensen Bait and Tackle.

...rmy unions are wrong

...CONGRESSMAN SKIP BAFALIS

...SHINGTON—Unions in the armed ...es? Ridiculous, you say?

...ell, you're wrong.

...e idea is still alive. It's a goal still ...ht by many union leaders, most ...ably those in the American ...ration of Government Employees.

...fact, there's, talk the AFGE will ...poll its 300,000 members on whether ...anize the Army, Navy, Air Force, ...nes and Coast Guard. And, should ...mia and file okay the idea, the ...esting drive could begin this fall.

...hat the results of that organizing ...rt would be is anyone's guess.

...e California last year, an overeager ...FC chapter set up a meeting for GIs ...erested in joining, only to have just ...prospective members show up.

...as a good sign. But, unfortunately, ...ere are other, more depressing signs ...hich to point and ponder.

...researchers at the Air Force Institute ...Technology conducted a survey which ...ound some 35 per cent of its enlisted ...nnel and 16 per cent of the officers ...uld join a union if they had a chance. ...pparently, we have a large number ...soldiers, sailors, airmen and Marines ...whom serving their country is just ...new way of earning a living.

...It is imperative that we make sure ...those who would jump at a chance to ...unize never get the chance to jump. ...ean do that by adopting legislation ...hich spells out clearly that those who ...the armed services have no right to ...unize.

...e Pentagon says it doesn't need such a law really because it has already enough authority to preclude unionization.

Unfortunately, the unions don't see it that way.

But then, they don't see the need for maintaining discipline and a strong chain of command — two elements essential for any fighting force in combat.

So Congress must speak out and, in no uncertain terms, let the union leaders know we will not permit the unionization of the armed forces.

We will not run the risk of losing battles because the field commander and the shop steward can't agree. We will not run the risk of missions unflown and civilians postponed because the airmen and the sailors wanted overtime.

In short, we will not take the defense of this nation away from the Pentagon and turn it over to union bosses.

Now, union leaders maintain they would work just to improve living and working conditions for the GIs and would not interfere with military operations and discipline.

But, just a few years ago, union leaders were promising that policemen and firemen would never actually walk off the job.

The labor movement has, for the most part, been good for the United States. It has helped us achieve the best standard of living yet seen on this globe.

But there are limits - powers it cannot be given.

And control of our armed forces is definitely one of those powers.

Soon the cashiers at the stores were throwing up their hands in despair, as the cash drawers filled up with the cart wheels. This went on, day after day for a month or more, for when one shipment was used up, Harry sent for more.

Before long, pockets were getting thin and wallets and purses sacks in true western style to tote coins to market. The silver dollars were used for everything. Judge LeDuc even bought a new Reick up in Fort Pierce with a wheelbarrow load of them (Harry later redeemed them to prevent some frayed tempers!).

It was soon very evident that Ocean Breezers were contributing plenty to the local economy and, although there was some irritation, the whole episode was generally treated in good fun and turned out to be one of those long remembered, interesting events of Ocean Breeze Park.

Clam lovers await shellfish decision

STUART–Those who have a yen for the clam may have some good news in sight.

A state ban imposed in 1970 on the taking of shellfish could be lifted if a state study of the Indian River in July has positive results.

Local people have whispered in each other's ears since the ban about how good the clams really are and that "the water in the river isn't really polluted anyway."

Many people have taken and eaten illegal clams and many have received summons from the Florida Marine Patrol as a result.

The state imposed the ban because it was presumed that development along the west side of Hutchinson Island would soon pollute local waters. However, a project carried out by students at Florida Institute of Technology has prompted the state to reconsider its ban and perform the study.

The students' work, which prompted the Martin County Commission and the Health Department to look into the matter, caused the state to make a turnabout from a decision set forth a year ago.

In a letter from Sanitarian Consultant for the Florida Department of Natural Resources H.L. Fincher to Cliff Perry, a local realtor and clamming enthusiast, one year ago, Fincher said that each year the state's waters are tested by the Federal Food and Drug Administration and that the results of those tests prohibited shellfishing in waters in St. Lucie and Marin Counties.

The letter was an answer to a request by Perry for an explanation on the ban.

Perry, for several years, has seeded and cared for a number of clam beds in the Indian River.

Fincher's letter, at the time, gave a bleak picture for clamming in the county.

"Throughout the area, from Sebastian to the St. Lucie Inlet," the letter stated, "storm water runoff from developers alone is enough to contribute substantial contamination to the receiving waters. Sewage effluents from large developments are so distributed as to subject the greater part of the Indian River to possible major pollution in case of an accident or breakdown. Numerous smaller developments with sewage treatment plants represent the continuing possible hazard due to lack of continuous supervision and maintenance."

Perry has been an advocate of opening the waters for some time and notes that he never heard of anyone getting sick from eating the local clams.

Officials are to be in the area the first week in July to meet with local officials.

Mrs. Ruff was entertained

PORT ST. LUCIE–Mrs. Mildred Grieger, formerly of Sandpiper Bay, recently entertained Mrs. Leo Ruff of Port St. Lucie and Mrs. Robert Derining of Naples at a cocktail party given in her Pompano Beach home. Also attending the party were many Michigan and Pompano Beach friends of Mrs. Grieger.

21 sailfish were caught.

Dixie Monzingo of Port Salerno, fishing on the boat "Lucky Lady", took the women's division of the tournament with three sailfish released She scored just ahead of Dr. Fogt who caught two sails and won the men's division.

One sailfish, caught by John Conner, Jr., of Tampa, weighed 85 pounds. It was caught aboard the "Go Bug".

Sewall's Point's Stephanie Schoppe, fishing aboard the boat "Gremlin," took second in the women's division with one sailfish release, and Grace Meyers of Harrisburg, Pa., on the "Mindy", was third, also with one sailfish release

On Sunday, the "Mondy" arrived in port 2½ hours late because Grace Meyers was hooked to a large blue marlin. She fought it on 50 pound test line after the 3 p.m. closing hour of the toufney, but the line broke.

Mike Cusick of Boca Raton, fishing aboard the "Merry Mac", took second in the men's division with one sail release There was a tie for third in the men's between Charles A. Burmsed, Jr., of Daytona Beach on the "Sundancer", and Jerry Spangler of Lake Park on the "Julie Ann." Both caught sails at about the same time.

Bonita, which have been reported to be scarce during the last few weeks, showed up around the fleet in large schools giving nearly everyone something to catch

The president of the Stuart Sailfish Club, Jay Potadam, reported than one of the bonita grabbed a rubber squid he was using as a teaser. The fish refused to let go of the squid until it was brought alongside the boat. Potadam won the kingfish division for adults with a 20-pound, 12-ounce fish. Potadam was fishing from the "Seawitch."

Second in the kingfish division was a woman with the last name of Stiller, fishing with Allan Mark aboard the "Skimmer." Her fish was 18-pounds, 12-ounces.

The third place kingfish award was won by Dennis Hammond aboard the Vomitus I with a nine-pound, eight-ounce kingfish

The winner of the bonita division was Mike Cusick of Boca Raton on the "Merry Mac" He had an 18-pound, 10-ounce fish Bonnie Powell on "The Pup" from Tampa, was second with a 17-pound, 10-ounce bonito, and John Quinton on the "Crazy Q" was third with a bonita weighing 17-pounds, 4-ounces

No black fin tuna were taken and the cobia divisions, adult and junior, were won by a junior angler, Dean Isaacs of Palm City He caught the only cobia of the tournament from the "If." It weighed 8-pounds 10-ounces

Milton Davis on the "Shan-A-Lack," won the barracuda division with a 21-pound, 10-ounce fish Bonnie Powell, of Tampa, on "The Pup", was second with a 19-pound 4-ounce fish, and Wesley Watson, West Palm Beach, on the "SandBar," with a 16-pound, 12-ounce fish

David Hull of Merritt Island, on the "Hustler," won the adult division for dolphin with a 36-pound, 2-ounce fish. Second was Dennis Dale of Merritt Island, also on the "Hustler," with a 30-pound, 8-ounce catch, and Robert Coppock of Stuart on the "If," took third with a 28-pound, 6-ounce fish.

For the first time in the history of the tourney, a white marlin was taken. It was caught by Stephanie Fischer of West Palm Beach on the "Steph Too". It weighed 42-pounds, 8 ounces. The fish won the "unusual catch" prize.

N.A. Smith of Stuart, on the "Panda," won the wahoo division for adults with a 69-pound, 8-ounce catch. Second was Tom Chamberlain of Stuart, on the "Friendly Time," with a 38-pound, 8-ounce fish. Third was Donna Tweedle of Leesburg on the "Capt. Hook," 36 pounds.

Besides Isaacs, junior division winners were David Kenny, Stuart, on the "Hue Dolphin", with a 20-pound, 4-ounce barracuda, who also won the wahoo class with an 11-pound, 8 ounce catch.

Craig Tankersle of West Palm Beach, on "The Merry Bird" with a 17-pound, 8-ounce fish won the bonita division. Ellen Holder of Jensen Beach on the "Mr. Period" won the dolphin category with a 25-pounder.

Steve Giddings of Winter Haven, on the "Virginia B", took the top prize for kingfish among the juniors with a 12-pound, 6-ounce catch. No junior angler took a sailfish.

The difference between these two thermostats can save you up to 40% on your air-conditioning costs.

The thermostat on his right hand is set at 73 degrees. The one in the left is set at 78 degrees.

The difference in the thermostat settings is only five degrees. But one little degree can make quite a difference in the cost of cooling. Approximately eight percent in the average fully air-conditioned home.

When you stop to consider that you can still be comfortable at 78 degrees and save on your air-conditioning costs as well, which one would you choose?

Setting the thermostat at a "comfortable" setting is only one way to save money on your cooling costs. Here are some others:

- If your thermometer isn't marked in degrees, place a good thermometer in a room out of the air-conditioning flow to be sure you're maintaining 78 degrees.
- Insulate your attic floor. A sufficient layer of insulation in the attic can cut your costs substantially if your home is fully air-conditioned. It's a good investment. (For further information on insulation, pick up our booklet "Guide to Home Insulation" at any FPL office.)
- Weatherstrip your doors and windows. (Especially jalousie windows.) It's another good way to keep the heat out, the cool in and the costs down.
- Shade your sunlit windows with awnings, shutters or solar film. Unshaded glass panels, when exposed to direct sunlight, will greatly increase the workload of your air-conditioning unit.
- Use light colors on your walls and roof to reflect the sun. The lighter the color, the less heat absorbed.
- Shade your air-conditioning unit with shrubbery, but don't block the air flow. That way it'll operate more economically and efficiently.

Why are we telling you all this? Because FPL isn't any happier about higher costs than you are. And we want to help you save money and energy.

IACA PLANS STEAK DINNER

PORT ST. LUCIE--The Italian and American Civic Association will hold a delmonico steak dinner Sunday, June 26, between the hours of 1 p.m. and 6 p.m.

The affair to be held at the Port St. Lucie Community Center, will be open to the public.

Tickets may be obtained by calling 878-3466 or 878-0049, according to Florence Dabney, secretary of the association.

...ull.--This eight foot, 30 pound sailfish was caught Sunday ...g by Carolyn Rosenfeld, left, of Windsor Park aboard the ...ret, which was captained by Carol Knapstein, right. Shown with their husbands, the two women took great pride in their catch. They were spending the weekend at Frances Langford's Outrigger Resort.

Dixion cops player of the year for second year in row

JENSEN BEACH--Just about one year ago, the Jensen Mirror presented its first "Player of the Year" trophy to the Mustang League's 1976 winner. At that time, it seemed possible that the winner, Chuck Dixon, could win the same award again this year if he had another season as good as that one. Now it is in the record books. Based on his play during the 1977 season at Langford Park, Dixon is the recipient of the Player of the Year trophy for the second year in a row.

The 16-year old pitcher-infielder did not have as good a year as in 1976, when he pitched his way to the Mustang League championship, but it was still good enough to earn him the trophy.

This year, while playing for another team (Rick Carroll), he earned the [illegible] with his bat. During the course of the season, Dixon smacked over 10 home runs and came up with a countless number of key hits.

But it took a lot of hitting to overcome his teammate, Leslie Choate, one of the year's runners-up. With Dixon and Choate smashing extra base hits in rapid succession, it is no wonder that Rick Carroll won both the regular season and tournament championships.

Rick Carroll's strength is also apparent when you consider that Dixon and Choate were the only Mustang players to receive serious consideration for the 1977 trophy. There were several others who accomplished a great deal during the recent season, but only these two were nominated.

Dixon led his team to a 7-1 record during the first half to take the championship of that portion of the season. But Aycock's Gang got hot in the second half and rampaged through the league. When the two met for the regular season championship, it was Aycock's Gang who became the favorite. But Carroll pulled off the upset to take the season title and the number one seeding for the double-elimination tournament involving all five Mustant teams.

While Aycock's fell to previously winless Tri-County Gas twice in a row to be eliminated, Rick Carroll kept rolling along. And it was Dixon, along with Choate, who helped his team along the way with key hits. The Carrollers won the championship 22-13 over Tri-County with a devastating attack.

Dixon will receive the handsome trophy next week.

VOL. 8 NO. 25 JUNE 22, 1977 16 PAGES

TORAL BEAUTY–Residents of the Floresta Pines II area ge they paid a higher price for their lots surrounding what were led to believe was a beautiful lake. Only after they ived their deed to the property and accepted the homeowners' association in the first of six proposed condo-concept developments planned for the city, did they realize the beautiful lake was a sump, or holding pond, for area drainage. Residents have petitioned the City to take over the drainage maintenance of the area.

Floresta Pines green belt is hit by residents

PORT ST. LUCIE–While General Development Corporation has applied the term green belt or open spaces to the common areas in Floresta Pines II, residents of the city's first condominium concept development claim the green areas could be more accurately described as drainage ditches and nothing more.

Following a two month review and indepth study of the situation, Ray Neighbours, chairman of the planning and zoning board, reported to the members of the city council during a joint meeting held Monday that there was indeed a problem arising from the maintenance of the open areas in the development and recommended the city take steps to prevent these problems in the other five condo-developments proposed by the developer within the city.

Meanwhile, members of the City Council have requested the matter be placed on the workshop agenda for July 5, at which time they are hopeful of coming up with some solution to the problem.

On April 29, representatives of the Floresta Pine II Homeowners' Association petitioned the City Council to take over the maintenance of the drainage ditches in their section, claiming that the property owners in the area were unaware they would be assessed for such maintenance at the time they purchased the property.

When Mayor Bill McChesney told the group there were many advantages to the new concept, and pointed out the association has the power to enforce their $60 annual assessments for maintenance of common areas and other rules against both homeowners and renters, Francis Alexander, speaking for the Association, said, "We don't want to become an unpaid arm of the city to take care of all violations of city ordinances and property deeds.

"We came down here to live in this city and to be run by the city, not to govern ourselves. We bought our homes, we pay our city taxes and we want to be treated like any other resident in this city."

Alexander went on to explain that while his group would like the city to take over the maintenance of the common areas of Floresta Pines II, that was becoming a minor consideration at this time.

"You see, we really have no problem. We can dissolve our association by a vote of the members and then, as a dissolved corporation, we can deed the ditches over to the city.

"But, what we are trying to tell you is that the city is facing an even bigger problem by allowing a developer to create little cities within a larger city. According to the deed written by General Development Corporation, we could set up our own police department, keep out the planning and zoning board, and even collect fees for building permits. This is a dangerous document," Alexander said.

Asked by McChesney whys they accepted the association last October from GDC, Alexander said the residents had no choice.

"GDC was through and it was thrown into our lap."

Another resident of the area said that during that October meeting anyone wanting to speak was told by C.C. Crump, senior vice president of GDC, that they were out of order and to be seated.

"We had no attorney representing us and we didn't know what we could or could not do. This thing was shoved down our throats within 15 minutes," said an unidentified resident, while several others agreed out loud with his statement.

"I can't help but think that was a big mistake," McChesney said. "You should have told GDC 'To hell with this, we don't want it, and we are not accepting it'."

It was at that point Ed Jenkins, a member of the planning and zoning board, said that he would have to agree with the residents of Floresta Pines II when they claim they were not aware of the GDC deed and what it included as far as maintaining the common areas was concerned.

Jenkins, who lives in the Rivergreen section in Midport, said he would estimate that at least 90 per cent of the residents in his section were unaware of the maintenance contract included in their property deeds.

While GDC officials claim the open spaces may be utilized as recreation areas, residents say it would be impossible to play a game of ping pong in a drainage ditch.

Mel Broom, GDC's office manager, told those attending the joint meeting that the residents were not as "ill-informed" as they claimed.

"There were numerous meetings and plans were drawn up by GDC and presented to the board (homeowners' association) for approval. I can not see it was shoved quite that hard," Broom said.

While the planning and zoning board has not come up with a solution for the Floresta Pines II section, they have recommended to the City Council that steps be taken to prevent these same problems with the other five condo-type projects proposed for the city.

"Steps must be taken to make certain every person purchasing property in the condo-projects is made aware of what they are buying into," Neighbours said.

The matter will be discussed at the July 5 workshop session of the City Council. Meeting time will be 9 a.m. at City Hall.

BICYCLE PATHS–Pictured above is one of the unpaved bicycle and pedestrian paths which General Development Corporation put in the green belt of open spaces of the Floresta Pines II area prior to turning over the homeowners' association deed to the residents of the area. Residents claim they were unaware of stipulations contained in the contract. GDC officials maintain the open areas can be used for recreation purposes, but residents claim drainage ditches are not suitable recreation areas.

Jaycees in PSL plan member drive for club

PORT ST. LUCIE–Neighboring Jay-Cee Clubs are going to concentrate their efforts to re-activate the Port St. Lucie Club which has been inactive for the past year.

Hunting swordfish in dark of night

Photographic feature by Robbie Bedell

BY ROBBIE BEDELL

Under the light of a half-moon all those aboard sat tense, with the apprehension that a swordfish might take a bait any minute.

As everyone gazed out over the dark Atlantic in a half-sleep, one of the big reels suddenly began to hum a high pitch. It seemed as if the boat were hit by lightning. At once, everyone jumped, as if awakened by a giant alarm clock.

Whatever was on the end of the line, it was big, and it was fighting out there somewhere in the darkness.

As the second line was about to be taken in, out of the way, Dee shouted, "I've got one on this rod."

Cradled in her arms, the large trolling rod took a noticible bend. But in the frenzy, the message wasn't getting through.

"I said I've got a fish on here," she shouted again.

This time Pelosi heard her and the rod was taken care of.

"We have a double on," Harold Brown said quietly over the radio.

For about a half hour the two fish fought, one off the starboard side and the other off the port, as if courteously keeping out of each other's way.

When the fish on the starboard side came up alongside, it was discovered that it was a big hammerhead shark, and set free. Attention was not given totally to the second rod. After a few minutes, the fish was brought up alongside and everyone learned that it wasn't a shark. It was a swordfish which weighed about 200 pounds.

The lights of the Har-Dee must have given the fish a scare because before it could be gaffed, it ran at an incredible speed, back off to starboard, doubled back beneath the boat, and appeared off on the opposite side, dragging the line beneath the boat. After another 15 minutes the fish again was brought close to the stern.

Phosphorus could be seen below with each movement of the fish's tail. It was a gun metal grey with a large black eye.

Just as the swordfish began to come within gaffing range, the line parted, and a glow of illuminated water receded into the depth.

For a while everyone was silent.

"It chaffed the line when it dragged under the boat," Harold Brown said.

It wasn't long before new squid were in the water and fishing went on as usual. Soon the faint light of early dawn appeared, and the crew, swollen-eyed with lack of sleep, realized that the action was over.

As the sun came up above a cloud bank, the Har-Dee headed back for its berth at Bailey Boat Company in Jensen Beach, as the crew caught up on some much-needed sleep.

Sportfishing for sailfish and other popular gamefish has been going on off the coast of Martin County for many years. Many of the species are being studied and their habits are being learned.

But there is one fish sportsmen have just begun catching here and it has everyone asking questions. It is the broadbill swordfish, and its habits off the coast of Florida are largely a mystery, except for the fact that it has shown a healthy appetite for squid drifted from a boat at night in the Gulfstream.

According to local offshore fishermen, swordfish have been caught by commercial fishermen fishing at night with "long-lines".

A long line is a fishing line several miles long towed by a commercial boat with baited hooks attached along its length.

As far as sportsfishing was concerned, some swordfish were caught by accident, but few anglers ever deliberately went out to catch them.

Within the past year it was discovered that drifting a squid in the dead of night in deep water would catch swordfish, and a lot of them.

Friday night, for example, nine Stuart boats went out and six of them came back with swordfish, one of which, caught aboard the boat "Mar-Jon", weighed 640 pounds.

Saturday night, Mirror News Editor Robbie Bedell, Channel 11 fishing reporter Fred Dushanek and magazine writer Willard Porter went out on Harold and Dee Brown's boat, the "Har-Dee."

Calvin Lloyd, accompanied by his wife, Kitty, was the angler and Bobby Pelosi was the mate.

The boat went out the St. Lucie Inlet at about 5 p.m. and headed south to Palm Beach. The method is to get into the Gulfstream at the southern point so that, after a night in the northward drift of the current, a boat will be at or near the port it departed from.

The Har-Dee headed east for the Gulfstream and dropped its lines, squid attached, just before sunset.

"You can relax," Pelosi said. "It could be a long wait."

For the next seven hours the Har-Dee rolled broadside to a choppy sea, alternately rocking every passenger, except for the mate, asleep for short, fitful catnaps.

After awhile all began to wonder if anything at all would bite.

"Don't worry," Pelosi said. "One will bite."

Memories become tearful recapture of PT-boating

ENTATION–Alice Newberry, left, presented the miniature PT Boat charm to d Frances Langford. Evinrude as master-of-ceremonies Lee Crouch smiled aturda y presentation was made before a gathering of World War II PT boat mmen at the Outrigger Resort.

BY DICK CAMPBELL

JENSEN BEACH–The Japanese snipers crouched in the trees surrounding the clearing, tying themselves to the branches, their telescopic rifles slung around their shoulders.

The snipers used the telescopes to stare on the small stage, where the USO entertainers were performing for thousands of war-weary soldiers, sailors and marines.

They did not fire.

"They must have enjoyed the show," Frances Langford remembered. She told of captured sniperr telling of the enjoyable entertainment, and the arrangement not to shoot so that they could enjoy the show, too.

It was a tearful reunion between the members of PT Boats, Inc., a group of men who served aboard the fast torpedo boats that were part of World War II, and Frances Langford Evinrude, the singing-movie star who entertained so many of the troops in all theatres of war with the Bob Hope USO show.

The meeting at Frances Langford's Outrigger Resort last weekend was called a "bull session," at which PTers gathered to talk about their war, and honor the women who was so much a part of the "good memories."

Beginning with the filled memories of the war ("We don't remember the bad, or the tired, or the wounded when we reminisce; we remember the good," said J.M. "Boats" Newberry, head PTer of the U.S6., the PTers spent Saturday talking of the good times, seeing motion pictures of PT boats in action, and then having their banquet to honor Miss Langford.

The banquet featured the presentation of a long-forgotten photograph of the singing star with a group of PTers. She joked, "I can't remember where it was, but I remember liking there."

But, when Mrs. Newberry presented her with a miniature PT boat charm and Emcee Lee Crouch of Hallendale presented her with a bouquet of roses, the tears flowed from Miss Langford's eyes.

With her voice under control, she thanked the PTers for coming to the Outrigger, saying, "I think it is wonderful that you are working to build memories of the past. I love seeing you guys. It is really something. It was a bad war...but it wasn't that bad. I hope you come back again."

The PTers heard Ralph Evinrude, chairman of the board of Outboard Marine Corporation, discuss the PT boat. He praised the speed and handling of the boat, saying, "The PT boat has been close to my heart for many years."

Newberry, who heads the 7,000 man organization as a volunteer, non-paid executive, told of the PT boat museum in Fall River, Mass. There, the memorabilia of victory and defeat of World War II is being restored and collected.

One PT boat is already completely restored, and another is planned for shipment to the museum, he reported. He added that many former PTers take their summer vacations to go to the museum to work on the collection.

Newberry and his wife, Alice, admitted traveling to the various "bull sessions" in a van, so that if they collect photographs and materials from other PTers they can bring the collections back to the museum.

During the war there were 12 operating squadrons of PT boats, with twelve of the deadly torpedo boats in each. The PTers were credited with many facets of water combat, including sinking of enemy ships, underwater demolition, and rescue of downed flyers.

As Crouch closed the banquet, he made one request.

"As we go on our way, let us hope that our Frances will join us in the lounge...to sing one song."

The cheers of the audience sounded the same as those from the servicemen on that South Pacific island during the war the PTers gathered to remember.

Telephones find flood is too much

JENSEN BEACH–Outgoing telephone calls on long distance trunk cables found hard going Tuesday morning, due to a flood on the ninth floor of the Southern Bell Telephone Company in West Palm Beach.

Trouble operators predicted that the long-distance lines from the area would be inoperative from at least midnight Tuesday until possibly Wednesday at noon. However, the lines were cleared by Tuesday at 3 p.m.

The problem was a water main that burst on the ninth floor of the West Palm building, flooding all floors below, including the trunk cables that handle long distance calls.

ax dollars for amnesty denied by Congress

CONGRESSMAN SKIP BAFALIS

HINGTON—Conservative victories in Congress are not a very frequent ence these days, so when they do — especially on a critical matter ople - it is a time for celebration ple throughout the country were filled and aroused when President proposed amnesty for draft and the up-grading of han-honorable discharges for de- and enlistees.

Unfortunately, Members of Congress ve no problem in do anything to overturn decision. The Constitution grants the er of pardon solely to the President the United States.

However, there was an additional ch contained in the up-grading of discharges that the Congress could ose. When the President instructed Department of Defense to up-grade discharges, those "veterans" matically became eligible for the ans benefits which traditionally been available only to those who ed their country honorably. These ividuals would have been able to d school via the GI bill and would been able to purchase homes with assistance of a VA loan.

many, it was simply unacceptable those who turned and run would only be eligible for the same efits others had worked hard and nefited to enjoy. It was the final straw.

During consideration of the appropriations bill which funds the Veterans Administration, an amendment was offered to prohibit the use of any VA funds for either GI education benefits or housing loans for those who had received amnesty or an up-graded discharge.

This amendment passed overwhelmingly by a vote of 273 yeas to 136 nays.

The members of the House simply could not condone the use of taxpayers' hard-earned dollars to reward those who had chosen not to serve. Furthermore, they refused to endorse this slap in the face to those who had served well.

To me, it was essential that this issue be drawn. If a simple sweep of the Presidential pen could erase all the stigma for those who refused to answer their country's call in time of need — what could the future hold for us? How can we continue to expect our young men and women to be willing to come to our nation's aid in the future? What type of discipline could be expected in the armed forces?

Although the President maintained his attempt was to heal the wounds from Vietnam, I maintain this program would have created deeper ones and ones that could never heal.

The veterans of this nation's armed services can once again hold their heads high and be proud of their contribution to America's freedoms. Their ranks will not be sullied with those whom President Carter wanted to give a free ride.

And the people of this country can be proud that the will of the majority has prevailed. Their strong reactions against the President's plan was heard by their representatives. The hundreds and thousands of letters disavowing the proposed action were read and they did have an impact.

The next time you hear someone say they have no influence on their national legislature or the actions of their government, remind them of this story. Encourage them to make their views known to the appropriate, responsible individuals.

And then you do it, too.

It can work - just as this did.

LETTER

To the Editor:

Another successful year in adult education is ending. Thanks to your help and that of your staff in publicizing our programs, together with the continuing cooperation of your communications media colleagues, more than 8,000 adults participated in our various classes.

With Ernie Curwen's prodding of the AARP members, and your publicity, more than five hundred adults completed the defensive driving course; we think this should help to make Martin County one of the safer counties in Florida in which to drive.

Approximately eight hundred fathers and mothers (prospective) attended our Parenthood-Childbirth classes which we co-sponsor with the Martin-St. Lucie Childbirth Education Association. We believe these classes will help to enhance the quality of family life relationships.

More than one in four high school diplomas awarded in Martin County were earned through our department. Our students can be found in most business offices in the county since we offer a variety of business education courses, with job-upgrading and review classes held daily. Several thousand of our retired citizens enrolled in courses in art, craft, chorus and foreign languages. Others enjoyed classes in sewing, upholstery, celestial navigation, auto mechanics, small engine repair, boat safety, medical self-help and a variety of other courses developed to meet their needs.

Who says there is nothing to do in Martin County? With your help next fall, we hope to continue to meet the educational needs of our adult residents. Again, thank you and your staff for your cooperation in making our programs known to your readers.

Sincerely,
s-Henry A. Childers, Director

Doris had a letter from Harold and Angie Sholdt that was sent to Ben Morgan. The Sholds are Lil Bit Laners, too. They've been to Wyoming visiting the kids, to see Walter Harman (Lil Bit Lane), now enjoying Macy, Nebraska. Angie says she likes reading the Mirror to hear about the doings of their friends, says the garden is no in, and the battle of the weeds is well underway, with corn knee high June 11 in Elkador, Iowa.

Last week I reported a wrong town for an address. Charles Nickles of West End is in Chesterton, Ind., not Charleston; street and zip were OK.

Now that I've digressed a bit, here's a couple of points that need to be mentioned.

When letters are received, some say, "Don't put my name in," and others say, "You left my name out". Also, when folks are in the hospital, some say not to report my husband is in the hospital, then others say, "You never wrote about my wife (or someone) being in the hospital, how come?"

If you have a preference on such items, let me know.

Dorcas Poet has heard that Ruth (Griffith) Allen, ex-OBPer, is now home from the hospital after treatment for a broken shoulder. Her address is P.O. Box 1017, Dunedin, FL 33528.

Leta Keith reports that Dora Hart, formerly of Vista Dr., is home at Pine Lake Village after being hospitalized with a fractured hip.

Charlie Schaefer, 12 Broad St., died in Martin Memorial Hospital, Thursday, June 23.

DO YOU REMEMBER WHEN....

Last week the park had an anniversary, so it might be appropriate to mention a few "firsts" and some events of long ago.

Few will remember the start of Ocean Breeze 30 years ago, when about noontime on a Wednesday, June 22, the Hoins arrived in their 14 foot red Cleveree Wagon travel trailer. This must have been the start of the new famous "park rumors" for there were 13 men waiting to go to work clearing the ground for a trailer park. First, they cleared a space just north of an apartment (site of present office) and parked the twin trailer. (Gene often remarks, "It was so small we had to step out to change our mind".)

Gene located the old guest book for 1938-39 and found that Mr. and Mrs. Paul Feigert registered Sept. 4; Doc. B. Gewart, Sept. 7; Karl Hoke family, Dec. 22, and Irene Beem, Jan 22, 1939, to mention just a few. Gladys McLarty, Doreen Peet and Andy Sherkey were also early 1938 or 1939 residents.

Doreen and Bill Peet came down in '38 to look around and then, when they came back in '39, Harry met them on the Fort Pierce road and offered them free overnight stay. Doreen has been here ever since. It was the fishing that brought Bill back, year after year.

Gladys McLarty, before she went north for visit and convalescing, often talked about those early days and, time after time mentioned that it was the wonderful drinking water that brought them back, year after year.

Andy Sherkey, 19 Keylime, came down in 1938 and was park for years on So. 3rd. Andy thinks there were about 60 trailers at that time. He can well remember the "snake pit" was a busy place...that's what the two shuffle courts north of the office were called. Andy chuckled a bit when he mentioned that some light groceries were sold at the office, but many of the gals liked to go to Quinn's for their supplies, so they could feed their change into the "game machines".

Let us know who remembers these times.

RAMBLING AROUND

"Small world" is heading of a letter from Mort and Dot Ketchin of 16 Bay Dr. who are now at 43½ Bridge St., Lambertville, N.J. 08530. You see, they were at a bench overlook on the Delaware River, peacefully enjoying the scene, when another couple drove up and sat down nearby. Then, getting into a conversation as strangers often do, they found the couple were the Springmans from OBP, whom they'd never met before, although had been practically neighbors. Dot says, "It was such an enjoyable visit and both couples enjoyed talking to someone from OBP."

Dot goes on to say the weather is great and all flowers are in bloom. Also, there is a note, "Tell Geo. Reeves we wish him well."

...undreds enjoy hospital picnic

...ART—Four hundred pounds of ...em. Eight hundred hot dogs and 700 hamburgers.

The guests who attended the Martin Memorial Hospital's annual picnic Saturday really packed down the food.

About 800 people showed up throughout the day to eat, consume cold drinks and dance to the music of the local band, "Hot Ice".

A number of local merchants donated merchandise which was raffled off to picnic goers.

Throughout the afternoon, there were games such as egg ravine and horseshoes. Swings were tied from the rafters of fairground pavilions so children could swing.

The picnic is funded by proceeds donated by doctors and by the hospital auxiliary.

Rio families have 'crisis homes'

RIO—Runaways and dependent youths who were formerly placed in detention centers with delinquents or in jail with adult offenders now are able to find a haven with the help of Crisis Home families in Martin County.

The Larry Suter and Jeffry Alter families, after hearing a plea for volunteer crisis homes on the radio, decided that they might try volunteering to help.

The next day they contacted the Florida Department of Rehabilitative Services (HRS) in Stuart and became "crisis home" parents.

The Suters, who live at 1007 Alice Ave., Rio, have four of their own children. Since joining the program in 1974, they have had many more children pass through their door.

The Alter home, at 10 Sunset Blvd., Rio, has also housed a number of youths in trouble. They enjoy caring for them while awaiting family and juvenile court decisions.

Supervision of the foster families in the church has given the Alters training for those who are given to them for help.

The first thing the families do when a newcomer comes into the home is to learn what his hobbies are and to relate to him on his own terms. The Alters say that they enjoy mingling with the youths, exchanging ideas and listening to their problems.

Both families are gratified when they get mail or phone calls from those who are appreciative of the help they have given them.

Anyone interested in becoming a crisis home parent can do so by calling Charles Koenig at the HRS Volunteer Services Center, 314 East Ocean Blvd., Stuart, at 287-4545 or 283-3136.

GOLDEN WEDDING—Mr. and Mrs. Eric Menzer, Spruce Ridge Road, celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary June 5 at a party given by their three sons. The party was at the home of Don Menzer in Brookfield, Conn., and was co-hosted by Edward and Jack Menzer, both of New Fairfield, Conn. Some 50 friends and relatives attended the party, including four grandchildren. The Menzers were married June 4, 1927, in the New Milford Congregational Church, Brookfield, Conn. He was a tool and die maker at Davis and Geck in Danbury before retiring to Jensen Beach.

Power Squadron to record shoals

BY ROBBIE BEDELL

JENSEN BEACH—Looking down from an airplane, geographical shapes take on a whole new dimension.

Shapes of town and developments can be seen with a bird's eye view, and river and ocean bottoms can be seen in a myriad of colors and hues.

In conjunction with National Safe Boating Week, July 3-9, the St. Lucie River Power Squadron will take advantage of the aerial view and will use an airplane to plot the location of shoals in Martin County waters.

The shoals, which in most cases are sand bars and mud flats, can also be rocks and wreckage, and in all cases, are regarded as a threat to navigation.

According to Squadron-member Willard G. MacIntosh, the aerial sightings are being used for the first time here in a cooperative charting program being carried out by the squadron.

"Such aerial studies can often detect unsuspected shoals that defy casual inspection at water level," MacIntosh said.

The results of the study are turned over to the National Atmospheric and Oceanic Administration (NAOA).

George Harden, a squadron member who has had extensive experience in aerial observation, will man the airplane.

The plane will team up with boats to cover each area of the survey. Equipped with a number of sounding devices and following special charts, the location of each shoal will be recorded, and in addition, navigation aides such as buoys and channel markers will be inspected.

Raymond Ross, the chairman of the cooperative charting program, said that the local squadron in the past six years has submitted about 260 chart corrections. The information is used in charts produced by NAOA.

The St. Lucie River Power Squadron is a unit of the U.S. Power Squadrons, the world's largest boating organization.

The squadron has outlined 10 safety rules for Safe Boating Week. They are:

1. Know your boat. 2.Don't overload your boat. 3.Keep a good lookout. 4.Operate at safe speeds. 5.Respect the weather. 6.Take sufficient fuel. 7.Keep your boat in shape. 8.Carry necessary equipment. 9.Secure your boat properly. 10.Obey the law.

m Tuesday. Their son, Wes, Jr., erated on Wednesday, success-and is now on the road to recovery

Now, Ruth writes, they are already missing H.O., but enjoying taking care of their three granddaughters while their father is hospitalized. They expect to return in September.

Ruth and Bill Stedebaker write of their annual trip to Minnesota to fish. They go up on the Canadian border to the Chain of Lakes, Rainy, Kabetogama and Namakan, then southeast. Much of this is now included in the National Voyagers Parks, routes used by early French explorers.

They found the lakes eight feet low due to the lack of snow in the winter. Access to the lakes from their resort was by following a carefully marked channel through the Ash River. Fishing was spotty, but they fared rather well. They enjoyed the beautiful scenery of the northwoods: spruce, pine and rock cliffs, and many waterfalls. The weather was good, warmer daytimes than usual, with cool nights.

Bill Seaman of Jensen Beach visited them. On leaving the Stedebakers, Bill went to Traverse City, Mich., with a good catch of fish. He and Dot are home now, prettying up their home, planning to leave in July for a trip to Colorado to visit relatives.

June Carleton and grandson Joel Earl visited Earl and Ruth Bowes Sunday to plan a double birthday luncheon. June's and Ruth's birthdays are so close it has become an annual affair, a little more special this year as Ruth enters the 70's.

+++

Mac and Jean McCabe returned Saturday after a two week vacation. They attended the American Legion Convention in Jacksonville, where Jensen Beach Post 126 was awarded the Religious Emphasis Award for their God and Country Day program. They continued on to Delaware to visit their children and grandchildren and, while there, they visited the Varsanis and the Ellers.

Holiday Outlines

BY RUTH BOWES 334-4946

Assisted by Elizabeth O'Donnell and Pey Hay

Mac and Betty O'Donnell gave a small dinner party on Thursday night to introduce Mr. and Mrs. Fred Zimmerman of Spring Lake, N.J., to some of O'Donnell's neighbors.

The Zimmermans have been staying in the park for the past ten days and have been so enchanted with the beautiful beach and informal mode of living in Holiday Out that they hope to return next year to purchase a lot and trailer.

Ted and Nancy Lontz returned recently from a vacation trip to New Jersey and Cape Cod, Massachusetts, visiting their family. When they returned they brought grandchildren David and Nancy Furth back with them for an extended visit.

Nancy, no "seaside woman", has been spending hours each day chaperoning the youngsters at the ocean or pool. Guess who got a sunburn?

Anniversary congratulations go this week to Bob and Rita Royal, July 1; william and Marie Williams, July 2.

Happy birthday wishes are extended to Orville Blinn and Roger Byrne, July 1; June Carleton, Robert Wiley and Art Smith, July 4.

Welcome Mr. and Mrs. Roger Morris

We would like to extend a welcome to Palm Lake Park to Mr. and Mrs. Roger Morris, who purchased the Barnes home on Palm Lake Park Drive.

Mr. Morris has purchased the Texaco station south of the park, which was formerly known as Lord's. He will be pleased to meet his new neighbors at his new location.

Palm Lake Park

Neighbors celebrating birthdays during July will be Marion Kuebler, July 7, Kate Burford, 8th, Clarence Pendarvis, 10th, Diane Reddick, 17th, Mike Doud, 25th, Ana Smiley and Bernard Funnell, 26th, and Ruth Walsh, July 30.

We wish these wonderful neighbors a happy day.

Clarence and Thelma Hafelin and John and Yolande Denman will celebrate their wedding anniversaries on the first; Carl and Elizabeth Flora on the 7th. Happy Anniversaries, folks!

John Holzinger of Palm Lake Park and Marion Hoelzman of Coconut Park were married on June 18. They honeymooned in the Keys and now reside on N.W. 14th Street.

+++

Marty and Ben Olesen and family have returned home from Connecticut where they attended the graduation of their daughter Donna from South Windsor High School in South Windsor. A good time followed the graduation which all enjoyed and she is now at home with her folks on N.W. 14th Street.

Clarence and Mary McCaw have returned after a three weeks vacation in Germany, Italy, Austria, Switzerland, France, Spain and Portugal.

They had as their guests their two granddaughters, Linda and Julie Vavrinska, who commented that they are happy that they live in America after observing that the male children in those countries are the most revered, while the females are not given the schooling and other things that females enjoy here.

They were real happy to be back home.

Home box office previews

JENSEN BEACH—Perry Cable Television Companies will offer their subscribers a one-week preview of Home Box Office satellite entertainment programming beginning July 1.

The 14,000 cable subscribers who live in this area will be able to sample eight days of top-rated movies and entertainment via satellite from Home Box Office (HBO), a subsidiary of Time, Inc., New York City.

Preview programming, which begins about 5:30 p.m. on weekdays and 3 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday, will be shown on Cable Channel 8.

Home Box Office is the nation's largest pay-TV entertainment service and is now seen in more than 600,000 American homes in 45 states from coast-to-coast. All programming is originated in HBO's studios in New York and is carried to Florida via RCA domestic communications satellite stationed over 23,000 miles above the equator.

During the initial preview period, Home Box Office viewers will have a front-row seat at the Wimbledon tennis championships for the men's semi finals and a look at Robert Shaw, Peter Boyle, Genevieve Bujold and Beau Bridges in "Swashbuckler."

The star-spangled fourth of July weekend will be lit up with stars: Barbra Streisand in "Funny Lady" on Saturday, John Wayne and Katherine Hepburn in "Rooster Cogburn" on Sunday, and Michael Sarrazin in the "Gumball Rally" on July 4.

"The Other Side of the Mountain", starring Marilyn Hassett and Beau Bridges, will premiere Sunday, July 3.

The true story of championship skier Jill Kinmont and the tragic accident that tests her will to live and the power of love is an inspiring and unforgettable story for the whole family.

A non-subscriber to cable can get cable service installed for $20 and Home Box Office installed free. Viewers who wish to subscribe to the new entertainment service will pay $8.50 a month in addition to the $6.50 charge for basic cable service.

For cable subscribers who do not currently subscribe to Perry Cinema Cable, HBO will be installed for $5 off the regular installation fee of $10 during the one week preview period.

A current cable-Cinema Cub subscriber can get Home Box Office for one month at the Cinema Club rate of $6.25 instead of the regular $8.50 charge. The new rate ($8.50) will go into effect August 1 for Cinema Club subscribers.

HBO's exclusive standing room only series will whisk you to the Hollywood Palladium for a sparkling evening of song with Paul Anka, premiering Sunday, July 10. Other HBO specials in July include the "Smothers Brothers Last Stand" - when they take their final bow as a showbiz duo in a 90-minute show taped in Las Vegas.

"On Location," Home Box Office's series which features comedians performing in nightclubs before live audiences, will salute Shelley Berman's 20 years in show business with a July 15 premiere of the best of Berman's routines taped in Chicago's Playboy Club.

Subscribers in Fort Pierce and Vero Beach were the first in the country to receive HBO's signal by satellite in September, 1975. Today Home Box Office programming is received by six earth stations in Florida, serving subscribers in dozens of communities along both coasts.

Perry will continue to show adult movies on cable Channel 6 after the regular Home Box Office programming ends each night.

Club achieves new beginning

JENSEN BEACH—As the island drums beat, and dancers swirled to the rhythm, Hutchinson Island Club achieved its new "beginning." And, out of the ashes of the past, Phoenix arose to the tempo of an exciting future for the condominium complex on Hutchinson Island, just north of the martin County line.

It took new management, a $1.2 million investment, and imagination to bring the condo-complex into the ultimate that it has become.

Proud of the work and talent that has brought about this transformation, Prior Cosby, general manager, invited more than 300 of the local dignitaries and business leaders of the Martin-St. Lucie County area to view the new facility at a Hawaiian luau last Friday night.

The 92 units, including 85 two bedroom two bath apartments and seven townhouse penthouses, had been updated with features that make the rejuvenation a successful event.

Mix that with the rustic pig-on-a-spit, and Hawaiian dancers, plus the tropical atmosphere created by the early evening party, and the auspicious beginnings of Hutchinson Island Club became a certainty.

The ladies received fresh Hawaiian orchid leis, and the buffet consisted of items smoked fish, won ton, sashimi, and marinated greens, with roast pig the feature of dinner.

Lincoln Properties, developers of the new venture, has taken the recommendations of Cosby to upgrade the already sound building structure to allow the amenities that will make it one of the outstanding condominiums in this area, with the security Cosby demanded and adding the small touches of class and culture that the condo required.

Hutchinson Island Club has, again, arrived, and the community will be better for it - and for Lincoln Properties, and for the bright future Prior Cosby saw in the development.

T ST. LUCIE–While a member of to the Port St. Lucie City Hall to r a complaint about the City's members concluded the public g ans passed the necessary en told during the Tuesday

DC legal staff was on his way,
Bill McChesney said he did not econd and final reading of two inces which annexed a 30-acre f land into the city and zoned the r Planned Unit Development.

r Georgeff, the developer of the d $100,000-a-home subdivision s Vikings Landing, requested nexation and zoning nearly two s ago. The city's planning and board approved both the zoning e preliminary site plans which call units to be constructed on re lots.

though the council action had rmed, McChesney did grant Allen portunity to speak out on GDC's on.

e told his listeners that while al Development had no objection to the proposed development, they were concerned about the zoning of the project.

Allen pointed out that this proposal indicates one-half acres lots per single family dwelling, once the PUD zoning is in effect there would be nothing to stop the developer from altering his plans to go to 15 units per acre.

According to Allen, the city has several other zoning classifications which could have been applied to the Vikings Landing development.

City officials, on the other hand, claim that they will have the final say at the time Georgeff or any other developer presents the preliminary site plans for a proposed development.

Allen questioned such authority once the zoning has been established.

Georgeff owns another 140 acres in the same area but, aside from stating access to the property would have to be by way of a bridge over the C24 Canal, he has been reluctant to discuss any tentative plans for development.

According to the developer, the subdivision will have homes of over 3,000 square feet, private roads (built to city specifications), security guards, tennis courts, and, if permits can be obtained, a small marina in a pocket inlet.

Georgeff's request for utilities service from General Development was rejected and he now plans to put in septic tanks and wells on each of the half-acre lots.

Georgeff, owner of Victory Construction, Inc., was the developer of the Holiday Country Club Estates in Stuart.

Plans are set for a bang-up fourth

PORT ST. LUCIE–While all systems are go for the City's elaborate July 4 celebration, there is still time remaining for the purchase of tickets to the chicken barbecue and for children of the area to register for their participation in Mobile Brigade and the "Little House on the Prairie" categories, according to City Manager Elmer Cox, who chairs the parade committee.

"This is the first time these two categories have been included in the parade, and we are hopeful of a good turnout in both," Cox said Tuesday.

Little girls, aged 4 to 10, will be eligible for cash and other valuable prizes when they compete in the parade wearing long dresses similar to those worn by their counterparts made famous in the "Little House on the Prairie" television series.

According to GDC's Mel Broom, the young ladies will be spared the long march in the parade, since General Development Corporation will provide an elaborate float complete with log cabin.

First, second and third place prizes will be awarded to those who appear in the most attractive long dresses, with or without sunbonnets, and, if possible, carrying a parasol.

Children, age 4 to 10, will have the opportunity of participating in the "Mobile Brigade." Prizes will be awarded to the winners in each of three categories, which include the best decorated bicycle, the best decorated tricycle, and the best decorated wagon.

According to Cox, special attention will be given to wagon entries which include a pet to be drawn by its owner.

To register their children in either of the two categories, parents are asked to call Cathy Merritt at the Port St. Lucie City Hall, 334-0097 or 878-0097.

Cox said he has a list of more than 30 entries registered to date.

The daylong activities will commence with the parade starting at the Northport Marina at 10 a.m., and end with a fireworks display at Sportsman Park at dark.

For those who intend to enjoy the afternoon chicken barbecue, to be cooked and served by Mel Broom and his crew, tickets must be purchased no later than June 30. These tickets are available at the Center office or from any Community Center trustee.

The barbecue will be served from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. and will include baked beans, cole slaw, rolls and coffee.

Throughout the day there will be hamburgers, hot dogs, cold drinks available at the Community Center, and a full schedule of games and contests for the children of the area is planned.

Activities will include a water balloon toss from noon until 12:30, three-legged race fom 12:30 to 1 p.m., egg spoon race from 1 to 1:30, and a watermelon eating contest from 1:30 to 2 p.m.

Traveling skeeters?

PORT ST. LUCIE–"While we have a good many mosquitoes being bred in our city, we also have a vast number of traveling mosquitoes, some of them coming from as far away as 150 miles to bite local residents," said the city's safety director, Doug Stout.

Although their point of origin makes little difference in the bite, residents of Port St. Lucie can look forward to a bit more attention from the St. Lucie County Mosquito Control Department as a result of several meetings between the department and Stout.

Stout and mosquito control officials have toured several areas within the city to see what could be done about the pesky, flying, biting insects.

"They were unaware we have several areas within the city where the water does not flow," Stout said, adding that larvacides would be used in these areas.

"We have also been promised additional spraying in the area," Stout said.

An afternoon baseball game is planned for Sportsman Park.

One of the highlights of the July 4 parade will be the Port St. Lucie Band, with members wearing their new blue and white bolero jackets, custom made and donated by Mrs. Alice Jensen.

"Much time and effort has gone into making this year's celebration the best ever and I hope residents of the community will show their appreciation by turning out for the many planned activities," Cox said.

Teen dances draw

PORT ST. LUCIE–Live music by a local rock band and a good attendance have indicated the community teen dances held in the recreation hall of the St. Lucie Catholic Church will be a continuing success.

The dances, held every other Friday evening from 8 p.m. to 11 p.m., are co-sponsored by the Port St. Lucie Catholic Church and the Junior Woman's Club. Teenagers from 12 to 17 years of age are welcome to attend the sessions.

There is a small admission fee and all dances are well chaperoned.

While the next dance is slated for July 1, there are plans for special dances in the future which will likely include a "Happy Days" theme.

City hall plans are high in sky

PORT ST. LUCIE–Plans, plans, whose got the plans? What plans? The ones for proposed city hall, of course.

While a joint meeting was arranged between the Councilmembers and the Planning and Zoning Board on June 20 to unveil the first of a five phase proposed city hall complex, ten days later the plans have yet to be seen by either group.

City Manager Elmer Cox was able to shed some light on the subject during the Tuesday Council session.

"It is my understanding Delta Airlines has our plans someplace between Stuart, Florida, and Canada...exactly where, I'm not sure," Cox said.

He explained the local architect who did the renderings sent them to a fellow architect in Canada who was to do the colorations.

"Somewhere, between here and Canada on board a Delta jet, is the floor plan, site plan, and the front elevation of our proposed city hall," Cox said.

GOP plans 'assembly'

PORT ST. LUCIE–The July 7 meeting of the Port St. Lucie Republican Club, to be held at the CESA Building at 7:30 p.m., will be a "Club Assembly Night."

The purpose of the meeting will be to receive input from the members as to the types of programs they would like to have in the future and to form committees for such activities as the upcoming membership drive.

Social hostesses for the meeting will be Marge Anderson and Fran Lee. Tentative plans for the fall program include a possible dinner in September and the membership drive in October.

The Port St. Lucie Republican Club holds its regular meeting the first Thursday of each month at the Community Center. The public is invited to attend.

Home box office previews

JENSEN BEACH–Perry Cable Television Companies will offer their subscribers a one-week preview of Home Box Office satellite entertainment programming beginning July 1.

The 14,000 cable subscribers who live in this area will be able to sample eight days of top-rated movies and entertainment via satellite from Home Box Office (HBO), a subsidiary of Time, Inc., New York City.

Preview programming, which begins about 5:30 p.m. on weekdays and 3 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday, will be shown on Cable Channel 6.

Home Box Office is the nation's largest pay-TV entertainment service and is now seen in more than 600,000 American homes in 45 states from coast-to-coast. All programming is originated in HBO's studios in New York and is carried to Florida via RCA domestic communications satellite stationed over 22,000 miles above the equator.

During the initial preview period, Home Box Office viewers will have a front-row seat at the Wimbledon tennis championships for the men's semi-finals and a look at Robert Shaw, Peter Boyle, Genevieve Bujold and Beau Bridges in "Swashbuckler."

The star-spangled fourth of July weekend will be lit up with stars: Barbra Streisand in "Funny Lady" on Saturday, John Wayne and Katherine Hepburn in "Rooster Cogburn" on Sunday, and Michael Sarrazin in the "Gumball Rally" on July 4.

"The Other Side of the Mountain", starring Marilyn Hassett and Beau Bridges, will premiere Sunday, July 3.

The true story of championship skier Jill Kinmont and the tragic accident that tests her will to live and the power of love is an inspiring and unforgettable story for the whole family.

A non-subscriber to cable can get cable service installed for $20 and Home Box Office installed free. Viewers who wish to subscribe to the new entertainment service will pay $8.50 a month in addition to the $6.50 charge for basic cable service.

For cable subscribers who do not currently subscribe to Perry Cinema Club, HBO will be installed for $5 off the regular installation fee of $10 during the one week preview period.

A current cable-Cinema Club subscriber can get Home Box Office for one month at the Cinema Club rate of $6.25 instead of the regular $8.50 charge. The new rate ($8.50) will go into effect August 1 for Cinema Club subscribers.

HBO's exclusive standing room only series will whisk you to the Hollywood Palladium for a sparkling evening of song with Paul Anka, premiering Sunday, July 10. Other HBO specials in July include the "Smothers Brothers Last Stand" – when they take their final bow as a showbiz duo in a 90-minute show taped in Las Vegas.

"On Location," Home Box Office's series which features comedians performing in nightclubs before live audiences, will salute Shelley Berman's 20 years in show business with a July 15 premiere of the best of Berman's routines taped in Chicago's Playboy Club.

Subscribers in Fort Pierce and Vero Beach were the first in the country to receive HBO's signal by satellite in September, 1975. Today Home Box Office programming is received by six earth stations in Florida, serving subscribers in dozens of communities along both coasts.

Club achieves new beginning

JENSEN BEACH–As the island drums beat, and dancers swirled to the rhythm, Hutchinson Island Club achieved its new "beginning." And, out of the ashes of the past, Phoenix arose to the tempo of an exciting future for the condominium complex on Hutchinson Island, just north of the martin County line.

It took new management, a $1.2 million investment, and imagination to bring the condo complex into the ultimate that it has become.

Proud of the work and talent that has brought about this transformation, Prior Cosby, general manager, invited more than 500 of the local dignitaries and business leaders of the Martin-St. Lucie County area to view the new facility at a Hawaiian luau last Friday night.

The 92 units, including 88 two bedroom, two bath apartments and seven townhouse penthouses, had been updated with features that make the rejuvenation a successful event.

Mix that with the roast pig on a spit, and Hawaiian dancers, plus the cocktail atmosphere created by the early evening party, and the auspicious beginnings of Hutchinson Island Club became a certainty.

The ladies revelled fresh Hawaiian orchid leis, and the buffet consisted of clams, smoked fish, won ton, sashimi, and marinated greens, with roast pig the feature of dinner.

Lincoln Properties, developers of the new venture, has taken the recommendations of Cosby to upgrade the already sound building structure to allow the amenities that will make it one of the outstanding condominiums in this area, with the security Cosby demanded and adding the small touches of class and culture that the condo required.

Hutchinson Island Club has, again, arrived, and the community will be better for it, and for Lincoln Properties, and for the bright future Prior Cosby saw in the development.

Red Cross ready at hurricane watch

When a hurricane watch is announced, the American Red Cross gets into gear.

The job of the Red Cross in any disaster is to provide food, clothing, shelter, medical and nursing care to victims.

According to Peter Otovic, disaster chairman of the Marlin County Chapter of the Red Cross, the local chapter is ready to go in the event of a hurricane.

"As soon as we get word of a hurricane watch, we get into action," Otovic said. "We keep in touch with Civil Defense and they keep us informed as to local weather conditions. Once the hurricane watch goes into effect we get our volunteers to deliver supplies to area shelters."

Each shelter is manned by a shelter manager, a nurse, a person in charge of keeping and distributing food, and a messenger to keep in touch with Civil Defense and other groups which may be distributing information via radio.

Volunteers equip the shelters, with the help of local businesses, with water bottles, first aid kits and food. The inside of the shelters and the outside grounds are prepared for the oncoming storm. Windows are taped and boarded up and any other precautions that can be taken care of are readied.

"We have a number of regular volunteers who help us but, during the summer months, there is always a chance that some of them could be out of town when a hurricane hits," Otovic said. "That's why we are always looking for qualified people to volunteer to give us a hand."

He added that shelters are inspected and regarded as the best place to be during any hurricane.

"Shelters are the best protection we can find," he said. "We would like to see as many people as possible come and use them."

When a hurricane strikes and all of the people are inside the shelters, the Red Cross staff is in charge of running the show. Food is kept and distributed evenly and no one is allowed to leave until the storm has passed.

Once the hurricane has ended, the Red Cross again goes into action.

"When the storm is over, the very first thing we do is take care of the casualties," Otovic said. "With the help of ambulances, and the Sheriff's Department, we get the injured to the hospital and generally help clean up after the storm. This is an area where we can always use the help of more people."

Otovic said the official Red Cross volunteers will be identifiable by white hardhats, nameplates or arm bands bearing the Red Cross logo.

The volunteers carry extra forms of identification so they can give them to people who want to help.

Otovic urges local residents to enroll in Red Cross First Aid courses.

"We are looking out for the welfare of the people and we need them help," he said.

Plan ahead for shelters

For those who plan to head for a shelter after a hurricane warning period is announced, shelters serving Jensen Beach, Rio and North River Shores residents are capable of serving 3,140 persons.

The shelters and their capacities are as follows:

Jensen Beach Elementary School, S. Savanna Rd., 740.

Jensen Beach Community Church, 409 Skyline Dr., 400.

Jensen Beach Lanes, Jensen Beach, 300.

The First Baptist Church, 315 Commercial St., 400.

The First United Presbyterian Church, Pine Lake Drive, North River Shores, 300.

In the Port St. Lucie area the Port St. Lucie Elementary School has been designated as a shelter, as have all schools in St. Lucie County. The school would be the first shelter to open and the capacity is estimated between 800 and 900 persons.

Other probable shelters to be opened as the need arises include Citizens Federal Savings & Loan, located at the intersection of U.S. 1 and Prima Vista Boulevard; the Port St. Lucie Community Center, the Webb Clinic and the Port St. Lucie Bank, all located on Prima Vista Boulevard.

As a rule hurricane shelters are not opened until the hurricane warning is announced. During the watch period, shelter locations are officially issued.

Food, requiring no cooking, should be taken for the first meal in the shelter, along with blankets, pillows, medicine and personal items.

Those with infants must remember to bring formulas, baby food, sufficient diapers, and a cooler with ice to keep baby food cold.

Don't expect to go anywhere once inside the shelter. No one will be permitted to leave unless an emergency arises.

Before leaving home, sterilize and fill your bathtub and other containers with water. If the water system fails or becomes contaminated, you may have to use the stored water after the hurricane passes.

Make sure other items around the home are taken care of before leaving. Tie down loose objects. Half-empty swimming pools. Turn off power and fuel systems. Fill the gas tank in your car.

Dry ice saves food

You have a freezer full of frozen food and you learn there is a hurricane on its way. The winds rise and the electricity begins to flutter and you worry what to do if the power goes off, especially for an extended period of time.

The Florida Power and Light Company has made arrangements to distribute dry ice to local merchants so the public can possibly save their frozen foodstuffs.

The dry ice will be sold in blocks which should be inserted in a home freezer to supplement the function of the unit when the power is off.

The blocks weigh a little more than 12 pounds and will probably cost less than $3 each.

Florida Power and Light Stuart area manager Gene Van Curen said the longevity of the ice will vary due to the size of the freezer and the amount of food inside.

Van Curen said that the ice should be put into the freezer and left inside with the door closed. Open the freezer as little as possible.

Handle the dry ice only with gloves. The substance is so cold that it will cause burns if it comes in direct contact with the skin.

The ice will be available at the following places of business:

Blue Star Ice, Warfield Blvd., Indiantown.

Port Salerno Grocery, Salerno Road, Port Salerno.

Pic 'n Pay Grocery, Colorado Ave., Stuart.

The Country Store, 2286 Morningside, Port St. Lucie.

HURRICANE EXTRAS

USE THIS CHECK LIST WHEN BLOW NEARS

Here, in brief, is a suggested list which should be filled before the big blow hits. Pasted to a small piece of cardboard and hung in the kitchen, it will provide an immediate reference during the rush-around period the day before a hurricane hits.

Skip the non-essentials, except such things as a favorite doll or a toy for the children. Leave the portable TV set at home. There won't be enough power for it and you might find you enjoy talking to your family or neighbors.

In the event the storm is of such intensity that your family decides to take shelter in a Disaster Center, take with you:

- ☐ Battery radio, with spare batteries
- ☐ Flash lights (2), with spare batteries
- ☐ Electric lantern, with spare batteries
- ☐ Three to five gallons of water per person
- ☐ Canned meats, soups, etc.
- ☐ Canned fruit juices
- ☐ Special foods for babies, the aged, and invalids
- ☐ Can opener - not electric
- ☐ Dried cereals
- ☐ Crackers, cookies
- ☐ Milk, powdered and evaporated
- ☐ Sterno or other self-operating stove
- ☐ Matches
- ☐ Cot or sleeping bag (there may not be enough to go around if the shelter is jammed)
- ☐ Flashlight or lantern of your own
- ☐ Any special foods and the utensils to prepare them
- ☐ Small quantity of water
- ☐ Change of clothing
- ☐ Blankets
- ☐ Mops, rags, buckets
- ☐ Up to date and "refreshed" first aid kit
- ☐ Paper plates (to conserve water)
- ☐ Small tools (brought in from carport) such as screwdrivers, pliers, nails and hammer

Hurricane survival demands advance planning

If a hurricane warning goes into effect, you have only three choices of what course you can follow.

A number of factors must be taken into consideration regarding the final decision you must make, and careful consideration could make the difference between survival and disaster.

A resident must make up his mind whether or not he should batten down the hatches and stay in his home until the hurricane passes, leave and seek higher and safer ground at an official shelter or reliable hotel or motel.

Officials say 75 to 80 per cent of damage done by a storm is caused by water, not from wind. This means a person should learn what the elevation of his property is. Maps at all U.S. Post Offices show the elevations of property in Martin County. The elevations are broken down to from 0-5 feet, 5-10 feet and above 10 feet.

For precise locations residents should check the maps or call the county engineer. Generally, all of Hutchinson Island, the Town of Sewall's Point, the causeways, and most of Ocean Breeze Park are in the 0-5 feet category.

In the 5-10 feet category in the center portion of the Sewall's Point peninsula, Port Sewall, parts of Rio and parts of Pineapple Ridge north of Jensen.

The top of Pineapple Ridge and the west bank of Sewall's Point are above 10 feet.

Martin County Civil Defense Director Briar Tredray said that in the event of a hurricane warning, meaning a storm is imminent within the next 12 to 24 hours, residents who live on land from 1-10 feet should seek another location to weather the storm.

"Because nature is undeterminable, it's best to be on the safe side," he said. "In the last 12 hours a storm can pick up speed and strength. If we could get those people out we would have almost no problem whatsoever. We would have accomplished 90 per cent of our job."

If your home is built to withstand strong winds, is above the 10 feet mark, it should be safe to stay in.

It must be taken into consideration that even though a home may be located on high ground and safe from high water or wind, it still may not be safe to stay. It could be that access roads to the home are low and might be washed away making access after the storm impossible for daily transportation or emergency vehicles. If such is the case, evacuation should be considered.

If residents live in a boat, mobile home, or perhaps an old and unreliable home, they should consider relocating during the storm.

If a person does decide to stay at home he must make some basic precautions. Canned foods should be stockpiled and other types of food, particularly those which do not require refrigeration.

A first aid kit should be adequate.

Bathtubs should be sterilized along with other water containers so they can be used in case the water system fails or becomes contaminated. Clean containers with chlorine to disinfect them, and always boil stored water before drinking it.

Stock up your home with batteries, candles and whatever other types of emergency lighting equipment you may want to use. Check out or purchase a battery operated radio.

Refrigerators and freezers should be put on the coldest settings and should then be opened only when necessary. If electric service is shut off, a freezer could keep foods frozen for 48 hours, maximum. Check into the possibility of purchasing dry ice.

The gas tank of your car should be filled in advance of the storm. Do not wait until the last minute to get gas because gas stations are bound to be crowded and they may not be able to stock enough to serve everyone at the last minute.

Particularly check your outside yard. Everything that is loose, or could possibly become loose, should be stored away in a garage or tied down. Swimming pools should be half emptied and TV antennas should be taken down and lashed to a tree or to some solid object.

Board over and tape windows which are not protected by awnings. Keep tools handy for repairs during the storm.

Changes in barometric pressure could cause windows to blow out from the inside. It is advised that a window be kept partially opened on the downwind side of the house, and internal doors be kept open. When winds change during the storm, keep track and close the opened window and open a second one on the opposite side of the house.

If you happen to be directly hit by a hurricane, the "eye" will pass over you. If the eye passes, it will seem as if the storm has ended. Really, it is only half over. Do not go outside for a prolonged period of time because the wind and rain will resume, probably within a half hour.

There are a number of guidelines to follow for those who plan to go to a shelter.

Shelters will be announced during a hurricane watch and are usually opened during the warning period.

Personal items, including pillows, blankets and other supplies should be taken, along with food for the first meal in the shelter.

Parents of babies should bring baby food, formulas, diapers and other necessary equipment.

Once inside a shelter, no one will be permitted to leave until the storm passes unless an emergency arises.

Make arrangements to store pets at kennels or friends' houses, because no pets will be allowed in a shelter. Alcoholic beverages are not permitted.

Women in the last stages of pregnancy or sick persons should have arrangements made to go to a hospital or a shelter, depending on the advice of a physician.

Store water in a sterilized bathtub before leaving the home in case it is needed after the storm.

If you choose to leave the area, make the same precautions at home as if you were going to a shelter, but remember to go to a safe area to stay. Select a good motel away from low areas or stay with friends who live in a safe location.

After the storm has passed, when going outside or returning home, be very careful to avoid all fallen or overhanging wires. Wild animals, especially snakes, can be hiding in any wreckage because they are usually driven from their homes during the storm.

Don't go joyriding in your car, and don't use your phone unless you really have to.

Report to the proper authorities all hazardous conditions such as downed electric wires, broken water mains and overturned bottled gas tanks.

For those who want to make a hurricane damage insurance claim, don't touch anything until your insurance man arrives to see the original damage.

Hurricane season runs from June through November, with a peak in September, but there have been rare occurrences before June and after November. At maturity, a hurricane may be 10 miles high, with a great spiral several hundred miles in diameter and winds at or well above the 74-mile-per-hour threshold of hurricane force. But the most extreme devastation of the hurricane is usually confined to a core area 50 miles or less in diameter, with squalls extending outward up to 580 miles.

Although hurricane tracks follow generally curving paths, they are as individual as the storms themselves. See what they have meant to Florida over the past 75 years.

The earliest hurricane of record in Florida struck what is now the Pensacola area on September 19, 1559. The ensuing years have brought a barrage of the big storms, as shown here. The upper map contains the tracks of important Florida hurricanes from 1900 through 1975. The state map describes where Florida hurricanes between 1885 and 1975 came ashore, and their direction of movement. The tables shown summarize hurricane deaths and damage in Florida from 1926 through 1975, and where "major hurricanes"—selected for size, violence, and destructiveness—have been felt in Florida since 1900.

Use your telephone for emergencies

PORT ST. LUCIE—In the event of a hurricane, residents are asked to use their telephones for emergencies only.

If damage is widespread, do not jam the telephone system to report interruptions in individual electric, gas, water and telephone services. Utility companies will have standby crews available to carry out plans for complete restoration as quickly as possible.

Report individual trouble to utility companies only after services are returned to normal in your neighborhood.

Jammed switchboards may prevent emergency calls for police, firemen, doctors or ambulances.

Do report immediately to police or utility companies any hazardous conditions, such as downed live electric wires, broken water mains and overturned bottled gas tanks.

Whether it be for fire-rescue, police or ambulance, the number to dial in St. Lucie County is 911.

What to do with your pet

Since hurricane shelters operated by the American Red Cross will not permit animals in the shelters during a disaster, many may wonder what they can do with a pet when evacuation is planned during a hurricane.

Residents in the Martin County area are in their busiest time of year during the summer season, mostly because many owners leave pets in kennels while on vacation.

If you have made an advance reservation with your favorite kennel and they have the room, you will having nothing to worry about, except it isn't easy to plan in advance for a hurricane.

Some kennels have insurance policies which do not cover dogs brought in during disasters.

So, what can you do?

One answer is to find a motel inland, away from the path of the storm, which allows guests to have pets. That way you would be able to evacuate your family and pet and weather the storm together.

If you have a pet, must evacuate, but don't want to spend the money for a motel room, you can always make plans to leave the pet with a friend in another town or in some home where it is considered safe to be during a hurricane.

Some may even plan to leave the pet alone at home and take the chance it might survive the storm. If this is done, make sure there is adequate food and water for the pet and that the home is properly prepared for the storm.

Joan Henry, a noted animal keeping expert in Martin County, said that keeping a pet at home could have some bad effects.

"If you have a high-strung animal you may come back to find your home a complete disaster," she said. "The pet may be subject to stress, heat and lack of ventilation."

Secure your mobile home

It is a well-known fact that, because they are light, portable units, mobile homes are particularly vulnerable to high winds created by tornadoes and hurricanes.

Florida, among many other states, has a law requiring that mobile homes be tied down, and Martin County building codes follow the state law.

According to Martin County Building Director Harold Glass, the code requires that trailer tie-downs be secured to sand anchors in the ground beneath the trailer.

"But in a bad storm, I'd say it would be a good idea to get out of them," Glass said. "Even though they might be tied down."

The Civil Defense Preparedness Agency of the United States Department of Defense offers the following advice for those who receive notice of a hurricane warning:

Tie down or remove all awnings, cabanas and other outdoor fixtures.

Pick up and secure all breakables inside the trailer.

Tape all windows.

Disconnect electrical, sewer and water lines.

Open faucets so water will drain out. Leave the faucets open.

We've just gone through the most expensive disaster period in our history. And having spent well over 35 million dollars in disaster relief, the Red Cross is now the one who needs help. You can supply some of it by either contributing to your local Red Cross Chapter Emergency Disaster Fund Drive or sending money directly to our headquarters in Washington. 1977 hurricane season begins

As the hurricane season begins, U.S. weather forecasters have a stark warning for those living in some hurricane-vulnerable coastal areas.

Population increases in certain areas have outgrown the ability of hurricane forecasters to provide adequate warning early enough to let all those in danger reach safety by automobile over existing escape routes.

"Our goal traditionally has been to provide 12 daylight hours of warning time of an approaching hurricane, or, enough time for people to drive to places of safety from an advancing storm surge, the real killer in hurricanes," Dr. Neil Frank, director of the National Hurricane Center in Miami, said.

"As things stand now, there are certain crowded coastal areas where there is doubt we can do this, in spite of technical advances in satellite coverage, aerial reconnaissance, computerized forecasts, and near-shore radar coverage."

While recognizing the annual hurricane warning may sound repetitive and to some, unnecessarily ominous, Frank said he considers it a message that is becoming increasingly urgent with each passing year.

THE SEASON

Hurricane season officially began June 1, and lasts through November. Peak months of occurrence are the giant, inward-coiling whirlwinds are August, September and October. Each year, the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA), parent agency of the National Weather Service and part of the Department of Commerce, warns coastal populations from Texas to Maine well before the months of maximum activity so public safety officials in vulnerable areas can begin making plans to deal with the worst, should it occur.

And each year, hurricane forecasters remind coastal residents that it was a hurricane-driven storm surge that produced the greatest loss of life from a natural disaster ever recorded in the United States - the catastrophic 15-foot rise of wind-driven water that engulfed Galveston Island, Texas, in 1900, drowning 6,000 persons.

In that disaster, hurricane forecaster Isaac Cline had tried in vain to persuade residents to leave, riding up and down the shore in a horse-drawn buggy, pleading with the people to evacuate inland. Instead, many stayed to watch the awesome spectacle of huge waves crashing on shore, not believing the seas could overwhelm them.

COMPLACENCE

As for the present, Hurricane Center Director Frank explains: "What has happened is that the population along the Gulf and Atlantic coasts has increased by more than 40 percent during the past decade and a half ... probably considerably more than that, if exact figures were available. We know that 80 percent of those people, 28 million out of more than 37 million, have never experienced a major hurricane.

"Hurricane Belle, which struck Long Island and New England last August, was typical of the kind of storm that worries us most. It lost strength just before making landfall, dropping from a disaster potential of 3 down to 1, on our scale of 1 to 5. Thus we fear now that many of the residents who experienced that storm will ignore our warnings next time, thinking they understand hurricanes, and that our warnings are not to be taken seriously."

Frank has a ready answer to such people. He compares the hurricane warning program to automobile insurance, saying, "Think of our hurricane warnings the same way you think of paying automobile insurance premiums. You pay your premiums year after year, seldom expecting to get any money back, because you know there may be that one instance when your insurance policy will repay all of your premiums many times over, and you don't want to risk being wiped out by a costly damage suit.

"It's the same way with our hurricane warnings. We can't tell you precisely in advance just how bad or how widespread the destructive power of a given hurricane will be, so we necessarily do a certain amount of overwarning.

"But, by heeding our warnings each time, you may reap the biggest payoff of all - your life, and the lives of your family. And all it costs you is a little inconvenience."

Frank lists several hurricane vulnerable areas or communities of special concern because they have heavily concentrated populations during the hurricane season, and limited escape routes. Among them are the Florida Keys and the Tampa Bay area.

PLAN REFUGE

"And," says Dr. Frank, "residents should have a plan on what to do and where to go if it becomes apparent during a hurricane warning that evacuation by automobile, the traditional means, might not be the best thing. In some instances, seeking refuge in a nearby condominium might be the answer; in other places, perhaps a school or auditorium. Civil preparedness and other public safety officials can offer guidance."

Forecasters point out that hurricanes are notoriously erratic in their behavior and frequency, and that there is no way of knowing whether a coming season will produce more or fewer hurricanes than in years past, or which areas will be most affected. Nevertheless, there are a few guidelines. Among them:

10 of 100

Out of about 100 hurricane "seedlings" that form in the Atlantic, Caribbean and Gulf of Mexico each year, about 10 grow to become named tropical storms, with winds of 39 to 73 miles per hour, or hurricanes, with winds of 74 miles per hour or more.

Over the decades, on an average, two named storms affect the U.S. coastline annually, although the totals vary greatly from one year to the next.

The average annual death toll from hurricanes and tropical storms since 1900 has been about 190, including the 6,000 fatalities at Galveston in 1900. Excluding the Galveston storm, the toll has averaged about 114. Damage has been as high as $2.1 billion in 1972, when rains of Tropical Storm Agnes caused record flooding in northeastern U.S.

Damaging winds from a hurricane may extend 25 to 100 miles or so on either side of the eye, a fact frequently overlooked by those who assume the central point of landfall is the only point of concern. Because of this, warnings are usually issued for about 300 miles of coastal area, and also because a hurricane may veer one way or another in the last few miles before striking the coast.

About 9 out of 10 hurricane deaths are drownings in the storm surge, rather than wind-caused fatalities. Thus in some instances, people have evacuated many miles inland, fearing the wind, when a few hundred yards to a high elevation would have been sufficient.

SATELLITE AID

This year, as last, the hurricane detection and tracking network will include an NOAA geostationary satellite observing hurricanes forming in the Atlantic, the Caribbean and the Gulf of Mexico, and a similar spacecraft poised over the Pacific, to watch for hurricanes and typhoons there. These provide images of almost the entire disk of the globe every 30 minutes, day and night, and are operated by NOAA's National Environmental Satellite Service. In addition, polar-orbiting NOAA satellites provide greater detailed images of a given location twice a day.

Aircraft reconnaissance will be provided by about a dozen WC-130 Hercules planes operating from Keesler Air Force Base, near Biloxi, Miss. About 75 percent of the missions will be flown by Air Force reservists, the remainder by active-duty crews. An NOAA hurricane research aircraft also will be in operation.

A picket line of coastal radars will pick up hurricanes when they approach within 250 miles (400 kilometers) of the coast.

When a hurricane is within striking distance, a computerized prediction of the height of the storm surge will be made, using numerical models developed by Dr. Chester Jelesnianski of the Weather Service's Techniques Development Laboratory.

From this type of prediction, local public safety officials will be able to use storm-evacuation maps prepared by NOAA's National Ocean Survey to advise residents and vacationers which routes are likely to remain safe for evacuation.

NOAA officials advise those who plan to be in a hurricane area this summer and autumn to be familiar with hurricane safety rules.

ROOF AND WINDOWS GONE--High winds tore the roof off this building during the 1949 hurricane.

TREES, WIRES DOWN--Autos drove through flooded streets, dodging fallen trees and down electrical wires following the 1949 hurricane that struck the area.

FLAGLER STREET DAMAGE--Debris filled the streets of Stuart when the famed hurricane of 1949 struck.

1977 JUL

BOMBS BURST IN MID-AIR--For those witnessing the annual fireworks by at the Jensen Beach Causeway it was a loud and firy evening under one of the best displays ever. Here a time-elapse photograph shows some ground displays and a skyrocket going off above the Frank Wacha Bridge.

Causeway was packed for fireworks

JENSEN BEACH--If previous fireworks shows on the Jensen Beach Causeway were a success, the 1977 Independence Day version was a super-success as thousands watched in awe.

It was the first time that Bill Yurillo didn't have a part in the production. The popular founder and chairman of the fireworks team died just before the bicentennial display last year.

But, Yurillo was there, both in the spirit of the team and in a surprise portrait in fireworks.

"It was something," said Jon Chicky, one of the fireworks team captains. "We were able to do it, and all of us thought it was a great show."

The people cheered, and those in autos that filled the causeway, and those in the hundreds of boats on both sides of the causeway, blew horns in appreciation of each display.

It was a perfect night for the fireworks show, with a slight breeze drifting the smoke from the ground displays north over the river.

As the lights died at the end of the show, the Indian River became a glittering sea of sparkling red and white lights as boaters began their trek north and south, returning to their marinas.

It was a day full of activity, beginning with the parade through Jensen Beach early in the morning. A sudden downpour at 9 a.m. dampened the crepe-paper decorations on autos and floats in the parade, but didn't dampen the spirits of the participants or the hundreds who lined the parade route.

The causeway filled early with cars, campers and tents as one of the largest crowds in history came for the celebration.

It was a family day, as picnickers brought out the grills and children played on swings and in the river, diving and jumping from the fishing pier and boat launching docks. The Samaritan Ambulance crew stood by to handle the usual cuts and scrapes that come from such activities.

The civic clubs were out in force, with the Lions handling organized foot races, the Optimists handling the watermelon-eating contest, the Chamber of Commerce holding the inner tube races, and the fire department in charge of the greased pole climb.

The VFW did double duty, with the color guard opening organized events with a flag raising, and Wendell Halverson's jazz band playing Dixieland music from a flat bed truck.

MINIATURE CAR--Tony and Jeana Felicione drew raves as they drove their miniature car, brightly decorated with flags, down the parade route of the Jensen Beach Independence Day celebration parade.

The 50-yard mothers' race was won by Geneva Zorawski, followed closely by Joan Smith. The Father' 100-yard dash was won by two Stuart dads, John McIntire first, Raymond Jones second.

RACE--No, it's not the Loch Ness Monster. It's an inner ace held Monday on the south side of the Jensen Beach way. Youths, their heads awash in the Indian River, paddled furiously to outdo each other in the competition. The event was one of the more popular attractions for competitors and spectators alike.

MUSIC MAESTRO--Wendell Halverson's VFW Dixieland band played for both the Monday morning parade, on a float, and for the festivities on the causeway during the day.

ELON MANIA–Among the activities at the Jensen Beach Causeway was a watermelon eating contest. Here Diane Duncan, a fourth grader from ach, is shown devouring a cold melon.

Ralph Hartman, president of the Martin County Historical Society presented the certificate plaque to Dick Campbell, editor, for The Mirror's "Vignettes of American History," a bicentennial special edition released last year.

Hartman, acting on behalf of Robert Miller, president of the Council of Trustees of Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge, said, "Dedicated to posterity, Vignettes of American History is tremendous in its factual portrayal of significant events in the history of the Indian River Area, Florida and the United States. This bicentennial edition is an asset to the heritage of the community, and a gift to future generations."

Campbell received the award, saying, "This belongs to the staff of The Mirror, but especially to the heart and artistry of Carl Engel, the artist who did so much in research and presentation of the fine drawings."

Vignettes was one of only 1,200 individuals, organizations and schools across the country to have received the award. The special edition recently won the Florida Press Association first place award for "Best Special Issue" in the FPA newspaper contest.

Many of Engel's drawings were mailed and placed on display for the historical society reception, including the color paintings that graced the cover and back page of the special issue.

The drawings will be sold by the museum, but most were readily reserved by the sponsors who placed them in the edition. They will be sold for $45 each, according to Janet Hutchinson, museum curator.

Supplementary Security Income, Railroad Retirement, Civil Service Retirement and Veterans Administration Compensation and Pension checks.

This is one step taken by the government that makes sense. It eliminates a lot of paperwork and it certainly reduces the concern that older people might have of losing their checks in thieves. This is not so much a worry here as it is in large cities, but apart from that, the convenience of having your check sent directly to your checking or savings account is a great thing.

The pamphlets will be passed out at the July meeting for members who may not be aware of this service.

Also to be offered at the next meeting are the name plates and tags which were ordered from headquarters. These devices are highly welcome to let the members learn each other's name. They consist of a plastic sleeve which can be pinned to shirt or dress, with a card bearing the wearer's name slipped into the sleeve. Such name tags are almost universal operational procedure in this age and age among all groups where people get together without knowing all, or even many, of their fellows. The two items will sell for 25 cents. Several members have asked for them in the past, and here they are here.

Bill Armer, travel chairman, reports that 34 persons have now signed up for the Jungle Queen trip, out of Ft. Lauderdale, August 17. A minimum of 42 is needed to make the project go, so if you've been thinking about it, please let Bill or Jim Kearney know about it at the July meeting.

Bill also said there have been a number of inquiries about the Bahamarama sea voyage in October, but no definite figures are yet available. Don't forget that, if you plan to take advantage of this sea-going experience, you must put in the month, July is the deadline for making your deposit with Ash Mr. Travel. The deposit if $70 per person for an outside cabin, $85 per person for an insider.

People in Port St. Lucie are now becoming aware of the fact that the bus of the Council on Aging, which makes two trips a week to our community, gives door-to-door service. As a result, according to Fred W., the bus usually has a full load of 12 when it rolls out of Port St. Lucie on its Monday morning or Thursday afternoon visits. Passengers are expected to contribute what they can toward payment of maintenance costs, which run about $150 a week. Most people, Fred said, give a dollar or two, "which is pretty cheap transportation, especially of the door-to-door kind."

This service is a vital one for the folks who do not have transportation, a public facility completely lacking otherwise in this area. Fred said he was discussing the bus situation with Sam Lawder, executive director of the Council on Aging, who told him contributions are still needed to raise the $7,500 needed to match a grant received by the Council to get new and larger buses.

Send your contributions to St. Lucie County Council on Aging, Arcade Building, Fort Pierce.

Condolences were sent by the chapter to Ethel Krall, one of our founding members, on the loss of her husband, Joe, which occurred last week.

Bowlings were early V.O. arrivals

One response to our inquiry as to date of arrival in V.O. was received. We had a nice letter from Lacy and Toad Bowling. They first bought a lot at Venture Out on Cadio Cay and then traded it two days later for lot 886 at Venture Out of St. Lucie in 1980. Toad thinks it was the second lot sold in V.O.

Venture Out

BY JACKIE PHILLIPS

The Bowlings are working very hard to get ready for their trip in August. They are going to Denmark, Norway, Sweden, Finland and Lappland.

Their daughter, Cindy, was to pick up their boat this past weekend and take it to Kentucky for the summer.

Una Belle Ravnet had a call from Lou Prew up in Highlands, N.C., where they were staying for a short time before starting on their summer tour.

+++

Lots of company in the park over the holiday weekend. The Koepka's had their daughter and granddaughter and grandson with them. I didn't get any reports of others but know Ruth and John Salash were expecting their children. The Shavers had their daughter and family.

+++

We had a call from Edith and Dick Painter from Glacier National Park. They are having a wonderful trip and will be starting home this week, expecting to arrive in about two weeks.

Had a letter from the Van Willigens. They had returned to Wisconsin from Colorado Springs by way of the Dakotas. They were in the Badlands and Mt. Rushmore and Sioux City Falls.

On Jean's birthday they were at Ethel and Chuck Koschkes'. Their friends Helen and Merle Steele of H.O. were there also. The Steeles are moving into a new mobile home at Tomahawk, Wisconsin, on the same lake as the Van Willigens. (All have been having wonderful duck fishing...36 blue gills one day and 18 the next day.

Also had a letter from Stanley Clark saying he and Barbara are fine and sending their regards to all their friends.

+++

Catherine and Hank Higgins are off on a trip and we will get the details of where they went on their return.

Fran and Dick Tener are visiting Dick's sister on Jekyl Island, Georgia, for a week. They will return in time for pot luck Wednesday, July 6.

All our best wishes to Charlie Bremberger for a quick recovery and return home from Martin Memorial Hospital, where he was taken Saturday, July 2.

The Venture Three Office was moved to the recreation area next to the south end of the parking area in front of the rec hall on July 1.

Happy birthday to Fran Tener, July 8, and Millie Capra on July 11. Millie is in California visiting her family at this time.

Sandpiper Bay Women's Golf

PORT ST. LUCIE—Mimi Lament carded a low net 67 to win top honors in the Sandpiper Bay Women's Golf Association tournament on June 28.

Jane Hoffman carded 68 for second, with Marjorie Simmons close behind with a 69 to take third place. Sylva Barnwell a 72 won fourth place.

Bunny Leybourne, Virginia Wood and Jane Radcliffe had 72's, and Mary Kuhn, Gretchen Dalton, Wilma Leary and Lorraine Swift, 73's.

And...more fish stories!

What would we do without our fish stories!

Doc Pruske and Gary Mills left West Palm Beach to go drift-fishing up to the St. Lucie Inlet, and Doc latched on to a swordfish which Gary finally subdued after an hour on an 80 lb test line. This one weighed 150 pounds - not as big as the one last week, but Doc opined that, with a good boat, a genial companion, a full room and a calm sea, who could ask for anything more!

Marvin Wininger also went fishing Saturday and Sunday, this time with Jack Smith, Glenn Brooks, Jerry Samples and Ronald Hammons, all of Frankfort, Kentucky, and Bennie Rector of Dundee, Florida, with Pete Peterson on his boat The Fish-hook, and they came in port with a fine catch.

Glenn got a 6 ft.-1 in sand shark that weighed 27 pounds, Jerry's kingfish was a beauty; Jack hauled in a bonita; and Bennie landed a barracuda ...and these were just the big ones.

Leon Lanagnan's sister Flora told me that on July 4 Leon's birthday, the surprise she's been keeping a secret from him will have arrived, and he can put in it to eat the festive cake and ice cream. I hope the gift gets here in good time, or the cat will be out of the bag.

Talked with Adrian Snyder on the telephone the other day. He, his daughter Eleanor and son-in-law Warren Barber went up to Albany to see his grandson Dick, his wife, and their three little boys, but when they got back to Albertson, it was into the hospital again for Adrian, just for a few days. He's home with the Barbers now, and getting along well.

Martha Duffy hadn't been to bingo lately, but when she came last Tuesday she not only won two games, she nabbed the jack pot also. Better come again, Martha, it was good to see you feeling so sprightly.

Two of our favorite people are still hospitalized: Olive Bruns in Montreal, and Chris Willoughby in Oshawa.

Nettie Keefer spent two weeks with her son Lee and his wife Sue, and lent a helping hand when they moved to their new home in Sasser, Georgia. Since returning, Nettie's had a visit from an old friend from her Washington, D.C., days: Ruth Mettler, and from her niece Yvonne Endy and her husband Sonny, who drove over from Orlando.

+++

Speaking of Orlando, Kate and Frank Crume were there for a few days and said it was just as hot there as it is here.

We have another birthday in July. Nettie Keefer's natal day is the 8th. Happy Birthday, Nettie.

+++

Jane Wininger had a letter from Marguerite Ritenour, telling her Herschel is in the North Hills Passavant Hospital in Pittsburgh, and she is still with her son in Evans City. Drop Marguerite a note at Maple Avenue, Evans City, Pennsylvania 16033. She'll be happy to hear from you.

+++

Don and Lea Wininger took Jean, Merrill and Deanetta Wininger to Cypress Gardens and Winter Haven in their motor home, and had a great time seeing the sights and picnicking along the way.

+++

Celia Barr Raynor and her "young man" George drove in Lake Park enjoy reading the Jensen Mirror, thus keeping up with the news around here, and wrote me that they have finally gotten settled in their honeymoon cottage and now it's time for picnics and boating on Lake Worth.

...let money may still be alive

...HINGTON, D.C.--Although ...money for the improvement of ...Lucie Inlet was cut from the ...Works Bill by the Senate ...ations Committee, there is still ...to get the funding.

According to Dick Nelson, aide to U.S. Congressman L.A. "Skip" Bafalis, the bill will now go into conference where it will be reconsidered.

"The bill now goes into conference where an equal number of senators and congressmen will work out their differences," Nelson said. "I cannot say, Congressman Bafalis will do all he can to convince them of the importance and legitimacy of the project. I hope it can be left in in the final version."

Nelson described the process as an "uphill battle", but said there is still a chance to obtain the $970,000 required for the work.

The project, which has been under consideration for some time, will be a permanent deepening of the inlet to make navigation safer than it now is.

Each year shoaling makes the waterway more hazardous while temporary measures have proved costly. A recent temporary dredging by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers cost $90,000.

The U.S. House of Representatives and the Senate are on July 4 recess and are expected to reconvene next week.

River Road under way

SEWALL'S POINT-Work is well underway on Sewall's Point's River Road as work crews haul away trees in preparation for paving.

St Lucie County is taking away many of the larger trees on the nearly 3,000-foot stretch and taking them to the county nursery where they will be used in landscaping projects there.

Dickerson, Inc., the paving company which has been awarded the construction bid, had cleared most of the land and will soon begin grading the soil.

"They have already cut a swath from the south end by White Fence Acres to Palm Row," Commissioner John Rossiter said. "They are deliberately avoiding trees which we have marked so the St Lucie County tree people can take them away. They're taking them up there and planting them and they've said not one of them is willing."

The River Road is a road planned by the fathers of the Town of Sewall's Point as an emergency route in case flooding blocks off the lower Sewall's Point Road on the east side of the peninsula. The River Road runs along the higher land on the west side. Much of the Road has been constructed in various subdivisions and the new construction which is at the southmost portion of the road, marks the first part which has been paid for by public money.

Many of the parcels have been deeded to the town but there are still a number of private portions which have not been acquired for road use.

The River Road is being paved with asphalt.

My Husband Thinks I'm a Financial Wizard.

He's Right!

My neighbor Joan told me about Community Federal's Key Account. How they got all the traveler's checks they needed for vacation without a service charge. But I found out I could get 10 more free financial services and interest, too. So, I opened a Key Account at Community Federal's Port Salerno office.

Jim says I'm a "financial wizard." Because these days, any time you can get a free service, it really helps the budget. The folks at Community not only help with free services, they pay me interest while I use them.

I really do better at Community Federal.

No, it wasn't a sea serpent

It is not uncommon to read of unusual sea serpents, and various types of unusual water activities, but neighbors were in doubt as to what they saw in Palm Lake the other day.

Palm Lake Park
BY ELENOR E. FALK, 287-2880

No, it wasn't a rider who had fallen from a dolphin, nor a water skier that had lost her balance. It was Millie Baker who had taken her dogs for their nightly walk, when suddenly one of the pooches decided to take a swim.

Millie objected, and she held onto the leash. The dog was insistent and, suddenly, we saw a dog swimming with Millie still hanging onto the leash. It was an unusual sight with the head of the dog out of the water swimming away with a smile, while Millie, also only her head out of the water, still hanging on, saying nasty words to the pooch and coasting along in the waters of the lake.

The emergency room at the local hospital located no serious injuries, but Millie has been in pain from bruises. We would say that is going to the dogs all the way.

KEY ENTRY–In its first appearance before many of the residents, the newly organized Port St. Lucie Band was a key entry in the July 4 parade as they marched along the Prima Vista Boulevard parade route.

nk goodness for our alert judges," Cox said in explaining the mixup.

"What had happened was that instead of parents registering their children's entries in advance at City Hall, they simply showed up the morning of the parade. At that point, all we could do was to quickly hand out numbers and before we could register names, the parade was underway," Cox said.

Aside from the "no name" winners, the events of the entire day went off without a hitch.

Hundreds lined Prima Vista Boulevard for the 10 a.m. parade which included more than thirty entries. The first appearance of the Port St. Lucie Band was excellent, judging from the applause the band members received along the parade route.

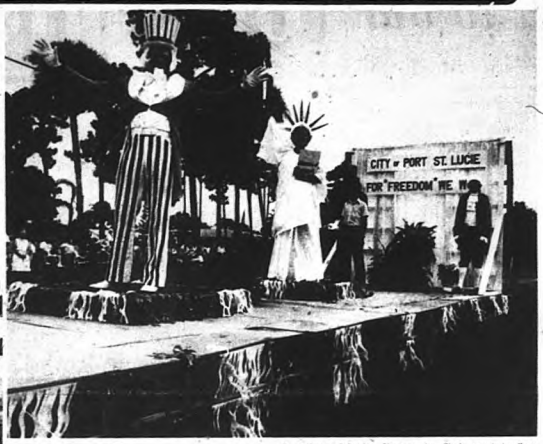
Mel Broom and his barbecue crew drew a good crowd at the Community Center during the afternoon hours as they cooked and served close to 300 chicken dinners.

Many residents brought blankets and lawn chairs to view the fireworks display which concluded the daylong activities in Port St. Lucie.

FLATBED OF CHAMPS–The Port St. Lucie Champion Little League team proudly took their place in the City's July 4 parade.

OR THE GRAND MARSHAL'S LADY–Mayor Bill y presented Mrs. Clement Bramley with a dozen red roses as she took her place in the July 4 parade alongside her husband, the Grand Marshal.

P PORT ST. LUCIE–The young ladies of Port St. ebrated the 201st birthday of the nation by entering their own float in the City's July 4 parade. Pictured on the float are Denise Cassell, Jennifer Bisch and Cheryl Merritt.



PATRIOTIC ENTRY–In keeping with the July 4 theme that won fifth grader Nicky Gallo a $25 bond donated by Councilman Schuyler Sharpe, the City's patriotic float featured Uncle Sam (Robert Jensen) and the Statute of Liberty (Mrs. Bill McChesney).

LITTLE HOUSE ON THE PRAIRIE–GDC's parade float provided the City with a new category for the young ladies of the community. Little girls 4 to 10 were eligible to compete for cash prizes when they entered the parade wearing long dresses similar to those worn by their counterparts in the television series of the same name.

PEANUT ANYONE?–What more appropriate entry could the South County Democratic Club have chosen as their July 4 parade entry than a huge peanut?

OUND TRACK–The music from the sound track of the Beach-produced surfing film "Ah-OOOO" has been d on an album and the record was released this week.

The record is a portion of the musical score of the movie, which was filmed mostly in Hawaii by Warner and Nancy Wacha. Shown abpve are musician and song writer Frank Clark, Nancy Wacha, Warner Wacha, and their dog Blossom.

'Ah-ooo' sound track becomes recording

BY ROBBIE BEDELL

JENSEN BEACH–Two young filmmakers who live in Jensen Beach have made a recording of the soundtrack of their first feature surfing film.

Titled "Ah-OOO", the film has been two and a half years in the making and is expected to be finished next week with its first showing to be in the northeast.

The recording is a soundtrack of the musical score, most of which was written by Jensen Beach residents.

The film is being made by Warner and Nancy Wacha, and the music was written by Wacha, Frank Clark and Charles Porter.

"It's the first time most of us had ever worked in a recording studio," Wacha said. "It took a few sessions to loosen up and to learn what we were doing. It's different from film work because you can have immediate feedback with the recording tape. With film you have to wait a week before you can see what you've got."

Clark said that the recording was made in a number of multi-track recording sessions so each musician was able to play or sing more than one part to each song.

"The studio we used was in Fort Lauderdale," Clark said.

"The film should be completely finished next week," Wacha said. "But it will not be shown in this area until August. We will be traveling the east coast, promoting the film and selling recordings, T-shirts and surfboards under the Ah-OOO name."

Most of the film was made in Hawaii. The Wachas made two trips there, spending a year each trip filming the great surfers of the world riding the big waves on a number of the Hawaiian Islands.

"We made the two trips to Hawaii and we made the soundtrack in between trips," Wacha said.

The recording has 11 songs which are a portion of the original soundtrack. The vocalists are Charles Porter, Frank Wacha, George Lenehan, Warner Wacha, Frank Clark, Diana Crawford and Ted Pacer.

Some of the music was played by the now defunct band Casa Daga, of which Porter was a member.

The country and western band, The Flying Aces, also has some music on the album.

Other local names playing music are Ike Rosenthal, Fred Rothberg, Cliff Bucksh, Michael Yanosick, Ed Maina, Martine Stuckey, Bob Girsha, Donald Armstrong, Peter Barrus, Kurt Uhlig, Mickey McGann and Carlos Ruiz.

The record is labelled "A Celebration of the Excitement of Modern Day Surfing.... Enter this World of Rushing Sensation, Emerge Refreshed and Exhilarate."

rding to Eric Nucie of the Fort Office of the State of Florida Department of Environmental Regulation (DER), the treatment system no longer performs the job it was required to do.

State law dictates that such treatment systems must filter out at least 90 per cent of the waste particles which are put into them. Nucie said that biological and chemical tests performed on July 1, 1976, and again on June 7, 1977, showed that the wastewater was treated way under the 90 per cent mark.

"The problem involves who is responsible for the treatment plant," Nucie said. "And I think it's a question of legality as to who is responsible. A letter of notice was sent to Mr. Tilton and I understand it has been forwarded to Mr. (Ronald) Dittrich, the owner of the Wash Quik laundry."

Ransom Tilton said the building which the laundry is housed in is owned by W.B. Tilton and leased by the neighboring L'il General Store. The laundry building is, in turn, sublet by Dittrich. Tilton said the original lease of the building cites that the responsibility of the treatment system is in the hands of the lessee, which should be the L'il General Store. However, L'il General authorities were not available for comment and Dittrich is away on vacation.

"I was hoping for a fast solution," Nucie said. "The letter of notice was the first step. The next step is to send a warning notice and, if no attention is paid to that, a survey will be sent to Tallahassee and our office there will make a decision on the case. They could be more harsh. They could fine whoever is responsible up to $10,000 per day until it is cleaned up."

DOT envokes ire

JENSEN BEACH–The Board of Directors of the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce, in a running battle with the Florida Department of Transportation (DOT), has voted to set up a committee to deal with a mounting number of DOT refusals.

Chamber directors learned last night that the DOT has refused to hang a stop light at the intersection of U.S. 1 and the Jensen Beach Cutoff Road (SR 707-A) and that it is planning only on putting up a blinking traffic light at the west end of the Jensen Beach Causeway.

The two plans offered by the DOT are the second and third DOT actions the Chamber has disapproved of in recent weeks.

The first incident was the refusal of the DOT to erect a "Jensen Beach" sign at the Port St. Lucie Interchange of the Florida Turnpike.

In a long line of mail communications with the DOT, the Chamber, several weeks ago, voted to contact Gov. Reubin Askew and ask for help to get the sign. The Chamber directors expressed discontent over the fact that Gov. Askew forwarded the letter to the State Secretary of Transportation, Tom Webb, Jr. Webb responded in a letter giving the Chamber more reasons why the sign cannot be erected.

Webb cited a "potential danger to the motorist who can read and comprehend only a certain number of visual messages at any given time."

"I want to know if this Chamber is going to live up to its ability to act," Chamber Director Al Epstein said. "We can write letters until we're blue in the face but if we meet with them man to man, they have to give us some answers."

Epstein also said that the Chamber will have to fight the DOT in getting a stop light at U.S. 1.

"Unless we stand up to the problem, we will not have a stop light at U.S. 1," he said. "We will have to accept their inadequacies."

Chamber Director Jon Chicky spoke up and said the Chamber should contact the Florida Turnpike Authority, rather than the DOT.

The directors decided to form a three-man committee of Attorney Bill Selmi, Epstein and L.D. Kirkpatrick.

They agreed to put the issue on the agenda for next month's meeting and the committee report will taken into consideration at that time.

Where did $1100 come from

JENSEN BEACH–The Board of Directors of the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce had a difficult time this Fourth of July trying to keep up with donations for the fireworks fund.

Chamber Director Al Epstein expressed dissatisfaction with the directors involved in the fireworks fund for not divulging the fact that there was an $1100 "anonymous" gift for the fireworks fund this year.

"I can't understand why I, as a member of the board of directors, was not advised of this donation," Epstein said. "I was told that there was a man walking around looking for donations saying that we didn't have any money."

Chamber Director Art Hansen said he only found out the real story of the donation after the Fourth of July.

Hansen said that the $1100 was given to the chamber as an anonymous gift that "no one was supposed to know about."

"I didn't know about it myself until I got a call about it one night," Hansen said. "I got a call from a man named Hal Irons who wondered why there was nothing said about the donation."

Hansen said Irons sent the check to the Jensen Beach Fire Department in memory of Bill Yurillo. Irons said he was a close friend of Yurillo. Yurillo, who used to build and organize the fireworks each year, died a little more than a year ago.

Hansen said that the money was first put into the fireworks fund and then transferred over to the Martin County Commission.

The check was then given to the Chamber of Commerce, Hansen said, by Commissioner Frank Wacha, who said the money came from the "Martin County Blood Bank."

As it turned out, Hansen got in touch with Irons and the money was from a group named the Mobile Home Blood Bank Association, of which Irons is the east coast representative.

Hansen said that each year the group raises money for a worthwhile cause and donates money to it. This year Irons was in charge of the granting of the money and decided to give the money to the fireworks fund in Yurillo's memory.

"There definitely was a mixup," Chamber Director Jon Chicky said. "Frank (Wacha) did say it was the Martin County Blood Bank and I even wrote them a letter thanking them for it."

Chamber Secretary Helen Richardson said that she sent a letter of thanks to the Mobile Home Blood Bank Association for the donation.

"I don't think that this is any way to run an organization," Epstein said. "There should not be money given by anyone and the board of directors not aware of that donation."

Fire Department starts associate youth group

JENSEN BEACH–The Jensen Beach Volunteer Fire Department will be offering associate memberships for youths aged 13-17 to participate in fire department functions.

According to Chief Joe Luciano, the young members will take part in drills, learn the use of fire equipment, clean and polish trucks, operate radio equipment, and help around trucks during fires.

"They will do everything a fireman does," Chief Luciano said. "Except they won't go into a fire and they won't drive the trucks."

According to Fireman Mike Quinn, chairman of the associate committee, the department at first will be seeking 10 members for the group.

"They will be able to elect their own officers and have their own meetings once a month just like we do," Quinn said.

Those interested in joining can call the fire department at 334-2220, or go down to the fire house on Palmetto in Jensen Beach.

NEW ARCH–Damaged after a car accident last year, the historic old arch in Jensen Beach will soon be restored to its original condition.

Jenson Arch to be repaired

JENSEN BEACH–After more than a year and a half of delays, the historic arch on S.R. 707 in Jensen Beach will be rebuilt.

"The insurance company is going to repair the damage," County Commissioner Frank Wacha said, "and as I understand it, they are dealing with a contractor now."

According to County Attorney Jack Carmody, results of an investigation of the car accident which damaged the arch and improper bids for repairs delayed the insurance company in finalizing the claim.

The arch was damaged last November when a car driven by Ethel H. Walker of Jensen Beach struck the east column resulting in her death.

The historic columns were erected in 1924 and paid for jointly by St. Lucie County and the City of Jensen Beach. This area was at that time part of St. Lucie County, and Jensen, at that time, was unincorporated.

The original sign going across the road was made of cypress with bronze trim and lettering, but the bronze was stolen during the early part of World War II.

The old sign read "Welcome to Jensen Beach" on the entrance side and "Gateway to the Gulf" on the exit side.

The sign has been replaced many times over the years by local businessmen and the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce.

According to Carmody, the sign, made of interlocking tile, will be rebuilt to its original specifications.

Construction will begin within 30 days.

Senators meet public Thursday

STUART–The three senators representing Martin County will meet with the county's citizens on Thursday, July 14, at 3:30 p.m. in the Martin County Administration-Commission Conference Room. Senators Phil Lewis, Harry Johnston and Don Childers are making one of their periodic visits to this area to talk with local citizens and to hear complaints they may have and ideas they may present on changing existing law.

"We are making ourselves available and welcome hearing from anyone who wants to visit with us," Senator Lewis said.

Senator Johnston commented, "I hope our constituents will take advantage of our visit to let us know of any problems they might have with their state government."

Senator Childers added, "These regular visits have been helpful to us in the past."

pening vote fraud

NGRESSMAN SKIP BAFALIS
INGTON, D.C.–Take two false ions, give them White House ment and you end up with bad on.

that's what the House of ntatives will do sometime this when it takes up the so-called l Voter Registration bill.

ill is designed to force states to ividuals to register as voters on day, and not beforehand as is case in all but a handful of t, the bill would require that low individuals to register to deral elections on the same day he same place that they would more ridiculous, the bill, as by the White House and as approved by the House Administration Committee, makes no requirement for positive identification of election day registrants.

Now, amendments will be offered from the floor to correct some of these more obvious errors in judgment. There will be one amendment to mandate that some identification be required from those seeking election day registration.

And there will be an amendment to allow states and local election supervisors to set up central registration offices on election day – i.e. one central site in lieu of requiring registration desks at every precinct.

There will even be an amendment offered to make compliance with this universal registration program optional for the 1978 elections, then mandatory in 1980.

These amendments all have the backing of the President and the House leadership and no doubt will carry.

However, they still won't make the bill anything except a bad bill about to become a bad law.

It's a bad bill because it's based on two false assumptions – first, that voter participation is down drastically and second, that it is registration laws that create barriers to voter participation.

Supporters of the bill point out that recent elections have seen turnouts far below those registered in the 1960s. However, that's not because the turnout now is so low; it's because the turnouts in the 1960s were significantly higher than the average for the 20th Century.

The average turnout of voting-age Americans for the 19 presidential elections since the turn of the century has been 57.7 per cent. The average in 1972 and 1976 was about 55 per cent.

Part of the reason for the slight decrease is the change in the electorate – the tremendous increase in the number of potential young voters, both because of the post-war baby boom and the 18-year-old vote. Young Americans just don't participate as much as older citizens.

In the 1976 election, for example, only 34 per cent of those 18 to 21 bothered to vote, while 64 per cent of those 45 to 65 did.

So, it's just not true that voting-age Americans are staying from the polls more now than they did before. If anything, it's just about the same.

This leads to the second question, why don't more Americans vote? What's required to bring those who don't participate to the polls?

One public opinion poll, taken by Hart Research Associates, Inc., showed that 43 per cent of those not voting don't feel they have a candidate worth voting for, while another 14 per cent indicated nothing would get them to the polls.

So universal voter registration isn't going to increase participation in our democracy. It's just going to pave the way for massive fraud.

Fire truck burns in Port St. Lucie

BY BOB FRYER

PORT ST. LUCIE--Tuesday was an unlucky day for truck number 13 of the Fort Pierce-St. Lucie County Fire Department.

The 500-gallon tanker truck, based at county station five on Port St. Lucie Boulevard, got stuck in a brush fire just across from the 15th hole of the Wilderness Golf Course Tuesday afternoon and was destroyed by fire. No one was injured.

One person on the scene said the truck stalled out. He said the men in the cab of the truck had to abandon it when the flames began licking the sides of the bright red tanker. However, J.E. Elizer, captain of the department's fire prevention bureau, said the circumstances surrounding the loss of the truck had not been confirmed yet. "I just don't know exactly how it happened," he noted.

Elizer said the fire was reported at 2:49 p.m. Tuesday, and that four trucks, including one from the central station in Fort Pierce, responded to the call. Since station five on Port St. Lucie Boulevard is about half a mile from the fire, the drivers of that truck were probably first on the scene. Elizer did not have an identification of the men in the truck as of press time.

The fire attracted a crowd of spectators along Cambridge Road, including Port St. Lucie Mayor Bill McChesney, Councilwoman Lolita Kernohan, and City Manager Elmer Cox. The blaze, which Elizer estimated to cover eight acres, was contained within an hour and a half. A bulldozer from the state Forestry Service and a front-end-loader and grader from General Development Corporation were used to battle the blaze.

There was no apparent damage to the golf course or to any structures. The cause of the fire had not been determined as of Tuesday evening, and Elizer said he had no estimate of the value of truck number 13.

Mayor Mike Reeb noted that, ...to a news report, "I am and ...have been, in favor of a new city

...Tuesday's meeting, McChesney ...ended that council members ...$102,000 police start-up budget ...nd the $100,000 city hall ...ment budget item. The other ...members agreed.

...Kernohan Lolita Kernohan made ...on in favor of starting up a city ...partment "within the next ... fiscal year." She originally ...wanted the police department ...within six months, but was advised it could not be started that quickly.

Mayor McChesney said ...e did not want to tie down a date for starting the police force because he felt "the police department and the city hall ought to go hand in glove, together. We will need the city hall to house the police department and I don't want to rush the city hall."

Councilwoman Kernohan said the policemen would be in their cars most of time and that they could work without having a city hall, if necessary.

Vice Mayor Reeb said he favored a city hall and the police department but said priority should go to the police department.

Currently, the city contracts with the St. Lucie County Sheriff's Department for extra police protection. Under provisions of the contract some deputies are stationed in the city and have the authority to enforce city ordinances as well as county and state laws.

City officials hope to cancel the contract with the Sheriff's Department after the upcoming (1977-78) fiscal year. Cox says that during the latter part of the upcoming fiscal year the city should hire a police chief and secretary.

"It will take the chief some time to familiarize himself with the city, then he can begin recruiting a force (there will probably be a nine man force the first year) and get the department going. But there should be some overlap, where we have the contract still in effect and our department starting up," he said.

In other action, commissioners decided there was no conflict of interest or violation of the city charter by having Vice Mayor Reeb sit as chairman of the Port St. Lucie Disaster Preparedness Committee

The city charter states that no elected official is allowed to "serve as a member of any committee."

Reeb said he pushed for that provision in the charter when he was on a charter revision committee, but, he said, what the revision committee had in mind was to prohibit council members from serving on committees that are advisory to the city council. He offered to resign from the disaster preparedness committee if there is any question at all about the propriety of me serving on it."

Other council members commended Reeb for his work as chairman of the Disaster committee and City Attorney Spencer Gilbert said Reeb was not in violation of the city charter because the disaster committee reports to civil defense authorities and "is in no way advisory to the city council."

City Manager Cox pointed out that Governor Reubin Askew has urged city officials to participate on such committees.

In other business, Cox noted that there will be a joint meeting of the city council and St. Lucie County commissioners on Monday, July 18, at 2:30 p.m. in Room 103 of the county courthouse. The meeting will be to discuss a request by city officials for the county to budget $40,000 for Sportsman's Park. County officials have indicated they might budget only $10,000 for the park.

Finally, Cox reported that the city has received a class seven fire rating by Insurance Services Office of Jacksonville. Previously, the rating had been class nine.

Lucie hosts Florida PGA Open

BY BOB FRYER

PORT ST. LUCIE--The 36th Annual Florida PGA-L&M Open got underway Tuesday with a record 273 pros and amateurs competing for prestige and cash prizes at Sandpiper Bay's Saints and Sinners courses.

For the pros, the state open will be the richest ever, with more than $35,000 in cash awards. The top pro is expected to collect more than $4,000 this year. Also, three cars are offered as prizes for pros scoring a hole-in-one on designated par-three holes. The amateurs are eligible for the tournament trophy and special prizes, but the amount of merchandise they can win will be limited to preserve their amateur status.

Among the pros will be veteran Mike Souchak, former Open winners Charlie Owens and Lee Wylie, and defending champion Jim King. Also included are Ernie Boros, brother of Julius Boros, and Jay Boros, son of Julius. Jesus Rodrigues, brother of Chi Chi Rodrigues, is also competing.

Local pros entered include Steve Cunningham, Bob Erickson of Miles Grant Country Club, Cliff Settergen of the Port Pierce Holiday Country Club, Jacky Watson of the Stuart Holiday Country Club, and Zenon Rawley of Jensen Beach and Pompano Beach.

In the amateur ranks are Lee and Laurie Rinker, Rich Cromwell, Dale Anderson and Jay Pyle, all local golfers.

The contestants will play each of the golf courses twice, and while both courses are rated as par 72, the Sinners course is considered to be much tougher than the Saints.

The first round began Tuesday with foursomes teeing off at 7:30 a.m. Unless one of the daily rounds is rained out, the tournament is expected to end Thursday. Friday and Saturday are set aside for make-up days if any rounds are rained out.

There will be no cut and there is no separate division for amateurs, as both pros and amateurs are eligible to win the Open title.

Spectators are invited to watch the play, and no admission will be charged.

Sponsors of the tournament are the Liggett Group formerly known as Liggett and Myers Tobacco Company, the Florida section of the PGA, and Sandpiper Bay. Chuck Johnson is the host professional.

The Florida section of the PGA is billed as the biggest and most important of all 39 sections, and former winners of the state open include Gardner Dickinson, Bob Murphy, Ted Kroll, Willie Turnesa, Gary Koch, Eddie Pearce, and seven-time-winner Pete Cooper.

To warm things up, a Pro-Am tournament was held on the Sinners course Monday with a best two ball per foursome format. Winners of the tournament were professional John Peterson with amateur teammates J. Adkins, D. Masi and E. Baker. Peterson shot a 74 and the team score was 116.

In second, with a team score of 121 were professional Doug Pagan and amateurs R. Wetland, H. Saunders and F. Roper.

Third place went to pro Rid Carter and amateurs G. Lindsey, B. Delange and M. Smith.

Parade winners

PORT ST. LUCIE--The "no name" winners in the Port St. Lucie Fourth of July Parade have been identified.

City officials were swamped with last minute entries in the parade, so they gave each of the children entering the parade a number. A panel of five judges reviewed the parade and picked out the three children they felt wore the best costumes. They made their selections based on the numbers assigned. Right after the parade the winners were given cash prizes.

But, alas! The children dispersed so quickly that the judges did not have time to get their names.

The first place winner was a boy who wore a cowboy suit and rode a bicycle which had a horse's face on each side and a braided rope for a tail. But the boy's identity remained a mystery until Mrs. Beth Gleason called The Mirror this week to say it was Mike Bartz in the cowboy outfit.

Mrs. Gleason also supplied the names of the second and third place winners. Her son, John, won second place and Melissa Lyter was the third place winner.

Council votes for city planner

BY BOB FRYER

PORT ST. LUCIE--Port St. Lucie council members voted three to two Tuesday morning to reaffirm their intention to hire a city planner.

Voting for a motion to proceed with interviews to obtain a city planner were Mayor William McChesney, Vice Mayor Mike Reeb and Councilman Merle Anderson. Opposing the motion were Councilmembers Schuyler Sharpe and Lolita Kernohan, who both expressed preference for hiring a professional consultant instead of a city planner.

According to City Manager Elmer Cox, the primary duty of the city planner for the first two years will be to draft a comprehensive development plan, as required by state law. The deadline for all city and county governments to have a comprehensive development plan finished is July 1, 1979. The plan will include long range planning for land uses, traffic circulation, conservation, recreation, open space, coastal zone management, and water and sewer facilities.

The city's search for a city planner was believed to have been over in May when Walter T. Ellwell of Sarasota was hired for the job. However, after three weeks on the job he resigned. Cox said Ellwell was highly qualified, but said Ellwell's priorities did not match his. He noted that Ellwell wanted to get more into administration, which Cox felt would prevent him from devoting undivided attention to work on the comprehensive plan.

After Ellwell left, Cox resumed interviewing finalists among 116 applicants for the job. As of yet, Cox has made no new recommendations of a person for the job. However, when the search for a planner resumed, the idea of hiring a professional consultant firm on a contract basis, solely for drafting a comprehensive plan, arose.

At the meeting Tuesday several figures were tossed around as to what it would cost for a consulting firm to draft the plan. At one time Cox estimated it could cost $40,000 for the two-year job.

Councilman Sharpe noted Palm Bay got a comprehensive plan from a consultant for about $32,000 and he said, "Many of the smaller cities are finding that this is the cheapest way to go. A lot of them are doing it that way."

Though the salary for the city planner will depend on the qualifications of the person selected, Cox said the starting yearly salary will range between $13,500 and $17,500.

"We don't know what we'd be getting until we get one (a city planner) in. I'm very much in favor of a consultant," Councilwoman Kernohan said.

Councilman Anderson expressed concern that if a planner was hired, the planner may still need to employ a consultant to help work on the comprehensive plan.

Cox replied that whoever was hired would be qualified to do most of the work on the comprehensive plan "with the exception that he might need a one-time, short contract with a draftsman to produce some drawings."

Vice Mayor Reeb said he was afraid the consultant might charge extra if the city needed advice on any matters not falling directly within bounds of what would be required to produce a comprehensive plan.

Mayor McChesney said he favored hiring a city planner. "He would be available when we wanted him and would be able to advise us on other matters besides the comprehensive plan. I agree with Vice Mayor Reeb, and I also think we need to keep an eye on the future by having a planner on staff," McChesney said.

Councilman Anderson made the motion to reaffirm the city's intention to hire a planner.

Cox recently stated that it could take another month to finish interviews and background checks and select a planner.

PSL Men's Golf

PORT ST. LUCIE--The foursome of Charlie Brown, Carlos Boaz, Dick Lundin and John Ford exploded for two net eagles and a birdie on the second hole and parlayed that and the continued hot shooting of Brown into a winning round in the weekly golf tournament of the Port St. Lucie Men's Golf Association played Thursday on the Saints Course at Sandpiper Bay.

The leaders in the best three balls of foursome competition were Brown, Boaz, Lundin and Ford, net 193; Walt Wilma, Bill Griffin, Jack Jeffrey and Evert Stabler, 197; Al Van Nostrand, John Huncharek, Mel Loveridge and Ray Mager, 198; Charles Porteous, Bob Mitchell, Jim Waldie and Len Appel, also 198.

Gross scores under 80 for the day were turned in by Wilmas, 74; Huncharek, 75; Don McConnell, 76; Sam Dewhirst and Ev Phillips, 79; Brown, 79.

acing is labor of love for Bond and Tilton

RUSTY BOND PILOTS his sleek Porsche 911 during a race earlier this year at Daytona International Speedway. Bond is currently ranked fourth in national competition for the International Motor Sports Association GTU drivers' title. He and teammate Ren Tilton, both of Jensen Beach, are constantly working to improve the performance of the Number 60 Porsche, which cruises at about 175 mph on the backstretch at Daytona.

BY BOB FRYER

N BEACH--If a visitor asked what goes on in Jensen Beach, are you'd tell him about sea d unspoiled beaches and fancy u might mention the Indian d tell about the boating and Or, you might mention the opulation of retirees, who have e to enjoy a casual, peaceful e.

ess of what you mention, it's you would associate Jensen ith motor sports racing. After na Beach pretty much has title attraction.

nsen Beach has a pair of auto who are making a name for es in the world of motor sports. Rusty Bond, 32, and Ren Tilton, oth grew up here and who are ting full time to their racing ny thing about it is Bond and e probably better known at Beach and Sebring and other ers across the nation than they eir own town.

aintain a low profile here; not because they planned it that because they spend so much paring for races that they er have time for anything else. away in a building off Sunview ttle north of Porter Lumber, is ere they keep their race car. It at they slave and sweat over t of their ambitions: a 1967 11. And when they're not at a rking on their own car, they're another Porsche 911 for a Texas race drivers.

neither Bond nor Tilton are publicity, they're not the types selling themselves. They don't for it. For example, during the nis before the Paul Revere 250 at Daytona International on July 4, Bond says he and orked about 18 hours a day, s a week to get ready."

they do it?

y not for the money. In the motor sports, the prize money is variably less than the cost of car. If you win a race and , you're lucky. And you soon that nobody ever gets lucky consistently break even. Two when Bond entered half of the races in the series he competes in, he set what must be a record for low budget racing: he only sent $9,725.

That may sound like a lot of money to most folks, but in the class of racing Bond and Tilton drive in, it is not uncommon to hear of teams spending $50,000 or more just to enter two or three races where the top prizes total about $2,000 per race.

"It's unbelievable the amount of money some teams spend on racing. With the money we have to spend, we should not even be in the same league with the teams that can afford to drop $30,000 on a car they may use only one or two times a season before they go out and buy another car. We use the same car, year in and year out, and we've gotten to the point where we're using the same engines, too. A lot of teams buy several engines a season," Bond said, pointing out that he and Tilton have used the same two engines for the last three racing seasons.

The only way Bond and Tilton are able to consistently be strong contenders in their class is because they do nearly all the work on their red, number 60 Porsche themselves. The more affluent teams hire full time crews of mechanics to prepare their cars. And most other teams either have large corporations with healthy advertising budgets as sponsors, or the drivers are rich. "You'd be surprised how many young millionaires are getting into racing," Bond says.

Just as money is not the reason Bond and Tilton are so dedicated to racing, fame and glory must also be discounted. It's not that they wouldn't appreciate a little fame and glory; it's just that there isn't much of it to go around for drivers in their league. They compete in the International Motor Sports Association (IMSA) Camel GT Challenge series of races.

That series includes about 15 races per year at tracks all across the nation. Some of the events, like Florida's 24 Hours of Daytona and the 12 Hours of Sebring, and the Laguna Seca and Sears Point races in California, are pretty well known to folks who really don't pay much attention to racing. But most of the events are only followed by a cult of hard-core motor sports fans. Also, even for those who keep up with the IMSA series, attention is nearly always focused on the big engine cars.

Within the IMSA Camel Challenge series are two classes of cars, one with engines displacing more than 3.5 liters and a GTU class for cars with engines displacing less than 3.5 liters. Bond and Tilton race in the GTU class, where they race on the same track, at the same time with the larger cars, but compete for championship points only against other GTU drivers. So, while a GTU driver may drive an excellent race and far outdistance those he is directly competing with, it is unlikely he will finish among the top five in overall competition. And, with the exception of the hard-core fans, little attention is usually paid to those finishing below the top five positions. (The race format will change this month, however. With the coming of age of the GTU class, IMSA officials have decided to split the GT and GTU competition into two separate races. The first race exclusively for GTU cars will be held on July 24 at Hallett, Okla.)

About the closest thing to fame and glory Bond has ever experienced was when he and two out-of-town co-drivers piloted Bond's Porsche 911 to a first in class, 10th overall victory at the 24 Hours of Daytona. That was in 1975, when Tilton was a member of the pit crew. Since then, Tilton has earned his IMSA driver's license and is Bond's co-driver.

Since the first in class finish that year, Bond and Tilton have not visited victory lane. But they have racked up an impressive number of second through 10th place class finishes. Bond, who could only afford to enter about half of the races in the last two years, ranked fifth in the final international GTU standings in 1975 and fourth in 1976.

Last year was Tilton's first as an IMSA driver, and he drove in only four races. Still, he came up with an impressive eighth in class ranking for the 1976 season.

This year Bond and Tilton are making an effort to enter as many of the races in the IMSA series as possible. So far, their number 60 red Porsche has been entered in eight of nine races this season. They hope to enter the remaining eight races scheduled for this season.

Some of the races have been too short to require two drivers, and in those events, Bond has piloted the Porsche. Currently, he is ranked fourth in the GTU drivers competition for the 1977 season. Tilton, who should be doing more driving during the second half of the season, is hoping to creck into the top 10 at the next race in Hallett.

Since Bond has lined up another car to drive for the Hallett, both he and Tilton hope to score drivers points. "I will be driving a car put together by a team from Indianapolis. It was probably the fastest GTU car several years ago, but the way competition has gotten tougher in the last few years, I doubt if it will run with the top cars," Bond said.

It will be an uphill battle for Bond to win the drivers championship this year, or for Tilton to improve much on his eighth place finish of last year. But they are determined to give it their best shot. That means investing far more time on their car than other drivers do to make up for the financial handicap they have when compared to other top teams. Of the GTU drivers now ranked ahead of Bond, two have won the GTU championship before and one is driving the car that won the championship last year. All three drivers ahead of Bond have spent far more on their cars for the first half of the season than Bond and Tilton expect to spend for the entire year.

"It's amazing how much stiffer the competition seems to get all the time. You have to constantly be refining and improving your car, just to stay even with where you were a year ago. If our car ran two years ago like it does now, it would have won the championship then. Fortunately, we still have improvements to make on it, so we haven't exhausted its potential. I'm still optimistic we'll do well this year," Bond said.

REN TILTON is half of the Jensen Beach racing team that is making itself known at tracks across the nation for their tough competitiveness. Tilton and Rusty Bond compete in the GTU class of the International Motor Sports Association Camel GT Challenge. Tilton shared driving duties with Bond in the 24 Hours of Daytona and 12 Hours of Sebring this year and will be sole driver of the team's Porsche 911 at a race in Oklahoma later this month.

Carrie Ullman went to her daughter's to babysit. Charley and Carrie mis H.Out.

The McKeevers stopped at Tansi, Tenn., on their way north, but, regretfully, Al and Peg hadn't arrived yet at Tansi. It took the Rays two weeks and fives to get in Tansi after making many interesting stops. At Savannah there was a dedication for the opening of River St. The cotton warehouses had been remodeled into very lovely restaurants and gift shops and there were many bands playing all day. A major attraction was an authentic steam train, which created lots of fun and a carnival atmosphere. From there they visited Hunting Island State Park on the ocean in S. Carolina; on to Modoc, S. Carolina, staying five days; then to Rocky Bottom, S.C., expecting to stay two days with friends from Miami, but stayed 10 days, as Al helped his buddy lay a brick fireplace. They also attended the Pickens Flea Market, an auction in Asheville, N.C., and attended a party in Brevard, N.C., where they met many Miami friends. The nights have been cool at Tansi, but Peg gets enough to go swimming every day.

Pitney and Ike Bennett are already busy entertaining many of their friends and family at the beautiful spot at Tansi.

Lisbee and Artie Smith finally got started on their month's tour to the west. First stop was Texas, where they parked on the lot across from the Rays, visiting the Bennetts. Next stop was the Grand Canyon, where they would have like to stay, but, alas, no open spots, so they had to backtrack to Flagstaff, Arizona, for one night, then on to Phoenix to visit a cousin one day. They left for California the next day. Lisbee says their first week on the road was both beautiful and educational.

Fred Greenough was hospitalized Tuesday at Good Samaritan in West Palm Beach, where he will undergo surgery. We all wish him an early return home. For those who wish to send cards, the zip code number if FL 33480.

Alys Scott recently returned from a trip to Maine. She visited with her friend, Mrs. Eleanor George, in Falmouth Foreside. Eleanor is a frequent visitor to H.O. in the winter. Then Alys went on to Kennebunk to visit with her brother and his wife. She was happy to find her family and friends all in good health. The weather during Alys' visit was, unfortunately, miserable.... cold, rainy and foggy, except for four or five days.

Alys flew up and back with her friends Lois and Mark Markham, former residents of H.O. but now living at Oceana. All were happy to go, but glad to get back to Florida and warm weather.

Carl and Helen Eury are new owners of lot 1, purchased from R. Loveday. This makes four lots for them.

+ + +

Sorry to lose Roy and Clara Woods, some of our older owners, who sold to Albert and Carolyn Wright of Waldeo, New York. We welcome the Wrights to the park.

+ + +

Dee and Morris Brink left for their home in Pennsylvania after an extended stay here this year. They will be home for about two months and then take off for a tour of Germany and Greece in the early fall.

+ + +

Dot Blair says she is feeling fine and enjoying the beautiful summer weather they are having in Delaware.

+ + +

Farmers Elmer and Joyce Edwards called to chat and said their corn crop is high on the stalk and the soybeans are coming along well, too, though they could use more rain.

+ + +

John and Grace Carson took off in their motor home for New Jersey via Chicago. Their granddaughter Bonnie made her debut as an equity player in a play at the Lake Forrest Theatre which opened July 8. John and Grace promised to tell us details of the exciting event when they return.

Lot owners coming in last week were David Freer on lot 191, and John Scharerer's son and his wife and family are vacationing on John's lot 320.

Mrs. George Zandele and her children are on her father, Jack Carpenter's lot 102.

We welcome new owners Frank and Lyla Riley from Palm Springs, Florida, who were here over the weekend on lot 143. They expect to be here frequently.

South of the border....

Maybe we should admit that we are growing older. The Baltzers, Bob and Ginny, now of North River Shores, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Kathryn Ann, to Eugene E. Whiting of Pine Ridge Way, Rocky Point in Port Salerno.

Bob and Ginny were pioneers of Palm Lake Park. Bob was on the Board of Directors of the Palm Lake Park Civic Association and Ginny participated in planning the park entertainments. Both were assets to the community.

Interesting to note that, when the Baltzers resided in the park, they were on the west border and now, in North River Shores, they are on the east border. The entire move was less than 1000 feet.

They often "cross the border" to associate with their many friends in the park.

+ + +

The move is official now, Tom and Arlene Cantl and their children, from Jamestown, New York, are residents of the former Farmer home on NW 14th Terrace. Their children are Thomas, Jr., and Michael.

We welcome these families to our park and feel sure that they will enjoy every day of their stay here.

Wayne Straubaugh has completed his new home. It is all landscaped and beautiful.

One can tell it's summer as there's only an infrequent buzz, buzz of cars on Indian River Drive, instead of a continuous rumble, roar. It's a cinch to cross the highway now, not the breath-taking chance of the winter months. In fact, only two cars went by between 9:15 and 9:17 Saturday morning.

Anyway, the order is still in for signal lights with a "walk" button and Mayor Gene Hoke expects to soon get the go ahead from DOT, and the Town Council has already appropriated the necessary funds.

+ + +

This year, as in the past, folks from all around enjoyed viewing the fireworks on the Fourth from Ocean Breeze Park a riverfront. It was a huge, well behaved crowd.

Ruth and Gene Hoke want to express their appreciation to the many folks in leaving no litter. "They were all very considerate and we welcome them back another year."

The park events are at a low ebb right now, but Ruth Hoke says there's another pot luck supper in sight, maybe some Friday night later this month. Watch the shuffleboard bulletin board and listen for announcements at bingo.

DO YOU REMEMBER WHEN.....

Now that the summer heat is upon us, how about a nice, cool, winter item, found when Dorothy Geeben was cleaning out some drawers.

Jane Phillips reporting from tel. no. Atlantic 7-3484 (about 1960): Twenty shufflers win tournament trophies.

According to the article, this was the third annual Yuletide tournament and it was held Dec. 26 and 27 with 78 contestants in mixed doubles matches. There were winner and door prizes galore.

How many of these folks do you remember? Main event winners: Clyde Redinger and Myrl Huntington; Harry Haar and Betty MacNab, Larry Brammer and Jeane Armstrong, all being awarded a large turkey.

Then, the fourth and fifth place winners, Dorothy Bunting and Hugh Burgess, Otto Chihasz and Ellen Oakes received cash awards. Virgil Myers and Bessie Cupp, the sixth place winners, were given dinners at the Snack Bar.

Consolation winners, also getting turkeys, were: Archie Faille and Minnie Brammer, Charles Gorde and Jean Fisher. Cash prizes were awarded to Joe Finch and Isabel Taylor, Frank Proseus and Miriam Neville.

Lucky number door prize winners received baskets of fruit. They were Hazel Powell, Peggy Burke, Harry Oakes and Harold Schroeder. C.S. Burdick received 10 gallons of gasoline from Harry Wilke.

There was a fitting and timely climax when the judges for the final match appeared: Harry Wilkis, in tie and tails to represent Alaska, the 49th state, and Otto Chihasz in a typical "Miss Hawaii" costume to represent the 50th state.

Allen Wickes was the general chairman and manager, with the able assistance of Isabel Taylor, Willard Pitts and Hugh Burgess.

How many around remember this event and, if so, how many of the winners did you know? All interesting items like this will be written up, as space allows, so take a look in that box under the bed.

RAMBLING AROUND

Louis and Eleanor Pfersick and Rosella Cusson, Eleanor's mother, of Cypress and from New Britain, Conn., have some interesting stories to tell.

Edward and Rosella Cusson came to OBP on 15th St. a number of years ago and daughter Eleanor thought it was just awful, unthinkable, that her mother was living in a trailer camp. But, when the Pfersicks came to visit, they came to stay, and Harry often kidded them about looking down their noses at "Hama".

The Pfersicks received a letter from Bernard and Elma O'Neil of Bay, from up there in Rochester, N.Y., saying weather hot, rainy with too much so plus weather. Uncle Joe often chuckles over the variety show of last winter that Bernie and Elma took part in, mentioning that his favorite was the "Hatless One".

The Pfersicks also received a letter from Cliff and Hope White of Cypress, from up in Wisconsin, saying they had a safe, pleasant drive north, nice weather all the way, enjoying visit with grandson and, to say "Hello" to everybody.

+ + +

Luther and Mary Weeks of North 6th have L.T. Weeks, Jr., and family visiting them, including children Perry, Deanna and Jean. They are from Madison Heights, Va. They came over from Leesberg by train to West Palm. They've been beaching, swimming and fishing.

Of course, Luther is always up to something. That time, he installed a large central air conditioning system. That killing frost of last winter cost Luther a pretty penny as it destroyed the large clive tree that protected their roof from the afternoon sun. Mary found that, with the sun beating down on the roof, the heat was unbearable, so, as usual, Luther "fixed it".

+ + +

Ralph and Inez Bailets of 24 7th are some of the folks that came scurrying back to OBP before expected. But first they went to Norfolk to visit their Marine Corps daughter who, after 14 years, is reenlisting for another ten as she finds her computer program job too interesting to leave. Then, on they went to Harrisburg, Pa., to visit Ralph's mother, daughter and family. It was too hot and dry for them and, although Ralph did enjoy the nearby horse races, they were anxious to get back to OBP and left earlier than planned. They are now resting up from a real good vacation.

Ray Stiles, 3 No. 5th, had his family visiting him recently: his daughter and her husband, Margaret and John Fox, Sr., and grandchildren, James, Mary and John, Jr. They stayed nearby for a week. The highlight of the visit was when the six of them went sail fishing from Port Salerno. They didn't land a sail, but had a delightful day trolling on the Gulf Stream at 5 mph and the stream going six. They did catch some huge bonita.

+ + +

Dorothy Geeben had a letter from Ethel McDowell, up there in Detroit. Ethel took in a grandson's graduation from Ann Arbor High School, went to Saginaw for niece's wedding, and reports that she heard from Ann Bartle, who is enjoying her family in Philadelphia. Ethel says cool mornings and hot afternoons, but rest nice.

+ + +

Marion Knopp dropped in to say that Airstream had informed them that they would be one of twenty couples to tour England, Wales and Scotland in September, in "rigs" rented in London. Marion was delighted, as who wouldn't be.

+ + +

Mary Ardreon of Fifth heard from Fred and Louise Kalb, also of Fifth but now up in Callicoon, N.Y. They say the weather is lovely, even if it isn't wet enough for the garden, which Fred has to water regularly, along with two of the neighbors' But the gardens are growing fine.

+ + +

Bess Baillie, 15 SE 10th, writes from Oakland, Calif., that the weather is cool but mountains beautiful. She has taken trips all around Victoria, B.C. and the Butchart Gardens, Vancouver to visit relatives, Seattle and Oregon to visit more relatives. Next, she'll go to Lake Tahoe and the one arm bandits. She talked to Ruby Wren and Alma Stotwell—both are well and enjoying themselves. Says, "See you in October."

+ + +

Letter from the Nixons of Center Street, from Jonesport, Maine, saying they are leaving in three or four days.

So, there are some more returning earlier than planned, however, they seem to be having a great ol' time touring Quebec and northern Maine.

+ + +

Veronica Snyder of Fifth St had a card from Laura Fowler saying: "Still at my daughter's, 8313 Wender St., Vilmain, Va. 21180. Enjoying many picnics in the Blue Ridge Mountains, but expect to leave for Seattle by the middle of the month."

...lers continue with library project

...LUCIE--This week marked ...ssion in the Port St. Lucie ...h announced project to have ...ked fishing shelf in the state ... Lucie Branch Library.

Anglers Club President Hughes Brininger announced the latest contribution to the growing list of available titles ... two years ago the Club appointed a library committee whose function would be the selection and purchase of books and encyclopedias on the subject of fishing and fish related topics. The volumes available provide information not only on how and where to catch fish, but also how to build rods, how to make lures, what baits to use, where to fish, and how to clean, prepare and cook your catch.

Among the latest additions to the fishing shelf are "Fishing for Fun", "The Care and Repair of Fishing Tackle", "Fishes of the World - An Illustrated Dictionary", "The Lore of Sportfishing", "Fresh and Salt Water Fishes of the World", "The American Fisherman's Fresh and Salt Water Guide", and "Fishing: An Encyclopedic Guide to Tackle and Tactics for Fresh and Salt Water".

There are more than 600 varieties of fish in Florida and the fisherman with questions can go to the library and find the answers.

New rates make saving electricity more important than ever.

WE'RE CONCERNED.

The state regulatory agency has concluded that FPL's new rates will be based on a conservation incentive: If you use more than a base amount of electricity per month, the rate per kilowatt hour will go up. We're concerned, because your bill may increase more than you expect. We want our customers to have the facts--and to have ample opportunity to determine wise energy management.

AFTER YOU USE 750 KILOWATT HOURS IN A MONTH, THE RATE PER KILOWATT HOUR GOES UP.

According to the regulatory agency's order, FPL will, for the first time, have an "inverted rate" structure. This means that the first 750 kilowatt hours you use in any month will be at one rate, and all electricity you use above that, during the monthly billing period, will be at a higher rate.

Kilowatt Hours	Old Rate	New Costs (Inverted Structure)	Increase	New Costs, if Historic Rate Structure Applied	Increase
750	$ 27.27	$ 29.01	6.4%	$ 31.36	15%
1200	40.78	48.96	16.2%	46.90	15%
2000	64.82	78.67	21.7%	74.51	14.9%
3000	94.86	118.75	25.2%	109.04	15%
4000	124.89	158.84	27%	143.56	14.9%

All the above figures include applicable franchise fees.

Using our historic rate structure, the rate increase recently granted because of inflation would have amounted to about 15%. This new structure works so that the heavier user will pay a substantially higher increase--up to 27%.

On the other hand, the minimum user will pay a 6.4% increase. The 1,200 kilowatt hour user will pay about 15% more, and anyone using over 1,200 kilowatt hours monthly will pay increases from 15% to 27%.

Now, it's even more important to practice wise energy management to help control your costs. We don't like higher bills any more than you do, so we want to help you conserve in every way we can.

FREE, OUR FOLDER ON "HOW TO SAVE MONEY ON YOUR ELECTRIC BILL".

It's loaded with tips, hints and ideas on ways you may never have thought of using. Stop in at any FPL office and ask for your free copy today.

Clams' clocks running out

BY ROBBIE BEDELL

STUART–If Martin County Commissioner Dr. William Myers gets the money he wants for monitoring shellfish in local waters, a seven year shellfish ban by the state could be lifted.

Meeting Tuesday with members of the Florida Department of Natural Resources, Myers learned that $30,000 would be a rough estimate to perform regular tests of waters to determine if pollution levels are high enough to be a danger to humans.

Bill Lunsford, a shellfish expert from the DNR, told Myers the reason for the shellfish ban, which went into effect in 1970, was because his agency was understaffed and could not make the tests on a routine basis.

"The waters should be checked at least once a month," Lunsford said. "Until we get the people to do the job, we will have to rely on local people to do it for us."

The shellfish controversy was sparked by a recent study by students of the Florida Institute of Technology who determined that the rivers were not polluted enough for the ban to be in effect.

Lunsford said the DNR has been turned down by the legislature three times for shellfish research funding.

"This is the third time we have gone to the legislature to get equipment and people and we were turned down," he said. "The first two times our requests fell on deaf ears. It's been like this since 1968."

Lunsford said in order for Martin County waters to be reclassified, five steps would have to be followed:

1. A shoreline and hydrological survey would have to be performed.

2. The types of potential pollution of the rivers would have to be identified.

3. A water flow study would have to be made.

4. Boat samplings would have to be made of a variety of river sites.

5. Constant surveillance of the waters would have to be carried out.

Irwin Dunn, a recent graduate of FIT and one of the students who performed the river tests, said that FIT Dean Ernest Tealey is interested in the program and said the state could use the school's facilities in the testing.

"The school is accredited and there is a medical tech program," Dunn said. "Dean Tealey has said he is more than willing to have FIT facilities used."

Lunsford said he will make the FIT offer a priority item with officials of the Federal Food and Drug Administration to determine if the college testing will be valid.

"I would like to talk to the dean," Lunsford said. "I will get in touch with the shellfish microbiologist who certifies personnel and lab facilities."

Martin County Health Department Head Dr. Archie MacAllister said his department has no legal funds for the work but that it could help in carrying out a shoreline survey of potential pollution areas.

"If there is anything we can do, we would like to do it," he said. "We would have the expertise to have the house to house survey."

Myers asked Lunsford for a "ballpark figure" on the amount of money it would take for the county to fund such a project, with the help of the college. "So when I go to the commission I have a good idea what I am asking for."

It was determined that manpower would cost about $17,000, a boat possibly obtained from confiscated smuggling boats held by the Sheriff's Department, plus mailing and postage, would cost the county about $20,000.

Lions offer talking books

BOOKS–Jensen Beach Lions Club member Joe Foley demonstrates a book machine used to listen to various novels and books recorded by the Council of the Blind in Daytona Beach. With Foley is his leader dog, "Mr.

JENSEN BEACH–There was once a time when the only way a visually handicapped person could "read" a novel would be to acquire the braille version or to have someone dictate to them.

Through the Florida Council of the Blind, and Lions Club of Florida, any handicapped person can obtain tapes of novels and other books through the Talking Book Program.

Joe Foley, a blind member of the Jensen Beach Lions Club, said the Florida Legislature, with the help of Helen Keller, established the Florida Council of the Blind and a regular library of tapes, and the Talking Book Program was established in Daytona Beach.

"Any handicapped person can get these tapes for free," Foley said. "At one time they were only available to those who are blind, but now all handicapped people can get them."

Foley said there are all kinds of books obtainable, mysteries, westerns and more serious novels including the classics.

"If I have an earplug and I am going on a trip on a Greyhound bus for 10 hours, I can read a novel," Foley said. "A package of four to six tapes can be enough reading matter for a whole day."

Foley said that anyone who is interested in obtaining the talking books should write to the Jensen Beach Lions Club at Box 486, Jensen Beach, or call him at the Tri-County Rehabilitation Center at 287-7600.

NEW BUS–Chum's Chariot, the new courtesy bus of the Martin County Council on Aging, will serve residents of the Jensen Beach-Rio area.

Chum's Chariot to Jensen

BY ROBBIE BEDELL

STUART–The Martin County Council on Aging now has three courtesy buses to transport senior citizens to every part of Martin County.

It's become apparent that Martin County or the City of Stuart are not going to provide public transportation," Council Executive Director Russell Conser said. "And the senior population is so great. The state of Florida has 5,000 people per day moving down who are over 60 years old. That's 35 per cent of the total population and it is apparent that these people need more transportation."

Several years ago the council went into operation carrying senior citizens around the county with one bus. After a while it became apparent that the one bus was not enough to do the job. Recently, two buses were purchased by anonymous donors, one named "Chum's Chariot", and the other "Betty's Buggy."

Runs are made on a call basis only. That is, the bus is in a particular neighborhood at a certain time of day and those interested in getting a ride call the Council on Aging and make an appointment. The bus driver then comes and picks up passengers door to door.

Conser finds that the three buses are adequate.

"Three buses at this particular time are adequate," he said. "We're making house to house calls in all parts of the county and you can't get better service than that in Miami where they have municipal transportation."

The one bus which is particularly interesting to Jensen Beach is Chum's Chariot.

The bus makes the rounds of Jensen, the mobile home parks, Rio, and other points north of the Roosevelt Bridge five days a week.

On Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday, pickups are made at homes from 8:30 to 9 a.m., and 1:30 to 2 p.m. Drops are made at homes from noon until 12:30 p.m. and from 3:30 to 4 p.m.

On Wednesdays, there is a pickup from 8:30 to 9 a.m. with drops from 11:30 to 12 p.m.

There are scheduled Saturday fun trips to points of interest in surrounding cities.

Conser emphasized the fact that donations are needed to keep the three buses on the road and asked riders and those interested in the program to contribute to the Council.

In addition to the courtesy buses, the Council also sponsors a home health care program and a home maintenance program.

"We have a 'Mr. Clean' and a 'Mrs. Fixit' who go around making minor home repairs free of charge," Conser said. "All we ask is that the people are qualified for the help and that they call to make an appointment. Everything must be scheduled."

Conser also said the Council sponsors the Meals on Wheels program in which meals are distributed for a $1.50 donation to those who, for some reason or another, cannot fix a meal for themselves.

The Council also has an information and referral service.

For any information on the Council's activities, or to schedule a bus pickup call 283-2242.

in County Commission has ek bids for the rebuilding of pier which, through the last ars, has rotted and begun to e Indian River.

In addition to rebuilding the pier, the county also intends to build a wooden gazebo at the end, similar to the wooden structures the county built at Stuart Beach.

"We've had to go out for permits from the Department of Environmental Regulation (DER) for the building at the end," said County Engineering Assistant George Knight. "Ordinarily, we would not have had to get a permit because the pier was already there."

Knight, who also adopted the Stuart Beach building designs for use on the pier, said there will be space for boats to dock, benches and railings so the public can rest or have picnics.

There will be no fuel or sanitary facilities at the dock and dockage and use of the pavilion will be free.

Knight said the county is getting rough estimates from contractors and the permits from the DER could be in hand very soon.

"Fort Pierce (the local DER office) has the permits ready and they're waiting on a decision from the Department of Natural Resources," he said.

Knight added that construction of the new pier could begin within a month or two.

Since the dock had been breaking and falling into the river, an outhouse, a product of the year-old restoration of the building, has fallen into the river from the end of the pier. Since the outhouse is aground just off the riverbank, Knight said he would add to the building contract to have the outhouse removed.

"After all, it was part of the old dock anyway," he said. "We may as well have it removed."

In addition to the dock renovation, the Martin County Historical Society, as a gesture of gratitude to the county for its work on the dock, is paying for road improvements around the House of Refuge.

According to Historical Society Director Janet Hutchinson, the society approved $26,000 for the improvement which will add about 26 more parking spaces to the existing 14.

"It's a way for us to show our gratitude for the county doing the dock for us," Mrs. Hutchinson said. "There have been a lot of people who have expressed an interest in visiting the House of Refuge by water, and now they will be able to do so."

Society President Ralph Hartman said he is happy the road work is being done in the summer.

"I have been devoted to getting these things done in the summer," Harman said, "so when the tourists come down in the winter, they will be able to take advantage of them."

EWK Paving is improving the parking lot.

'Bountiful' book bazaar at M.C. Library

JENSEN BEACH–More than 3,000 books, plus magazines, will go on sale Friday and Saturday, July 29 and 30, 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., in the Stokes Memorial Room of the Martin County Public Library.

All books, regardless of cover or size, will be 25 cents (with a few exceptions).

The library opens at 10 a.m., so entrance to the sale will be by the door on the east side from 9 to 10 a.m. Patrons are requested to use the east parking lot.

There are several cartons of history books, American and European; a number of cartons of biographies; books of literature, languages, travel, war, religion, poetry, repairs, plus many other non-fiction subjects; juvenile books, fiction and non-fiction; and many cartons of fiction. Included this year is a large donation of college textbooks on various subjects.

Some of the books are discards from library shelves. The rest are donated. Donated books are checked against the books in the stacks and, if a gift book is in better condition than the one on the shelf, it is put into service and the book from the stacks is retired. Many donated books are kept for various sections of the library.

The library accepts and receives new and used gift books all year long, not just at book sale time. So, if anyone has books they no longer read or need and want to part with, please don't throw them away. Give them to the library where they will be put into regular use or, in one of the book sales.

The entire proceeds of the booksales benefit the library, either in the children's department or for new books in other sections.

Sewall's Point to host flood meeting

SEWALL'S POINT–A Federal Flood Insurance information meeting will be held at the Sewall's Point Town Hall at 1 p.m., Wednesday, July 27.

The meeting will give residents an opportunity to provide floor information to the Tetra Tech Company of California so it can submit a flood plan to the Federal Insurance Administration of the Department of Housing and Urban Development. The Tetra Tech study will be used to determine future federal insurance rates of coastal residents.

MCCA meets July 28

JENSEN BEACH–The Martin County Council on Aging will hold a meeting of the board of directors, open to the public and for public participation, on Thursday, July 28, at the Jensen Beach Community Church. Meeting time is 1:30 p.m.

In addition to considering many items for promotion of the interests of the elderly and the Meals on Wheels program, speakers will discuss a newly instituted SeniorCare Center.

Mrs. Leta Williams, recently reelected president, will conduct the meeting. Russell Conser, executive director, will relate plans for new projects.

Senior citizens are cordially invited to be present.

IAN BEACHGOERS–Some people walk on the job while others go there to swim and sunbathe. These two girls have found a unique way and that is to ride their horses Monday morning they were seen riding on the south end of Hutchinson Island near the House of Refuge.

Gluckler will grow flowers

SEWALL'S POINT–Sewall's Point Mayor and former Martin County Commissioner Ed Gluckler last week told members of the Martin County Conservation Alliance that he has gone into the flower farming business.

He has purchased a five-acre chrysanthemum farm west of Stuart and plans to raise flowers.

Gluckler retired from the news business last year when he sold the Martin County Press Service to former New York reporter Art Foos. A newsletter he has been writing for the past couple of years, "Dateline", will be discontinued.

ULT–Charlie Arent of Jensen Beach waded with his g rod in the Indian River last Thursday morning and came out with this ten-pound, nine-ounce trout. The fish was taken on one of Art Ryan's "Fred's Popper" plugs and a 10-pound test line.

ssett captures Florida Open title

ST. LUCIE–Rich Bassett, who lead in the 36th Annual Florida M Open from the first day, had a little magic on the final hole of the tournament to avoid a sudden death playoff and to cop the $4,000 winner's check.

The drama came about when Bassett found himself tied with Ron Baker of Coral Springs as he teed off for the 18th hole on the Sunner's course at Sandpiper Bay Resort. Bassett hit his ball into the rough and many figured the Country Club of Miami assistant pro had blown his chance for victory. But then he fired a four-iron shot that sailed gracefully through the air and came to rest 15 feet from the hole. From there, it was a simple putt into the cup to give Bassett a score of 74 for the day and a 278 for the tourney.

Baker had started the final round one stroke behind Bassett and, when he chipped a shot within six feet of the cup on the 18th green, it looked like he would send the tournament into a sudden death playoff. But his putt jumped to the right and missed the hole. That ended his chance of tying Bassett, and on his next shot Baker tapped the ball in for an overall score of 277.

Finishing third, with scores of 278, were Laurie Hammer and Jim Barber, both professionals.

The lowest scoring amateur in the tournament was Jay Pyle of Stuart. He tied with three professionals for fourth place honors by carding a 279.

The Liggett Group, formerly known as Liggett and Myers Tobacco Company, sponsored the tournament at Sandpiper Bay. Also sponsoring the event was the Florida section of the PGA.

The event, played over the Saints and Sinners courses, was billed as the richest Florida Open ever held. Cash prizes for the professionals totaled more than $35,000. Awards for the amateurs were limited to preserve their amateur status, but that did not prevent Pyle from collecting a gold-plated putter for being the lowest scoring amateur.

STATEMENT OF CONDITION AS OF JUNE 30, 1977

REPORT TO THE SHAREHOLDERS

Continuing growth has marked the first six months of 1977 at First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Martin County.

Now in our 21st year of providing savings and loan service to residents of Martin, Okeechobee and surrounding counties, total assets have increased to $115,550,385 compared to $102,967,570 at this time last year and $51,588,173 five years ago.

Savings balances increased over the past twelve months to $101,483,953 from $88,427,111, an increase of $13,056,842, or 14.8%. The number of savings accounts as of June 30 was 16,807 compared to 15,349 last year and 16,215 as 1977 began.

First mortgage loans outstanding in our marketing area stood at $93,276,818 compared to $82,944,951 last year. In the past six months alone, your Association has closed 378 loans amounting to $11,285,976.

Dividends paid to savers during the first half of 1977 amounted to $1,091,666.

On the whole we have seen an improving economy nationally, state-wide and in our local area. While not outstanding it certainly is better than the recession, inflation and stagflation of recent years. We look for a continuing upturn as construction, particularly home construction, again assumes a leading role in our economy.

All of us at First of Martin County, the directors, officers and staff, pledge our continuing efforts to render modern savings services to our many savers. Likewise, we pledge to continue to make every effort to promote home ownership in our area through first mortgage loans at competitive rates. As first of Martin County, we care about your future.

...on paid high tribute to officers ...ectors and to volunteers who ...out the slogging, door-to-door, ...unglamorous chores necessary to the campaign. Many of these people, he said, were also members of the seven civic organizations in the Port St. Lucie voice that banded together to form the CFC in late 1976. The organizations are the River Park-Port St. Lucie Homeowners Association, the Port St. Lucie Civic League, the Spanish Lakes Homeowners Association, the Port St. Lucie Homeowners Association, the Lakes and Park Homeowners Association, the Indian River Drive Freeholders, Inc., and the Port St. Lucie Country Club Homeowners Association.

Brunton said, "We feel that active support given us by these groups was a classic example of consumers organizing to defend their own interests."

The nucleus of the CFC was formed early in 1976 when General Development Utilities, Inc., filed a petition with the PSC requesting a 48 per cent rate hike. The four homeowners associations in Port St. Lucie got together to oppose the request. The group asked Frank Zendzian, a retired financial analyst, to prepare a formal rebuttal, without compensation. The rebuttal was the only voice raised on behalf of consumers, and the PSC rejected the GDU petition in its entirety, with the result that the utility was unable to raise rates for the water and sewer services it provides.

Last October the FPL rate hike petition was filed with the PSC. The original four groups, joined by the three others listed above, decided to fight the petition on grounds that a rate increase could not be justified by the information contained in the petition.

Zendzian again agreed to prepare the formal rebuttal and Harold Shear, a local attorney, acted as legal advisor. These men received compensation, though the report says the amount was well below "the going fees for comparable professional services."

A fund drive was started to pay expenses and volunteers conducted a door-to-door delivery of 10,000 letters which pointed out that the $348 million rate hike would, if granted, mean a 30 per cent increase in monthly electric bills. The letter sought donations for the CFC and a goal of $7,000 was set.

The goal was not reached. The report notes that $4,236 was raised.

However, Zendzian and John Lindsley, a CFC director, took the stand at the PSC public hearing in the Spring and stated the CFC objections to the rate hike request. PSC members commended the CFC rebuttal for its quality and detail, the report notes. There was no cross examination of Zendzian and Lindsley by FPL attorneys. Then, when the PSC ruling came out, only $195.5 million of the $348 million request was granted.

esidential business eviewed by council

BY BOB FRYER

PORT ST. LUCIE--A proposed ordinance regulating what sort of businesses will be allowed in residential areas of Port St. Lucie was examined by city council members during a workshop meeting Tuesday morning.

Although Assistant City Attorney Fred Horowitz has been instructed to make minor changes and to report back at the next workshop session, the city council members seemed to be in agreement about what restrictions they want.

As drafted now, the ordinance would limit home-based businesses from taking up more than 400 square feet of a house, and no businesses would be allowed to infringe on the minimum amount of square footage allowed by law for a home. That square footage varies by zoning.

No businesses will be allowed to attract more than the normal amount of traffic, and, if Horowitz can find legal wording to do it, the wish of the commissioners is that persons driving through a residential development would not be able to tell which houses contained businesses. That restriction would include a prohibition of signs.

There were street carnivals from 1946 to 1950, some in the clubhouse, around Broad Street circle, and some on Rackna Road. It was a once-a-year affair with 30 games and six wheels, all colorfully trimmed in true carnival style by Harry and helpers.

The crowds were huge and two thousand or more dollars were raised for: March of Dimes, first ambulance oxygen equipment; equipment for Langford Park ball field, etc. Prizes were donated by OBPers and local business firms, making this a big community event.

There's no reason recorded why they were discontinued, but here's a clue. Again, Fred's scrapbook, February 8, 1951: "Carnival opened Thursday for three nights, but it was much too cold for large crowds. Snow in Jacksonville for the second time in 40 years."

Then, there were pancake breakfasts. Oh boy, were recollections vague on this. Although they were called breakfasts, some thought they were all day affairs, others said they were served from 4 to 7 p.m. on carnival nights, and some others said they had nothing to do with carnivals.

Anyway, they were very popular during this period, with such names as Ellen Nixon, Dorothy Geeben, Carrie Wilkie, George Phillips and Jim Gale appearing often in the notes.

Peggy Burks believes that Mr. Bullwinkel of Lake Worth, the Aunt Jemimah representative, arranged for a donation of the batter and sausages. They were served, all day, all you can eat for 50 cents. Remember now?

RAMBLING AROUND

Ann Christensen, 34 Ocean Breeze Dr., came down here in 1961 from the Chicago area and found some friendly pinochle players, so she stayed. However, she does take jaunts around the country, like going out to Escondido, California, June 10-July 10, to visit three granddaughters and a sister, Marie Christensen, and a chance to see the beaches and the San Diego Wild Animal Park. She felt that the airlines gave her the red carpet treatment and it was wonderful.

Now, Ann's daughter, Kamma Burghart, also from the Chicago area, is staying with her.

Maggie Davis, 10 No. 10th, who proudly says she's a "Florida Cracker" and knows every pig path in the state, is keeping an eye on activities in that corner of the park, along with her dog Ginger. She has just received a letter from Warner and Sophie Johnson saying they arrived in Chicago safely after 1300 mile trip, with hot weather at first, then from Tennessee on, it was all rain. Now 80 degree weather in Forest Park, Ill., where they are visiting a daughter.

Maggie also heard from Frank and Dorothy Glazier in New Hampshire and Red and Hazel Garrity in Massachusetts, saying the same thing..."weather here unusual this year, but all are fine and dandy."

Irvin and Leta Keith were greeted with a big "Welcome Home" sign on their door when they returned from Illinois last week. Leta had an interesting item:

Therese Wittenbert just heard that Walter and Helen Kronenbitter had some excitement this summer. June 8, Walter was given not one but two parties on his 83rd birthday. Then, on June 21, they were both given no one but two 60th wedding anniversary receptions. They say, "Weren't we fortunate?"

+++

Frank and Sallie von Halle, 28 10th, have just said farewell to some interesting guests. Two daughters with husband, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hauser of Walden, N.Y., and Mr. and Mrs. Frances Shaw of Miami.

This is the way it worked, the daughters stayed at River's Edge and took Frank and Sallie out to eat at every occasion, making it an outstanding visit for all.

+++

Fred and Hulda Tyler, 14 Vista Dr. and from Bound Brook, N.J., had some guests last week: Mrs. George Smith and son from Port Richey, Florida. They had a weekend of reminiscing, as the late Mr. Smith and Fred were co workers at Chase Manhattan Bank.

+++

Alva Scott, of Melaleuca, heard from Thelma Cadwell, saying the weather is beautiful at Starling Inn, Poconos, but the trip up was awful hot.

+++

Phil Dionne, 13 Almond, has heard from Maud Van Marter, 19 NW Oak, up in Detroit, and from Vi Waitz, Bangan and Sixth, up in Lyon, Mass. Both are well and enjoying themselves.

Jim and Ellen Nixon are back...to a stack of mail. Doc and Dot Whitney, of Palm Circle, are at 57 Dedham Ave., Needham, Mass. 02192, in good health, but remark, "It is cooler than OBP" and they just missed the worst snow storm of the winter by one day. They hope to get back next winter.

Doc and Ruth Roberts say they're glad their gardenias are blooming well. They heard from Rasey Mathews, who's fine, and called Ray Stiles to find he was making out OK. Also there was a nice long letter from the Aumillers, both Dick and Julia busy with music and senior activities, and both feeling fine.

Ellen had a letter from Art and Sue Rygd of Sixth, from Boyceville, Wisc., saying both have had good reports from their doctor and their garden is just great.

Ada Bacon, 2 Pepper, wrote them from St. William, Ont., saying weather cool and dry, but good for growing weeds, which gives her plenty of exercise fighting them.

+++

Freda Peterkin, 4th St., had a card from Dot MacKenzie. They left their summer home in Keene, N.H., in their motorhome for a trip out Colorado way, to encounter some very windy 100 plus weather, but had a great time visiting dude ranches where 1400 are served dinner in 13½ minutes.

+++

George and Ida Mae Nunn, 3 Mango, sent a card from Gaylord, Mich., saying they had a nice trip up, weather is very changeable, one day low 50s, next high 80s, and lots of rain. Having fun, say "Hello" to everybody.

+++

Ann Bartle, Cypress Dr., sends card from New Jersey Shores, saying, "Enjoyed the 4th with my family on the boardwalk, but water too cold, 68 degrees, and weather is hot. Saw wedding with everybody in shorts, including the minister."

Mable Stevens had a letter from Betty MacNab of No. 5th, from West Chester, Pa. By now, she's on her way to California and will stay there until August 15. She is fine and wants to hear from all her OBP friends...c-o Ms. H. Stern: RR4, Lot 27; West Chester, Pa.

o obey traffic laws. The attitude part of those who have been ng loudest about the law seems it it is perfectly all right to run a or make a left turn where the "No Left Turn," as long as you e to pay too much of a fine. The at drivers do not have the right the laws. If they do what they're d to do, they won't have any with the heavy fines.

Some kind of seminar is in the works for this fall on Medicare rules and regulations, if arrangements can be made for it. An HEW spokesman in Jacksonville contacted the Port St. Lucie AARP last week on this question. He is sending along detailed information, so more will be heard later on the matter.

A current book by David Hapgood, called "The Average Man Fights Back," devotes a considerable amount of space to AARP and gives it high marks for the help it has given the common man in his struggle with the establishment. The book also provides interesting information on the start of AARP, which had its origins in the insurance business. "The retired teachers' association (NRTA), which dates from 1947, had gotten into selling sure insurance to its members through an agent named Leonard Davis," Mr. Hapgood writes. "So many non-teachers wanted insurance that the AARP was founded in 1958, primarily to meet that demand. Leonard Davis became a multi-millionaire through his Colonial Penn insurance, and AARP has been growing ever since.

"AARP is a solid financial success. It depends on dues for less than half its income, the rest coming from the various services it sells its members, including low-cost drugs and travel (as well as insurance). AARP has branched out from its roots both in the services it offers and the causes it espouses. Nowadays, indeed, we find the AARP doing battle, often with great efficacy, against some of the major institutions that screw the average man of all ages."

The author points out that AARP's pharmacy program not only provides drugs and medicines at much lower cost, but also makes it a great deal easier to get these items. "Invalids and those who live far from a pharmacy find it far easier to buy by mail; and AARP sells to members on credit with, they say, only 'infinitesimal' losses. By 1975, AARP was the largest mail-order pharmacy in the nation, filling four million prescriptions a year," the book says.

Other AARP activities that come in for commendation are the income tax assistance program and the Washington "ombudsperson," Teresa Napoli, a former case worker for Congressman Albert Thomas of Texas, who helps out members "caught in the gears of government programs," such as Social Security, Medigap and food stamps.

Service to members is the bedrock of AARP, but it is also a powerful lobby, in the states as in Washington. Any organization with close to nine million members commands respect in Washington, and the AARP has a particularly responsive membership. It seems sometimes that AARP is the most effective of lobbies for the average man," Mr. Hapgood concludes.

News from V-3ers

It was indeed a pleasure to receive a card from Louise and John Campbell from Nova Scotia. They were at home only three weeks after they left Venture Out in April. They joined with Louise's brother and wife of California and have been having a good visit and trip through the Maritimes. They have been enjoying beautiful weather and scenery.

While they were here, John's three brothers and one sister stopped over for a family reunion and everyone enjoyed a barbecue.

+++

Received a letter from Roger and Mildred Farris. They had Mildred's 88-year young mother with them for a month's visit. They took her with them when they pulled their trailer up to North Carolina. The Fortins bought a trailer lot up in N.C. last year and intend to spend the summer months there

+++

Heard from Jane and Frank Nolan. Frank is feeling pretty good and they both miss Venture Out. As usual, they are busy visiting all their relatives and friends and getting their house in shape. They call often to see how everything is at Venture Three

+++

Marian and Cap Uldrick write that they had a good trip home. Stopped in Roanoke, Va., to visit their oldest daughter Joyce and her family for a week. Cap is doing well, but is working too hard in the garden and lawn. Many of his projects are completed, however, and he expects to take it easy from now on.

+++

Ruth Francu writes that she thinks she has her condominium in New Jersey sold and, when everything is settled up there, she will return to Venture Three to finish getting her new trailer set up and screen room installed. It is sad that her husband, Bill, only spent one night in their new trailer when he had his stroke and passed away. We wish Ruth success in carrying out the plans they had made

+++

Steve and Lucille Balowski stopped on the way to Michigan and had a large refrigerator put in their new travel trailer. Steve has ordered a van is anxiously awaiting its arrival.

+++

Happy birthday to Hilda Atkin on July 17.

Venture Three

By Jessie Shaver, B-3, 334-2714:

A card from Sam Tucker says that fishing is not so good, but weather is warm days and cool nights. His regards to all his friends.

+++

Martha Pierce passed on her card from Wilda and John Wilson. On their way home to Ohio, the Wilsons stopped over for three days at Outdoor Resorts at Orlando, and they also stayed two days at Jeffersonville, Ohio, to visit Wilda's sister. They, too, are enjoying warm days and cool nights. Seems as though we who remain in Venture Three, are having the hottest weather.

+++

A telephone call from Pat and Larry Belt said they were busy and looking forward to the fall and their return to Venture Three. They send their regards to all their friends and neighbors.

+++

Catherine Higgins has been busy with her grandchildren. Their oldest grandson and his wife, from New York, are here and the Higgins are entertaining them in her sister's beautiful apartment at Oceana

Ann Bromberger is in Venture Harbour for a short time. Her son brought her and they will be here long enough to straighten out some business affairs and then return to Hempstead, New York

Ann visited her daughter and family in VanNuys, California. She saw Miller Capra while there.

Ann is planning on returning to Venture Harbour later in the year. Our very sincere wishes to Ann and her family for comfort in their loss of Charlie

+++

Sincere sympathy is extended to Bob and Jan Dedaker in the loss of Bob's mother. They have returned to Venture Out St. Lucie from Indiana. One of their sons and his wife and small son came with them and will be here for a short time.

+++

Edith and Dick Painter are home again. They traveled some 9,000 miles and enjoyed the trip very much, but are glad to be home again in Venture Harbour

+++

Fran and Dick Teeter had as guests for several days, their good friends, Agnes and Bob Hogan of Annapolis and Fort Myers

+++

Joe Capra left for VanNuys, California, on Tuesday. He and Millie will return to Venture Harbour in November

The Thursday meetings for work and plans for the bazaar are in the rec hall where there is more room to work. Betty Jones has many plans and she needs all the help she can get, so please be at the hall at 1:30 every Thursday to help work

For those who are too far away to drop in, please make it your day also to work on some of your own ideas to bring back with you.

INDIAN RIVER NEWS by Ruth Balash, Lot 888, 334-1153:

Ruth and John Balash had their son, his wife, and their five-year old grandson for a two week visit. The guests enjoyed the ocean, pool and the friendly people in the park.

Grandson Brian fell in love with the swimming pool. He was in it almost all day, every day. In fact, he cried when he was told they were leaving for home. He wanted to stay with Grandma and Grandpa and the swimming pool.

PORT ST. LUCIE MAYOR William McChesney, left, and St. Lucie County Commission Chairman Ed Enns, right, headed talks during Monday's joint meeting of the city council and the county commission. The discussion centered around a request by the city for $40,000 in recreation funds from the county. No agreement was reached, but talks are expected to resume soon.

Does taxi service interfere with TV reception in PSL?

PORT ST. LUCIE--City Manager Elmer Cox has sent a letter to the Federal Communications Commission asking that the agency determine whether a local taxi service is interfering with television reception in the Prima Vista Boulevard area.

Cox's letter reads: "We have received a petition by 19 Port St. Lucie citizens complaining about the propagation of an antenna at 300 S.W. Prima Vista Boulevard which reportedly interferes with television reception in that area.

"The antenna is owned by Mr. Oleh Stowbunenko at the above address which is used in radio transmission from the base station to a taxi service. His call designation is MG-33453.

"This city will appreciate your assessment of this type of complaint since we understand Mr. Stowbunenko has installed on his transmitter a so-called 'neutralizer' which is supposedly designed to minimize interference with television reception.

"Your cooperation will be appreciated in this matter."

decision made on $40,000 quest for Sportsmans Park

HERCE--Port St. Lucie city mbers met with St. Lucie mmissioners Monday to seek county funds for improve- e city's Sportsmans Park, but al hours of discussion, no firm ere made.

his pitch for more county told the county commis- the city has no intention of own recreation department. ised the issue of double ting that the city residents portionate share of county the amount of county oney spent in the Port St.

Lucie Mayor William pointed out that the city has $100,000 on the park, located Vista Boulevard in the rt of the city, and the county out $34,000 on the park. Then t more than 50 per cent of the ing the park are from ted areas of the county.

County Commission Chairman Ed Enns said the issue was not whether the county should spend $10,000 or $40,000 on the city's park, but whether the city was ready to accept the countywide service of a recreation department program. "Do you want our services? If you do, we are ready and willing to provide them," Enns noted.

Enns later said, "I believe government comes in layers of services and I feel recreation is a county responsibility. Let's not cost the people money by a duplication of services."

Commissioner Jack Park said he would be more inclined to spend $40,000 for recreation in Port St. Lucie if the money were being spent on a county-owned park.

During the meeting the city council members were polled as to whether they would favor deeding or leasing the park to the county. They unanimously voted against it.

Commissioner Park said that as of October 1, the old recreation board, which was made up of St. Lucie County and Fort Pierce representatives, would be changed so that the county commissioners will sit as sole members of the board. He said he felt all county funds that were spent on recreation ought to be spent on facilities and programs of the recreation department and not on a city park that the county has no control over.

Commissioner W.R. "Willie" McCain said if anyone was guilty of double taxation in the matter, it was the city. However, he later said, "If I didn't think you were coming back for awhile to ask for more funds, I could go with the $40,000. But that would have to be it for awhile, to give us breathing room to spend money in other areas of the county for recreation."

Commissioner E.E. Green favored granting the city's request for $40,000. He said if the county took over the city's park and incorporated it in the county recreation department programs, the county could have to pay all of the costs for capital improvements and maintenance of the park. "If we took it over, we'd have the whole $87,000 budget that the city has worked up. This way, we'd be saving $47,000 if we left things as they are and gave them the $40,000 they want," he said.

Commissioner Park replied that if the county was running the park, it probably would not spend so much on it as the city has budgeted for it. He questioned the necessity for a building for fencing and gymnastic activities Cox has previously mentioned that building as one of the capital improvements the city has planned for the park.

Finally, the city and county officials decided that they would have to meet again, when county commissioners consider the recreation department budget. Cox said that when they return, he will bring copies of the city's master plan for the park.

Before that meeting occurs, it is possible the city council members may make a decision as to whether they would ask the county for recreation funds next year if the county grants the $40,000 request this year. Though no guarantees were made, it appeared county commissioners would be more likely to go along with the $40,000 request if they know they won't be asked to chip in a sizable amount the next year.

Cox said the $40,000 should "round out" the city's need for added facilities at the park.

BARBARA DELLAPENA, left, who is a Port St. Lucie Community Center secretary, and Mary Felice, a Port St. Lucie Bank employee, post a notice of the upcoming "Two Guitars--In Concert" show. The bank recently created the PSL Community Message Center, where notices of all civic projects are welcome. The guitar concert will be held at the Community Center on July 29.

Vans yes, semis no

PORT ST. LUCIE--City council members are in agreement that vans and pickup trucks should be allowed to park overnight in residential areas of Port St. Lucie, but they hope to come up with an ordinance prohibiting tractor trailer rigs from doing so.

The council members discussed a proposed ordinance on the regulation of trucks during a Tuesday workshop meeting. The council members a seemed to agree that it would be a hardship for a man using a pickup truck or van for a commercial business to be forced to park his vehicle away from his residence. "In some cases, that may be the only vehicle the man has. We could not tell him he could not park at his home," Mayor McChesney said.

However, the council members agreed that they do not want to allow large tractor trailer rigs to continuously park in residential areas.

"What we need is a good definition of a truck, so we can restrict what we want to restrict," Councilman Schuyler Sharpe said.

After lengthy discussion, a member of the audience suggested that the city write off for a model ordinance dealing with the problem. The council members agreed to do so.

Guitar concert and handwriting analysis set July 29

PORT ST. LUCIE--You can sit back and listen to informal instrumental guitar music and classical guitar melodies, or you can join in for group singing during a concert planned for Friday, July 29 at the Port St. Lucie Community Center.

"In Concert Two Guitars" will feature Jensen Beach guitarist Richard Myers and classical guitarist Paul Brelinski of Hollywood, Florida.

Myers and Brelinsky have appeared on national television and have played in jazz combos and bands along the Eastern Seaboard. They were also co-owners of a music store in Buffalo, N.Y., at one time.

Brelinsky has been a classical guitar instructor at the University of Buffalo, has studied in New York City under Rey DeleTorre, and once was a flutist in Myers' combo.

In addition to the musical treat, Myers will also give handwriting analysis on request. He has established a reputation in the Stuart, Jensen Beach area for being amazingly accurate and specific in his observations about the personalities of those analyzed.

Punch and light refreshments will be provided, but those who wish may bring their own bottle.

The Center will be open from 8 p.m. to midnight, with the concert program slated for 9 p.m. to 11 p.m. Tickets are $2 per person and are available at the Community Center office or from June Johnston, 878-2412, Nicki Porter, 878-2228, or Sirelsa Schreiber, 878-2701. Attendance will be limited, so persons are urged to buy tickets as soon as possible.

$800,000 center is approved

PORT ST. LUCIE--Plans for an $800,000 shopping center in Port St. Lucie moved one step closer to reality Monday when the city's Planning and Zoning Board approved a zoning change for a 5.16-acre tract the center is to be located on.

Asking for the zoning change was Paul Zinter, who wants to locate the shopping center along Port St. Lucie Boulevard between West and Bret Avenues. That's near Airoso Boulevard, the site of the city's future city hall.

Zinter noted that there will be 32,000 square feet in the center and that it will house 25 units, including a bank branch office.

The design of the shopping center is to be compatible with that of the planned city hall.

Now that the Planning and Zoning Board has approved the zoning petition, the request will go to the city council for a final decision.

In other action, the board members tabled a zoning change request for a 250-acre tract which Mobile Home Environmental Systems wants to develop into a 714-unit mobile home, community.

It was not the phasing-in costs of the police force that councilmen felt were estimated as being too low. City Manager Elmer Cox said the $102,000 should do the job. However, the committee report estimated the first year of full operation of the department, after this upcoming fiscal year, would cost $212,000 and the second year would cost $236,000--because there would not be as much equipment to be bought the second year. Those estimates were criticized as being too low, and Cox speculated that "it could cost a quarter of a million dollars the first year."

Finally, the council members decided Cox should meet with other involved to update cost estimates and to report back to the council.

Donna Petzold resigns PSL city clerk post

PORT ST. LUCIE--Donna Petzold, 27, who has been the city clerk at Port St. Lucie for more than three years, has resigned.

City Manager Elmer Cox said he accepted Mrs. Petzold's resignation with regret and noted "she has done a fine job."

He said he has appointed Catherine Merritt, who was a deputy city clerk, to serve as acting city clerk. "She will continue in that position until I name a new clerk--subject to the city council's approval," Cox said.

Cox noted that Mrs. Petzold had previously resigned as of May 2, stating that she wanted to travel through northern states with her father, then go to Europe. "But I talked to her and she reconsidered and stayed. She asked that her resignation remain on file, though, and then just recently she told me it was time for her to go north."

The job of the city clerk is to be responsible for the safekeeping of all the city records. The clerk must attend, or appoint a deputy to attend, all city council meetings and must keep minutes of the meetings.

"The resignation of Mrs. Petzold is the second recent resignation of a city employee. Last month, after only three weeks on the job, the first city planner in the city's history, Walter T. Ellsell, resigned. Cox said Ellsell's resignation came as a result of a difference in priorities between himself and Ellsell and noted one problem was that Ellsell wanted to get into administration.

Cox is now in the process of reviewing applicants for a new city planner, and he said he hopes to recommend a person for the city clerk's position to the council soon.

Pension plan pondered

PORT ST. LUCIE--City councilmen heard a proposal for a new city pension plan during a workshop meeting Tuesday, and, in spite of scheduling it for further discussion at another workshop, the council members seemed near agreement on what they want.

John Bateman of the Bateman Agency presented the proposal to the council members. Actually, Bateman noted that the council had three options. But of the three options, one plan appeared to be favored by Bateman and the council members.

Bateman noted that the council could choose to come under the state retirement system; they could opt for a 40-page "prototype" plan that would be the same for all city employees; or they could select a plan that could be individualized for each employee.

Mayor William McChesney ruled out the state retirement system. "We've been told by the League of Municipalities to avoid the state system. It's on shaky financial ground," he said. Bateman noted that the problem with the state plan is pension fund money was spent for other uses.

Bateman said under either of the other plans, the money would be guaranteed not to be spent for other purposes.

According to state law, cities must put 10.5 per cent of all city employees' gross pay into a pension plan. Bateman said that requirement would not change, no matter what plan the council members selected. He also noted that under the plan tailored for individual employees, the employees could elect to pay in as much as four and a half per cent of their gross pay. This would be in addition to what the city pays in.

Bateman said the individual plan would be cheaper because account fees and trustee fees would not be taken from money set aside for the plan. Another feature is that if an employee quits, he could "take his plan with him and it would not affect the benefits of any of the other employees."

The council members expressed preference for the individual plan, then decided to have Bateman and the Finance Committee meet soon to review details of the plan. The topic will be discussed again at a council workshop meeting on August 1.

First bank office scheduled on Island in December

STUART–Stuart National Bank has announced plans to open a full-service branch office on Hutchinson Island. The new office, the first bank facility on the island, is scheduled to open in December. Located on A1A at the intersection of the relocated McArthur Blvd., the new facility will be just west of the Elliott Museum.

Jack T. Williams, president of Stuart National, in announcing plans for the new office said, "The advent of Hutchinson Island as one of the finest residential areas on the east coast of Florida has created a demand for banking services on the island. We anticipate that the growth of residential housing on the island will accelerate rapidly in the next few years, benefitting our new office."

The bank office, which will be housed in a detached 3500 square foot building, will be part of the first phase of commercial construction at Indian River Plantation. Initially, the office will have three drive-in windows with provisions to add two more in the future.

The bank will have safe deposit [illegible], a night depository, and a spacious lobby. The exterior of the building will be in rustic cedar wood with a shake roof. A focal point of the exterior landscaping will be a large native seagrape tree which will be preserved at the construction site.

The new office will be the second branch of Stuart National Bank to be opened in 1977.

The Monterey Plaza office, which began business on January 4, was the first independent bank branch in the state under the new banking law permitting branch offices. National's main office is on East Boulevard.

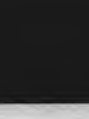
Holiday Outlines

BY RUTH HOWES 334-4946

Assisted by Elizabeth O'Donnell and Peg Hay



Although we had a rainy week, we had a good many guests in the park. Interest in purchasing lots seems high, probably because it is so nice to relax in our friendly and restful park.

+ + +

Ginny and Vince Stratford, traveling by motor home on their vacation, stopped at Doc Bennett's in Tazsi, visited friends in Kentucky, then spent two weeks with their son and his family in Freehold, N.J.

The Stratford clan celebrated the Fourth with a grand party, making the first time Vince and his three sisters were together in eight years. Then it was on to New York City for a day.

+ + +

Joe and Josie Arena left for home Thursday, intending to make many stops visiting friends enroute to New York.

+ + +

Pat O'Terri had a pleasant surprise over the weekend, a phone call from an old friend from Massachusetts over 20 years ago. Somehow they had lost tack of each other. Mr. and Mrs. Davis Lloyd, who now live in Miami, had returned to Mass and found that the O'Terris had moved to Florida, too and on Saturday, they all met at Barnard's Restaurant in Boynton Beach for a wonderful reunion. Also, the O'Terris received a photograph of their first grandchild, who was born on Fathers' Day. He is real cute.

+ + +

I had the pleasure of meeting new owners Frank and Lila Riley, who purchased Bertie Harrison's lot. They are from Miami and very happy to have a lot with the river view and good friends Harold and Mabel Theimer next door neighbors.

+ + +

Fred Greenough is home. Surgery was not done, only treatments while at the hospital, which will continue here. We are so glad he is back.

+ + +

Bill Harrison is still under treatment at home here....where he wants to be.

+ + +

Margo Milette wrote that Lou had an operation in May, but made a very rapid recovery, and is fine now.

+ + +

Grace Carson said their trip to Chicago in the motor home was terribly hot as the generator could not handle the air conditioning in the bus.

The play in which their granddaughter is appearing was fantastic, and the Carsons were invited to a cast party at a beautiful Lake Forrest estate after the opening performance, so the trip to Chicago was very stimulating.

+ + +

Flora and Dave McCarthy left last week for Maryland to baby sit their son's home and family cat. When their son and his family return, the McCarthys will take off for visits to other family and friends in New England and Ohio.

Happy birthday wishes go this week to Harriet Dublon, July 31; Herb Rough, July 22; Mark Sumner, July 23; Debbie Nash, July 24; Ruth Trupiano, July 28.

NG—These horses tied in the parking lot of the Winn ping Center Tuesday attracted some strange looks from passing motorists looking for parking spaces. Though the horses were tied in a no parking zone, they didn't appear afraid of getting a ticket.

State women's softball tourney here this week

JENSEN BEACH—The first Florida's Women's Class B Slow Pitch Softball Championship tournament will be played in Jensen Beach this weekend. Games begin Friday evening at 7 p.m., and feature the nine top teams in the state.

The weekend tournament at Langford Park will feature all nine state teams playing on Friday in five games, with seven games on Saturday, beginning at 10 a.m., and four games on Sunday beginning at 10 a.m., including the final championship game in the double elimination tournament.

County Commissioner Frank Wacha, chairman of the event, told The Mirror that the nine teams include the winner and runner-up of each of the four American Softball Association districts in Florida, and the host team, the Martin County Sailfish All-Stars.

Teams are coming from Ft. Walton Beach, Quincy, Titusville, Satellite Beach, Arcadia, Lakeland, Oakland Park and Plantation. Wacha said there would be no entry fee, and added that funding would be obtained from donations and the concession stands, added to donations from local businesses.

This is the first state championship of the Class B Slow Pitch division, organized when the open division became so competitive that it was almost professional, Wacha said. He added that next year there would be a past-champion added to the nine team list.

The first game, at 7 p.m. Friday, will feature the Patrick AFB Rookies (Satellite Beach) versus Plantation. Then there will be two games at 8:15. One of the games will feature the Martin County All-Stars versus Ft. Walton Beach.

Chamber secretary on vacation

JENSEN BEACH—Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce Secretary Helen Richardson will be on vacation for three weeks, but arrangements have been made to have the office open, at least part-time.

"The chamber will be open from 9 a.m. to noon each day," Chamber President Jack Klett said. "If I'm not there in the office there are a couple of other people who will be."

Klett added that he would welcome anyone who might want to volunteer to help in the chamber office.

"If anyone wants to volunteer, we can use all the help we can get," Klett said. "Even if its only for one day."

has become famous, or among boaters who travel the Waterway, and it is now d to the point that the area ollars in transient boating the unpredictable inlet.

ely, the problem need not the failure of inlet funding ce 1965 by the Congress, re of the Martin County to convince Congress of the the need of the inlet.

al years, owners and elopers of Sailfish Point, Mobil Oil, have offered to inlet, making it safe for nly thing they ask is that they be allowed to use the dredged sand on the point to bring property up to development levels.

Despite the promise of a safe inlet, the two groups of persons interested in a safe inlet, the Martin County Anglers Club and the Stuart Sailfish Club, have remained silent on the project. Both have on-going committees working on the project.

Unfortunately, committee meetings are devoted to writing letters to congressmen and senators, and seeking the master planned inlet project, costing multi-millions, instead of seeking a step-by-step inlet improvement.

"We do not want to endanger the entire project, even if the dredging would make the inlet safe," said Fred Duchanek, president of the Anglers Club.

Duchanek admitted that he wasn't aware of the offer to dredge the inlet by Mobil, saying, "This is news to me." But, he admitted that the club hasn't been actively meeting for several months, and the next meeting would be in the second week in September.

He firmly stated that the problem with the river was that "... we are losing our fisheries due to the lack of outer shelf waters coming in because of that stinking inlet."

Duchanek discussed the inlet dredging by Mobil Oil with other conservation leaders Monday evening, and told The Mirror Tuesday that if the Corps of Engineers gave the permits to dredge to Mobil, the Anglers Club, Stuart Sailfish Club and Martin County Conservation Alliance would support the dredging.

"But, we don't want to get the Corps angry if we start pulling in opposite directions now that they are actively supporting the inlet project for the first time," he said.

His statement put the burden of production on the back of Mobil and its representatives.

However, County Commissioner Frank Wacha told The Mirror Tuesday that he welcomed the support of the various groups toward "making the inlet a safe navigational inlet."

Commissioner Tom Higgins, the county's representative on the inlet problem, was out of town and not available for comment.

BYPASSING—Many large boats bypass the Jensen Beach-Port Salerno area due to the unsafe St. Lucie Inlet, costing local marinas and shops millions of dollars a year. But, the safety of the inlet comes second to the politics of local groups that do not want to endanger the federal pot at the end of the rainbow—a pot that has been sought for over twenty years as boats and lives are lost in the dangerously shoaled waters of an inlet that could be made safe with locally financed dredging.

Sewall's Point flood insurance is topic

SEWALL'S POINT—Acceptance of a report on federally funded flood insurance will be the topic of a presentation tonight (Wednesday) at the town hall of Sewall's Point. The report is being made by California based Tetra Tech.

Glenn C. Woodard, Jr., regional director for the Federal Insurance Administration, HUD, said recently that the study would establish first floor heights above the 100-year flood level on all new buildings in Sewall's Point.

The report should also establish some levels of present housing in the area, and reveal the dangers of present housing levels to the 100-year flood tide.

The 100-year flood is established as the highest point a flood would reach during a hurricane or storm during that period.

The federally funded insurance is designed to offset high-cost flood insurance, and under the emergency program, residents are able to buy insurance to $35,000 on the home and $10,000 on the contents of the home, much less than the value of the many expensive homes in the community.

When the results of the study are adopted, actuarial rates will be used for additional coverage when the town is entered into the national program.

Construction of buildings in the town will be required to meet the requirements of the 100-year flood level, but some "hardship" cases could create variances for some property owners.

The meeting is designed to provide information to residents of the community on the flood hazard information and allow input into the planning for future flood standards of the community.

ed that former owner Klett will be a full-time employe and Doug Hess, and employe of the store under Klett's ownership, will do part-time work.

"We want everyone to know that the store will maintain the standards it has for the past 21 years," Stewart said. "We will offer friendly, fast and efficient service and we will back up anything that we sell."

Stewart's wife, Carol, will help keep the books and do other chores around the store "as long as I don't have to handle the shrimp," she said.

The Snook Nook offers a complete line of fishing tackle, tackle repairs, live bait, frozen bait, fresh frozen seafood, gas, beer and ice.

The store also offers wet storage for small boats.

NEW OWNERS—Tom and Carol Stewart are the new owners of Snook Nook Bait and Tackle. They intend to continue the informal "porkbarrel" atmosphere the Snook Nook has maintained for the past 21 years.

Jensen youngsters may play soccer at FIT

JENSEN BEACH—Negotiations are under way between Florida Institute of Technology and Martin County that could lead to youth soccer leagues playing on the local college campus.

The county commission last week approved tentatively the one-dollar a year lease of the field that would permit the county to improve the field for use by both local youngsters and college students.

The same arrangement has led to the use of Langford Park as a major center of recreation for the Jensen Beach area.

The county attorney is presently drawing up the lease for the use of the field, Frank Wacha, county commissioner said Monday. "We hope to have it signed as soon as possible."

Local civic clubs have donated various materials and equipment to improve the field, which was to have been in use last year, but failure to have the funding to complete the field has kept it out of use as a combination soccer field, football field and recreation area, according to Tom Tenley, dean of the school.

FIT has an intercollegiate soccer team that would use the talents of members to teach the local youngsters to compete in the low-cost game under leagues set up by the Langford Park Optimists.

'Just somethin' different'

Goin' to the mountains

BY DICK CAMPBELL

JENSEN BEACH–Jimmy Dean, 52, popular local auto mechanic, is "goin' to the mountains." He plans to move the end of this week, and won't be coming back to Jensen Beach, except for an occasional visit.

It took five years for Jimmy Dean and his wife, Elsie, a former Mirror circulation manager, to build the mountain cabin they plan to make home near Ellijay, Georgia, a small community in the mountainous area of north Georgia.

"We did it on vacation. I would take four to six weeks each year, and we would work on it during the vacation," Dean said.

Asked why he planned to leave Jensen Beach, Dean shrugged, and said, "I don't really know. It's just something different, just for a change."

But Dean and his wife have made many friends among the members of the Ellijay Lions Club, so they will have a base of social life from which to work.

He was president of the local Jensen Beach Lions Club in 1963, and that has been his civic responsibility through the years since he came to the area 11 years ago.

Moving to Jensen Beach in 1958, Dean and his wife began to grow with the area. He was a mechanic with the former Bill Greene Chevrolet Company at first; then, in 1960, became the mechanic at Chick York's Standard Station. He has stayed there since, even after York retired and Bill Crooks bought and renamed the station Skyline Standard a few years ago. The station is located at Skyline Drive and Commercial Street.

Dean will miss his many friends in the area, especially the many members of the Lions Club he has known over the years. But he plans to be active in the Lions in Ellijay, and "if you're ever up our way, drop by. We'd love to see you."

G–Jimmy Dean, one of the most popular mechanics in Jensen Beach, will g town next week for his new home in Ellijay, Georgia.

Judge rules ordinance is constitutional

FORT PIERCE–St. Lucie County Judge E.P. DePriest has ruled that Port St. Lucie's controversial lawn ordinance, which outlaws lawns over six inches tall, is constitutional.

The ruling came during a hearing last week when Port St. Lucie resident Robert Schweiger, 1738 S.E. Clairmont St., sought to have the charge against him dismissed.

Schweiger's attorney, C.R. McDonald of Fort Pierce, presented a motion for dismissal on grounds that the Port St Lucie lawn ordinance was unconstitutional. He told the judge that a similar ordinance in Wisconsin was ruled unconstitutional.

However, after hearing arguments, Judge DePriest ruled that the city's ordinance is constitutional. Following that ruling, Schweiger made a surprise move by withdrawing his not guilty plea and entering a plea of no contest. Then the judge fined Schweiger $25 plus court costs.

Schweiger, who told the judge he wanted his home to blend in with its surroundings and that he felt he had a right to allow weeds and scrub brush to grow more than six inches tall, had originally planned on a jury trial. But when the judge ruled the ordinance legal, Schweiger decided to enter the no contest plea, then to appeal the case to Circuit Court, where he feels he has a good chance of having Judge DePriest's ruling overturned. McDonald explained that a jury trial would not have been helpful in getting the ordinance off the books because a jury cannot rule on the constitutionality of a law.

Crossroads under new management

JENSEN BEACH–George and Phyllis Chazmar have purchased the Crossroads Cottage Colony on SR 707 in Jensen Beach. The Port Salerno couple have four children: David, 21; Donna, 18; Donald, 16; and Dorothy, 13.

Lobster season begins August 1

ON ISLAND–"If there is hat's better than eating atching them. The hunt is exciting thing," observed after participating in the y lobster season.
the hunt is always more here is a catch. There were many reports of divers coming back emptyhanded last week.

But Nahm went on a "hunt" with Chris Perry and Bob Fenton, two local residents who grew up diving on the reefs along the Martin County coast. For them, the hunt was a total success: on the first day they caught five lobster, including a whopping eight-pounder that Fenton wrestled out from under a rock ledge. On the second day the trio bagged nine "bugs", as local divers call them.
Nahm proved to be a quick learner by coming up with a five-pounder.

"It is illegal to take eggers or shorts, and, when you're catching them you should be careful not to break off legs and antenna in case it turns out what you're grabbing is a short or egger and has to be released."

A photo feature by Bob Fryer

On the second day, the divers released two eggers and three shorts. Again, the divers were out early that day. Only this time the weather was much calmer and diving conditions were excellent. "The visibility was perfect, almost the best I've seen. You could see 50, maybe even 60 feet," Perry said.

Within two hours, the divers had captured nine bugs and were on their way back home. "We passed a lot of boats just headed out for the reefs, and along the reef we ran across one guy with all kinds of tanks and equipment in his boat. He said he hadn't spotted a thing and asked how we were doing. We just grinned," Fenton said.

While Perry and Fenton make it look and sound easy, lobster diving can be a dangerous sport. Moray eels often lurk under rock ledges, and are known for their nasty disposition, sharp teeth and poisonous bite. Sharks, though usually just as content to get out of a diver's way as a diver is to get out of their way, may sometimes attack.

But probably the most dangerous thing about the sport is inexperienced divers, attempting to use equipment they are not familiar with. During the two-day season last week, divers in Boynton Beach, at the Jupiter Inlet and at the Port Pierce Inlet lost their lives.
In at least two of those cases, the divers were not familar with their equipment.

POUNDER–Bob Fenton of Seminole Shores monster-sized lobster on the first day of last week's two-day season. Fenton has been skin diving in local waters for years and says this is the biggest lobster he has ever caught.

CHRIS PERRY AND BOB FENTON display their catch of nine lobster on the second day of last week's short season. The regular season opens Monday, Aug. 1, and lasts until March 31, 1978. Not shown is Chris Nahm, who caught a five pound "bug".

Last week's two-day season was exclusively for non-commercial divers.
Starting next Monday, Aug. 1, the regular lobster season opens and will last until March 31, 1978.

Fenton and Perry have been diving for years, and their success lies in the experience and teamwork rather than in fancy equipment.

One thing they've learned to do is to get on the reef early, before hordes of other divers show up and pick the rocks clean.

So, in spite of heavy seas on the first day, Fenton piloted his 14-foot Boston Whaler through the St. Lucie Inlet and was dropping anchor over a reef several miles south of the inlet shortly after sunrise.

Unlike many other divers out for bugs that day, Fenton and Perry and Nahm did not have SCUBA tanks. Their equipment consisted of masks, snorkels, flippers and gloves (to protect their hands against the spiny prongs on the lobster's carapace). Perry also had a wet suit, which supposedly provides protection from scrapes against rocks or from poison needles of sea urchins. In spite of the suit, he received several urchin punctures.

Without tanks, diving for bugs can be hard work. Time and time again the trio would surface for air, take a deep gulf, then plunge down to the ocean floor.

"It's in the shape of the rocks. They hide out under the rocks for protection from predators. Sometimes you can spot their antenna sticking out from the rocks, but a lot of times you have to just get down there and look all around. With time, you get so you can pick out rocks that are likely to have lobster under them," Perry told Nahm.

"The two of them, Perry and Fenton, worked as a team, and I think that's the main reason they're so good. It's easier to get bugs when you're working with four hands instead of two," Nahm said.

"When one of them would spot a bug, they'd surface and plan a strategy. Then they'd go down and one would go up under the rock while the other would guard the most likely escape route. A lot of times one of them would chase the lobster right into the other's hands," Nahm explained.

When the divers made a catch, they would check it to see if it was an "egger" (a female bearing bright orange eggs under its carapace) or a "short" (a lobster with a carapace less than three inches long or a tail, excluding muscle tissue, less than five and a half inches long).

Sea turtles is topic for local anglers

PORT ST. LUCIE–Dewey Worth will be the guest speaker during the next regular meeting of the Port St. Lucie Anglers Club and his topic will be the nesting habits and preferences of sea turtles.

The group will meet August 2 at 7:30 p.m. in the North Port Marina on Prima Vista Boulevard.

In Appreciation

I would like to express my very warmest thanks to the Jensen Beach Lions Clubs, our family, friends and neighbors for their kind contributions, in lieu of flowers, to the Martin County Council on Aging in memory of my husband, Escott Kirkbride. Also for their prayers, flowers, cards and many kind deeds.

A warm thank you, too, to the Jensen Beach-Rio Ambulance and the doctors and nurses at Martin Memorial Hospital. Bless you all.

Mrs. Escott (Edith) Kirkbride

Helen Allison joined the trio to return home. They made stops at Atlantic City, Lancaster, Pa. (Amish country) where they enjoyed the renowned dinners, Hershey, Pa., taking the tour of Hershey World. They also stopped at Anthony, W. Va., to visit good friends Marvin and Evie Smith, formerly of H.O., finding the Smiths in good health and Marvin busy building their new home. At this time I would like to correct an item about the new lot they purchased. It was lot 3, not 1, making them the owners of lots 2, 3 and 4. They sold lot 4 last year. Sorry, Helen.

Charlie Blake came into the park on Friday and stayed just long enough to hitch his trailer and tow it back to Ft. Myers. Charlie, an independent casualty insurance adjuster, had just returned home from a six week stint assessing flood damage claims in West Virginia and Kentucky. He had grim stories to relate of storm toils in those states. He told of standing 300 feet up the side of a mountain where a mobile home had been and looking downhill at a small creek. During the storm, the creek had risen 300 feet up the mountain and swept the home away.

Now Charlie is headed for Johnston, Pa. This time he is taking the trailer, figuring it may be an extended trip.

Charlie made a survey of our condominium's insurance needs last year at the request of the board of directors as a service to us all. He made several suggestions which were helpful to the board. We are fortunate to have people like him interested in making Holiday Out the pleasant place it is.

A welcome innovation was the appearance of Don R. White, an AARP charter member, who spoke on the decision of the Public Service Commission granting Southern Bell a rate increase of $133.5 million. Don said he was appearing as an advocate for the consumer. He reviewed what the rate increase meant, including the fact that Florida will now be the only state in the union where it is going to cost a quarter to make a call from a coin phone.

He mentioned his activity as a board member of the Coalition of Florida Consumers, which fought the request of Florida Power & Light for a rate increase, and said that it behooves AARP members to follow such matters and to make their voices heard. "It is time for us to begin to pay more attention to what they are doing with our tax dollars," he said.

It is not often we have members discussing important matters, and we could use more of it. Nice going, Don.

Esther Thompson, standing in for Membership Chairman Morgan Jones, one of the absentees, reported that we now have 281 members. That was before a flurry of requests for membership application blanks later on, so it is not beyond the realm of possibility that our membership will push beyond 290.

Quite a few members acquired the name tags received from national headquarters. These tags are a great convenience -- they let you know who your fellow members are.

The 50-50 drawings were won by Al Tashi and Miriam Jencks. When it came time for the door prize drawing, the first winner didn't want the plant; the second one, Mrs. Jencks, suggested another drawing be made since she had won a 50-50 prize; and the winner finally turned out to be Peter Syzak. Guess who won the drawing calling names out of the bowl? None other than Muriel Syzak, who performs this chore every meeting. Congratulations to the winners.

The final item on the agenda was a vote to suspend the membership meeting of August. So, the next gathering of the membership will be the third Thursday in September.

By Jessie Shaver, B-2, 234-7714:

All of us would like to take this opportunity to thank Jessie Shaver for the great job she has been doing writing this column. It is a hard job because the news does not just flow in - Jessie has to go out and shake the bushes to get something to write about.

We all owe her a big vote of thanks because we enjoy reading the column to find out what everyone is doing, and we really appreciate her good work and effort.

Keep your letters, cards and calls coming with the news to support Jessie's column to report all the Venture Three news.

The Shavers plan to be back in time for our Wednesday night pot luck dinner, because these dinners are just too good to miss. Vita Autenreith supplied two gourmet Italian dishes recently for 14 and 16 people and she certainly had appreciative diners.

All of the dinners have been exceptionally good, and we surely do look forward to them each Wednesday.

Dalton Neale purchased lots in Palm Lake Park back in the pre-development days of 1955 and always looked forward to retirement so he could build and be one of the neighbors.

The time has come for retirement and Dalton came down here in April and discussed a dwelling with a neighbor builder. Then he decided to do something about the ditches going through his property.

Now, in order to locate his exact property lines, it required several hundred dollars for surveying, and to learn that the ditches were all on his property, not equalized with the neighboring properties. So he decided to put culverts in over 400 feet of the ditches, plus fill to equalize the surface.

Relieved of over $4,000 so far, and not one shovel of dirt patched for the new home, Dalton has given up the idea and has joined the many who are purchasing land sites in North Carolina. The dwelling negotiations have been cancelled.

Fund drive to help pay Billy's medical costs

BY BOB FRYER

PORT ST. LUCIE–Most persons don't even have two major operations in their lifetime, but little Billy West of Port St. Lucie had that many by the time he was six weeks old.

Today, Billy is a little over two and a half years old, and in his short life, he has had a host of medical problems.

Billy was born with bronchial asthma, has had an operation for a congenital opening in his stomach, and had three others for hernias.

He cannot sit up, or walk or talk, and he has difficulty eating.

Billy has been going to doctors all of his young life, and right now he is at the John F. Kennedy Institute (also known as the Johns Hopkins Hospital) in Baltimore, Md. Some doctors have diagnosed his condition as cerebral palsy, but others disagree. Billy's parents, Frank and Wanda West of 481 Elmore Street, are hoping the doctors at the Kennedy Institute can once and for all find out exactly what is wrong, and, most importantly, find a cure for him. Billy's grandmother, Mrs. June Hitt, sums it up this way, "We're hoping for a miracle."

Needless to say, the medical bills for Billy have been exorbitant. Just a room at the Kennedy Institute, without doctors or medical expenses, is costing about $175 a day. "He went up there on July 11, and we have no idea how long they'll keep him there," Mrs. Hitt says.

Billy's father works for EBASCO services at the nuclear power plant on Hutchinson Island, but his medical insurance does not cover all the bills. So, a fund drive has been started for Billy. An account has been opened at the Port St. Lucie Bank, and those who wish to contribute may make deposits in the "William R. West Fund".

Additionally, the fund committee is seeking any other assistance in organizing and working at fund raising activities. If you want to help, call Mrs. Hitt at 878-3481, or Mrs. Gail Fink, Billy's aunt, at 465-9756.

Several fund raising activities are already planned. They include a roast beef dinner, sponsored by the VFW Post 3064 of Fort Pierce. The dinner will be held at the Post headquarters. Tickets are $3 per person and the dinner is on Aug. 7.

American Legion Post 49 of Fort Pierce will have an all-you-can-eat spaghetti dinner on Aug. 14. Tickets for that are $2.50.

Mrs. Hitt says plans are also underway for a barbeque pork lunch at the Stuart Causeway on Labor Day, Sept. 5. The dinner will include baked beans and cole slaw, and whatever the fund raisers can get donated. More details about the lunch, which starts at noon, will be announced later. But those who want to buy tickets for it can do so by contacting Mrs. Hitt, Mrs. Fink, or Ronnie Hill at 465-3386. The tickets are $3 for adults, $1.50 for children.

To date, about $500 is in the fund, but Mrs. Hitt says, "We don't know what the medical bills will total, but we know they will be a lot and that what we have raised so far is not going to be nearly enough."

A FUND DRIVE has been started for Billy West, of Port St. Lucie, who has been troubled since birth with a host of medical problems.

DIN, president of the Port St. Lucie Community Center, announced that a up may locate at the Center complex.

Theatre group may build $200,000 home

BY BOB FRYER

PORT ST. LUCIE–Port St. Lucie may have a home based community theatre group 13 years ahead of schedule if an agreement can be reached between directors of the St. Lucie Community Theatre, Inc. and the Port St. Lucie Community Center (formerly DESA).

Dicky Lundin, director of the community center, said the theatre group is interested in "discussing the possibility they might take over a site in our master plan and build their building, at their expense, on our land."

The theatre group recently announced that they hoped to build a $200,000 theatre in which to base their operations, but indicated they had not located a site.

Though Lundin said things were still in the "preliminary talking stage", he expressed optimism that talks on Wednesday night, July 27, would be fruitful.

Community Center director Bob Seeley, Lundin and Community Center trustee Don White were scheduled to talk with Bill Braun, head of the community theatre group, and other directors of the group. Lundin said it would be an informal meeting at Seeley's office Wednesday night.

Lundin did not say how soon the theatre building could be constructed if an agreement is reached, but if the theatre group came here this year, it would be 13 years ahead of schedule.

A master plan for the community center complex projects 1990 as the year for Phase VI. "That is when we planned to build a theatre building ourselves. This way, St. Lucie Community Theatre, Inc., would operate it, but it would be here much sooner, as another cultural aspect of our center. It would be an asset, if it can be done," Lundin said.

In fact, the theatre could arrive before Phase III, which is due for groundbreaking in October and completion 18 months to two years later.

Already, the first two phases of the community center have been built, though the center is still one building. The first phase was the $47,000 Kellstadt Room, begun in 1971 and opened in April 1972. Phase II, a $70,000 addition which seats 300 persons, has two storage rooms, an office, lounge and snack bar, was finished in October 1975. Lundin says the second phase is paid for and there is still a $26,000 mortgage on the first phase.

"But we are a growing community and we can not afford to remain stagnant. So we have come up with an ambitious plan to build Phase III and, the beauty of the plan is that it will be paid for as it is built. It may take a while longer, but we feel a pay as you go method will work and be cheaper," Lundin said.

Jensen Beach Architect Paul Henderson has already drafted a 4700 square foot floor plan with a width of 65 feet and a length of 70 feet.

The new building is to be connected to the present center, at its rear side, by a corridor. When partitions are pulled back, this will mean a 70-foot long by 44-foot wide dining area can be added to the dining area in the existing building. A full scale catering kitchen will be located for easy access to both rooms.

When partitions are drawn the new building will house classrooms for ceramics, sewing and art. Dressing and storage rooms will be included, and kilns are planned for the ceramics storage room.

Already there is nearly enough money raised to pay for an $8,000 slab and foundation, and Lundin says he hopes groundbreaking can occur by October 15. "By the time we finish it and equip it the way we want to, it will cost about $100,000.

"You have to put the slab out and show people there it is and they'll donate," Lundin says, noting that he expects it to take 18 months to two years to raise the money and finish the building.

One fund raiser the community center directors plan is a repeat of a flea market that recently raised $2,300. In fact, a $2,000 storage shelter will soon be added to the community center to store donations of second hand items until there are enough to hold another flea market. Lundin and Guy Bruni, head of the fund raising committee, hope to pull off three to four flea markets a year. "We want people to donate their things to us instead of having their own garage or yard sales or instead of tossing them out when they move. We want appliances, furniture, most anything resaleable," Lundin noted.

In addition to the flea market storage room, to be finished by mid-September, a number of fund raising activities are planned. They include golf, bowling and shuffleboard tournaments, a mid-winter carnival, a celebrity banquet and a house to house canvasing campaign.

Lundin said after phase III is finished, pahse IV and V, both classroom buildings, are indicated on the master plan, though there is no time schedule for them. However, if phase VI comes early, it may be enough of an attraction that it could help speed up the rest of the center's development.

uakers snagged again in bid for church

BY BOB FRYER

T. LUCIE–An eight-month group of Quakers to build a Port St. Lucie hit another snag hen city council members only three council members present, the decision was to table the matter until the Aug. 9 council meeting. At that time, if there are enough council members present, the issue will most likely be formally sent back to the Planning and Zoning Board for further study.

Howard Chittenden presented a 30-page report to the council which basically opposed the C-1 classification because he said it could allow "playground and recreational facilities."

City Attorney Spencer Gilbert said he met with Planning and Zoning Board members and recommended the C-1 designation for the church land. He explained that the C-1 class allows for restrictions, and the proposed ordinance specifically excludes "separate ofices and office buildings, recreational facilities, including ball diamonds, tennis courts, shuffleboard courts, playground equipment, and parachial schools and parochial school classrooms."

The tract in question is a nine-acre piece of land along Morningside Boulevard in a residential area.

Residents opposing the zoning change repeatedly said they did not object to the church, but opposed the zoning classification. They said that once the classification is granted, the church could sell part or all of the land and that the new owners could use the property for non-religious purposes. They pointed out that the church group is small and may not be financially able to maintain the large tract.

The Rev. Ben Agler, pastor of the "Morningside Friends Church" told the group, "We're not a monster coming in to destroy you or eat you alive. I don't care what the land is zoned as; all I want is a house of worship for God." He said in spite of what the people in the audience said, it appeared they were opposing not the classification, but the church.

Originally, a site plan submitted for the nine-acre tract included plans for a softball diamond, basketball and tennis courts and a playground. But Rev. Agler said after initial opposition to those facilities was raised, those items were deleted from the site plans.

"I don't care what numbers or letters they assign to the zoning. We did not ask for C-1. That's what the Planning and Zoning Boards said our plans would fit under. They can make it whatever classification they want, so long as it allows us to build a church. That's all we want," Rev. Agler said after the meeting.

He denied rumors that the church would be a "central headquarters" to attract Quakers from all over the nation. "We're not going to import Friends and Quakers. We just want to introduce our God to the community."

Some residents said the C-1 zoning would permit camping grounds, recreational vehicles and buses on the land. "I don't know where that comes from, but we aren't asking for that," Rev. Agler said.

Pete Arnold, a church member, said, "We're here out of love and we just want to build a house of worship...We've been eight months trying to get a church and we've adhered to everything you've asked. We had hoped to get a building permit within 10 days of today, but now we're delayed again."

Council members present were Mayor William McChesney and Councilmen Schuyler Sharpe and Merle Anderson.

Mayor McChesney noted he had received 56 letters from persons opposed to the zoning change. Also, a petition with signatures of 110 persons opposed to the change was presented to the council members Tuesday.

"Nobody is against your church. It's just that people are concerned about zoning for churches and we don't want C-1 zoning. It's not a religious matter; it's a zoning matter," said Tony Jalicenti.

If, as expected, the matter is referred back to the Planning and Zoning Board, it could not be discussed until Aug. 15, when that board meets again. It is also likely that once that board officially gets the matter, a public hearing will have to called and advertised for.

CHITTENDEN–Opposition to nge for a Quaker church in ie was presented in a 30-page ittenden read to the city

REV. BEN AGLER–The pastor of the Morningside Friends Church said he doesn't care what the church's land is zoned as, so long as his group can build a house of worship.

STATE COMPTROLLER–Gerald Lewis, state comptroller, addressed the Florida Sheriff's Association convention at the Sandpiper Bay Resort Tuesday on the "White Collar Crime Connection".

Gerald Lewis calls for stiffer white collar crime penalties

PORT ST. LUCIE–State Comptroller Gerald Lewis addressed sheriffs from throughout the state Tuesday and told them of the need to "arm our citizens with information" on how to avoid con men and white collar criminals.

Lewis attacked the courts for laxity in sentencing white collar criminals. "Even when convicted, the white collar criminal too often gets a slap on the wrist, and he is usually involved in another scheme before the court file is even closed."

Lewis said the state needs, and is finally getting, stronger laws against white collar crime.

"We need the combination of more prosecutions, stiffer sentences, and educated consumers, the potential victims of all crime, to effectively reduce white collar crime," he said, adding that often, "Gullibility is the villain, almost as much as the criminal."

Lewis said his office has increased its efforts to put a stop to fraudulent investment schemes, "including the so-called 14 per cent securities mortgage fraud, one of the most massive investment schemes in Florida's history."

The occasion for Lewis' speech was a convention of the Florida Sheriff's Association, which began Sunday, July 24, and lasts until Wednesday, July 27. Other speakers slated to address the sheriffs include State Treasurer and Insurance Commissioner Bill Gunther and Norman A. Carlson, director of the Federal Bureau of Prisons.

Martin County Sheriff James Holt and St. Lucie County Sheriff Lannie Norvell are hosting the convention.

City planner by September

PORT ST. LUCIE–City Manager Elmer Cox announced Tuesday that he confident the city will have a new city planner "by September 1."

Cox made his report to city council members, explaining that he has completed interviews with two applicants and will interview to more persons for the job soon.

The city hired a planner in May, but after three weeks on the job, the planner, Walter Ellwell of Sarasota, quit. Cox said Ellwell was capable to handle the job, but that he and Ellwell had differences of opinion on priorities for the position.

PSL busing issue in hands of federal judge

BY BOB FRYER

FORT PIERCE–The fate of where approximately 875 fourth and fifth grade students in Port St. Lucie will attend school this year is in the hands of Federal District Judge Clyde C. Atkins of Miami, who is expected to make a decision soon.

Judge Atkins conducted a hearing Monday in Fort Pierce to determine whether the students should be allowed to remain at Port St. Lucie Elementary School and attend classes in portables or whether they should be bused some 15 to 15 miles to St. Lucie Elementary (formerly St. Lucie Middle) in Fort Pierce.

The hearing was prompted by the Bi-Racial Advisory Committee, which objects to current St. Lucie County school board plans to move eight portables to Port St. Lucie Elementary and to keep the fourth and fifth graders at that school.

School Superintendent Dr. Nolan Skinner testified that he originally recommended to the school board that the fourth and fifth grade Port St. Lucie students be bused to St. Lucie Elementary.

"We were faced with severe overcrowding at Port St. Lucie Elementary, and after looking at all the other alternatives for relieving the problem, including double sessions, I recommended moving the fourth and fifth graders to St. Lucie Elementary. The school board unanimously accepted the recommendation," Dr. Skinner told the judge.

However, when Port St. Lucie parents of the students learned of the plan, they attended school board meetings and objected. They suggested moving portable classrooms to Port S. Lucie Elementary to relieve the overcrowding rather than have their students bused to Fort Pierce. They were told there were not enough portables available.

In the meantime the Bi-Racial Advisory Committee, which was set up as a result of a 1972 court order to desegregate St. Lucie County Schools, reviewed the school board's plan to send the fourth and fifth graders to St. Lucie Elementary. The committee acts as an advisory group to the federal court and has the responsibility of letting the court know whether the school system is complying with desegregation orders. The committee approved the move of the fourth and fifth graders.

Then Port St. Lucie parents told school board members they would raise funds to buy portables if that meant their children could remain at Port St. Lucie Elementary. Dr. Skinner recommended to the school board that such action be taken and the school board members agreed to do so, provided the Bi-Racial Committee and the court agreed.

Bi-Racial Advisory Committee Chairwoman Linda Neumann testified that the committee, composed of six whites and six blacks, expressed concern over the plan to have parents pay for portables and voiced a second concern that they had already approved the school board's student assignment plan and did not want to see it changed.

About this time the school board learned that a state grant of $197,500 had been approved for a deaf education program to be located in St. Lucie County to serve deaf students from St. Lucie, Martin, Indian River and Okeechobee Counties. The board had expected a $250,000 grant, which would have been enough to construct a new center for the program. But when it was learned only $197,500 was approved, Dr. Skinner said he recommended that several classrooms in St. Lucie Elementary School be renovated for that purpose. To do so would mean there would not be room there for Port St. Lucie's fourth and fifth graders.

At the next school board meeting, Dr. Skinner announced that eight portables, including two at St. Lucie Elementary that at first were thought not to be transportable, could be moved to Port St. Lucie and that no financial aid from the parents would be necessary. He recommended moving the portables to Port St. Lucie Elementary, keeping the fourth and fifth graders there, and renovating other classrooms at St. Lucie Elementary for the deaf education program. The school board approved the recommendation in late May.

However, as the stirring around the portables at St. Lucie Elementary was being removed in preparation for their transportation to Port St. Lucie, the federal court hearing was called and an order was issued by Dr. Skinner not to move the classrooms until the matter was resolved.

Dr. Skinner and school board members told the judge Monday that their decision to keep the fourth and fifth grade students at Port St. Lucie Elementary was not racially motivated and that, to the best of their knowledge, that was not the motivation of the parents. "They just did not want their students to have to be transported into Fort Pierce. They wanted them to attend school close to home," Dr. Skinner said.

Testimony indicated that when the school opened in February, 1974, only three black children attended Port St. Lucie Elementary. Before the next school year began the school board sent letters to black parents, informing them they could send their children to the Port St. Lucie school. During the 1975-6 school year a total of 25 blacks attended the school, and last year there were 29 black students, representing about three per cent of the school's population. That makes the school the least segregated school in the county.

Father Richard Barry, who was an intervenor in a court suit that resulted in the 1973 desegregation order, testified Monday that he felt the school board's efforts to recruit more blacks to the Port St. Lucie school were inadequate. No recruitment efforts have been made in the last two years, it was pointed out.

Another point brought out, however, is that even if the fourth and fifth graders at Port St. Lucie Elementary are bused to St. Lucie Elementary, they will not be mixed with the first through third graders there. So, while the students would be in a school with more blacks, they would remain in basically segregated classrooms. And, under the original plan to move out the fourth and fifth graders, no plans were made to move more blacks into the first three grades of Port St. Lucie Elementary.

School Board Attorney Fred Fee III presented the school board's case, U.S. Justice Department Attorney Anita Marshall of Washington, D.C., and intervenor Attorney Ralph Flowers of Fort Pierce presented the case against the school board.

Since school starts soon, Judge Atkins promised a prompt ruling in the case. It is not known whether he will order the fourth and fifth graders to St. Lucie Elementary this year. However, Mrs. Neumann and Father Barry both stated that even if it does not occur this year, it is almost inevitable that Port St. Lucie Elementary will have to be "paired" with a predominately black elementary school (most likely Francis K. Sweet or Garden City) in the next year or two in order to bring about more racial balance in attendance figures. Pairing a school means roughly half the students in one school attendance zone would be assigned to the other school and vice versa. This would result in extensive cross-busing.

It was also noted during the hearing that it will be at least three years before a new elementary school can be constructed in the south county and that it will most likely be constructed in the north county.

Welcome Wagon to meet Monday

PORT ST. LUCIE–The Powers of Concentration will be the program topic when the Port St. Lucie Welcome Wagon Club holds their August 1 meeting. The group will meet at the Nort Port Marina from 9:30 a.m. until noon.

Mrs. Kathryn Hatheber, the club's publicity chairman will be in charge of the program.

Following the meeting, cake and coffee will be served at the home of Mrs. Jean Bauer at 1741 S.W. Violet Avenue. All members are welcome to bring a bag lunch and play cards during the afternoon if they desire.

It has also been announced there will be no luncheon in August and there will b no meetings during the month of September.

New rates make saving electricity more important than ever.

WE'RE CONCERNED.

The state regulatory agency has concluded that FPL's new rates will be based on a conservation incentive: If you use more than a base amount of electricity per month, the rate per kilowatt hour will go up. We're concerned, because your bill may increase more than you expect. We want our customers to have the facts—and to have ample opportunity to determine wise energy management.

AFTER YOU USE 750 KILOWATT HOURS IN A MONTH, THE RATE PER KILOWATT HOUR GOES UP.

According to the regulatory agency's order, FPL will, for the first time, have an "inverted rate" structure. This means that the first 750 kilowatt hours you use in any month will be at one rate, and all electricity you use above that, during the monthly billing period, will be at a higher rate.

Kilowatt Hours	Old Rate	New Costs (Inverted Structure)	Increase	New Costs - If Historic Rate Structure Applied	Increase
750	$ 27.27	$ 29.01	6.4%	$ 31.36	15%
1200	40.78	46.96	15.2%	46.90	15%
2000	64.82	78.87	21.7%	74.51	14.9%
3000	94.85	116.75	23.2%	109.04	15%
4000	124.88	158.64	27%	143.56	14.9%

All the above figures include applicable franchise fees.

Using our historic rate structure, the rate increase recently granted because of inflation would have amounted to about 15%. This new structure works so that the heavier user will pay a substantially higher increase—up to 27%.

On the other hand, the minimum user will pay a 6.4% increase. The 1,200 kilowatt hour user will pay about 15% more, and anyone using over 1,200 kilowatt hours monthly will pay increases from 15% to 27%.

Now it's even more important to practice wise energy management to help control your costs. We don't like higher bills any more than you do, so we want to help you conserve in every way we can.

FREE, OUR FOLDER ON "HOW TO SAVE MONEY ON YOUR ELECTRIC BILL".

It's loaded with tips, hints and ideas on ways you may never have thought of using. Stop in at any FPL office and ask for your free copy today.

Fantastic fertilizer

River odor could be removed

BY DICK CAMPBELL

JENSEN BEACH–The Indian River shimmers in the summer sun, and quiet ripples chase each other across the shallows as the incoming tide moves grasses to the high water mark. The exposed grasses take the full brunt of the burning sun, and begin to stink.

The resultant odor has been falsely blamed on secret septic discharges into the river by every property owner along the way, from the Jensen Causeway to the tip of Sewall's Point. No one seems to be convinced that the smell is nature's way of letting the people living along Indian River Drive know that grasses are cooking and decaying in the hot sun at the river's edge.

The problem of summer river smell has plagued the shores of the Indian River for years. This week, The Mirror looked into the possibility of cleaning up the Indian River to remove the smell.

Gene Hoke, mayor of Ocean Breeze Park, recalls that at one time the park hired Ray Cooke to bring a back-hoe to the river front and dig a ditch at low tide. When the high tide brought in the grasses, they would fall into the ditch. Then, at low tide, Cooke would fill in the ditch, covering up the grasses.

"This was done during the heaviest part of summer, and the smell disappeared when the grasses were removed," Hoke said.

Ransom Tilton, pioneer real estate operator, recalled that twenty years ago the county planned to set the bulkhead at 250 feet, suggesting that the riverfront be filled in, right-of-way given to widen Indian River Drive and put in a sidewalk, and a bond issue be passed to pay for it all.

"It was a dream that didn't go anywhere," Tilton said.

But both Tilton and Hoke feel that if the county, or the property owners, would straighten out the bulkhead between the causeway and Florida Institute of Technology, fill in the riverfront and allow the water to move along the shore to keep the grasses out, it would solve the problem.

Hoke said he would be happy to participate in it, but felt "the individual property owners wouldn't do it."

Tilton said he didn't own riverfront, and his father, W.B. Tilton, owned only 100 feet, but felt that it would solve two things: if property owners were required to give rights-of-way to widen Indian River Drive to 100 feet, the traffic problems of the area would be solved; it would remove the smell of decaying vegetation and beautify the riverfront.

The Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce has another idea that will be discussed at the August 8 meeting. That is to seek a way for the property owners to rake up the grasses, dry them, and use the decaying materials for fertilizer.

Dennis Clark, of the Jensen Environmental Center, said that the decayed grasses are excellent fertilizer.

In Titusville, property owners are raking the grasses up, and thus removing the cause of the odor. One person there is planning to bag the resultant fertilizer for sale.

Clark Collins, of Jensen Bait and Tackle, reported that he is raking his grass out of the river every day, drying it and has plans to use it as a fertilizer and ground cover.

Jack Klett, of the Snook Nook, who is the Chamber president, said that there was no problem with the grass at the Snook Nook itself, since the area is bulkheaded, but added that the smell affected that area from surrounding properties.

"It's a stinky, mucky, dirty mob," Klett said of raking the grasses from the river. Asked if the property owners would clean their riverfronts, Klett said "80 percent won't do it."

Tilton felt that the county or the school board should do the cleaning, because they could use the fertilizer on county parks and schools. He added that the school board owns the Environmental Center, "a big piece of property on the river."

Hoke agreed, saying that the county could possibly get federal money under a jobless act to put people to work. He praised the fertilizer qualities of the grasses, saying that one farmer locally "grew fantastic vegetables using the grasses as fertilizer."

In Titusville, the local Chamber of Commerce has worked out arrangements with the Brevard Correction Institute to use inmates who volunteer to work on the project. The Chamber provides tennis shoes and security for the inmates.

Sheriff Jim Holt told The Mirror that the county commission would have to establish and fund such a program.

"I'm the keeper of the jail, but it's their jail," Holt said. He added that he certainly would have no objection to the inmates working for the county under a program that would harvest the fertilizer-rich grasses.

Can the Indian River be cleaned up? Can an effort, by property owners, or the Chamber of Commerce, or the county, or the school board, be successful?

In Titusville, property owners are taking a small step toward removing the cause of the smell by removing the grasses.

Much excellent fertilizer is being wasted, and the putrid odor persists in Jensen Beach and Sewall's Point, awaiting what could be a beneficial experience in cleaning the riverfront. If people can work together toward a common goal.

Jackie said she has learned alot from the weekly drills.

"We go out and set up an imaginary fire using imaginary water," she said. "Then we come back to the firehouse and discuss what we have done. We usually hold a different type of drill every week."

She's found being the first female firefighter in the department hasn't meant any special privileges.

"I have to serve a six-month probation period just like everyone else," she said. "Before they issue $400 worth of equipment to anyone they want to make sure its going to work out. It's a two-way street. They have six months to decide whether they want you in or out."

One of the chores Jackie carries out is driving the firetrucks.

"They're a lot bigger than my van," she said. "And there's no power steering. You really have to be careful. You have to be levelheaded at all times. Truck 106 is the truck I've been assigned to. Last week I drove the biggest truck on drill night. It's a big tanker. I had to back in and maneuver around. It just has to be second nature when you're called out of bed at two in the morning. When you're under stress and half asleep you have to be efficient. You have to practice."

In the activities Jackie follows in firefighting, she does not feel singled out as a woman.

"I don't feel any different than anybody else," she said. "When I'm here, I'm a firefighter first. I have to feel a part of the team. The fire department has no place for heroes. We're a team effort and everyone works together because our lives depend on it. There's no place here for segregation of the sexes."

Jackie is appreciative of the courtesy fellow firemen have shown her since she joined the department.

"They're always willing to help you," she said. "They take time to show you how to run a pump, a line or any piece of equipment here. Everyone here is so nice. I have no regrets about joining. I just wish I had done it sooner."

W.W.I Vets meet Friday

JENSEN BEACH–The Veterans of World War I and Auxiliary will hold their regular meetings Friday, August, 5, at the Jensen Beach Community Church. Meeting time is 1:30 p.m.

Henry Miller is Commander and Therese Wittnebert is President of the Auxiliary.

All veterans of World War I and their wives are invited to attend.

Card parties and sewing sessions have been discontinued until further notice.

THE OFFICE–Organizers of the Martin County stand in front of the office they will use for ive purposes. The office space, donated by Coy and Deggeller Real Estate, is on U.S. 1 in Stuart. The volunteers above are, from the left: Coy and Deggeller Broker Carolyn Coy, Crisis Line Director of Senior Operators Lee White and Director of Operations Toni Madden.

NEW MEMBER–Jackie Betz, an environmental tech student at Florida Institute of Technology, is the first female member of the Jensen Beach Fire Department.

Crisis line to open

STUART–For the nervous, the depressed or those on the brink of despair, or those who merely desire a few moments of companionship, there soon will be an outlet in Martin County to spill your woes.

A Crisis Line telephone service is planned in Stuart and volunteers are busily working behind the scenes to organize and begin the service by November.

"We will be staffed by volunteers," Crisis Line Director Toni Madden said. "We need men and women of all ages as long as they are 18 or older."

So far the volunteers have set up a business office for the Crisis Line. The office space has been donated by Coy and Deggeller Real Estate on U.S. 1 in Stuart.

"It's a telephone-based system," Toni said. "Where people can call in with any kind of problem. We try and help them by refering them to an agency which will be of help to them or we give para-professional counseling. We try to let them know that the answer lies within the person and the counseling helps bring it out. It's non-judgmental."

"We will be the ears of Martin County," Crisis Line senior operator Lee White said. "We will be in service 24 hours per day. We will always accept a call and will be non-critical. We will be the only Crisis Line in Martin County."

Despite the office space provided by Coy and Deggeller, Crisis Line is still in the formative stages and needs both monetary funding and equipment to staff the new office.

"We need funds," Lee said. "Telephones are our biggest overhead. We will need office supplies, a desk and filing cabinets. We have not yet begun a fund-raising campaign, but when we do, it will all be local. We will not seek any state or federal funds."

Among the professional trainers who will help set up the Crisis Line will be Dr. Robert Alsofram, a Palm Beach psychologist who was the founder of Crisis Line in Palm Beach County. Dr. Alsofram and other professionals will teach classes for volunteers who will man the telephones of Crisis Line. The switchboard for Crisis Line will be at a confidential location, not at the offices of Coy and Deggeller. The Coy and Deggeller office is an administrative post only.

Fort Pierce I-95 is open

FORT PIERCE–Though it's a little further than Jensen Beach's back yard, local residents who travel north and south along the coast will be able to cut about a half hour from their travel time by using the newly opened stretch of Interstate 95 from SR 60 in Vero Beach to Indrio Road in Fort Pierce.

The State of Florida Department of Transportation (DOT) Monday opened an 11-mile portion of I-95 from SR 60 to Indio Road after the completed road was left dormant for several months.

A second new section, from Indrio Road to SR 70 (Okeechobee Road) in Fort Pierce, now under construction, is not expected to be completed until late this year. But the section of I-95 from St. Lucie County through Martin to PGA Blvd. in Palm Beach County, the last section of the federal road in the state, is still in the planning stages.

After years of discussion, the DOT, the Martin County Commission and the public have not agrees on whether to build the road along a corridor of Martin County east of the Florida Turnpike, or several miles west.

Jack Klett, president of the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce, expressed enthusiasm about the new section of the road opening.

"We are certainly happy of the extension this far," he said. "We hope that county government can ascertain where it should run in Martin County as soon as possible so that we can accommodate the people with easy access to the interstate."

Klett said the Chamber has been non-committal about which route should be chosen, but said that the Chamber wants the road to be completed as soon as possible.

Building is up 100 percent

SEWALL'S POINT–Figures comparing last year's number of residency building permits issued in the Town of Sewall's Point to this year indicate that the town is experiencing a building boom.

The first seven months of 1976 show that there were only 13 permits issued for new homes. In the first seven months of this year, there have been 29 permits issued, a jump of more than 100 per cent.

"We have quite a few speculation builders," Sewall's Point Building Commissioner John Rossiter said. "I don't know what the ratio is but they're different from that of the custom built house with a planned retirement. It shows that the builder has a confidence in the market, plus there is a healthy spurt of young people coming to the town and buying homes."

Ronald Mitchell, president of the Jensen Beach Bank, said that the market shows optimism in building.

"Florida always lags in a recession," he said. "When one exists, it's late to get involved and, when it's over, it's late to get out of it. I think last summer people were a little skeptical about spending money and now they are a lot more optimistic."

Mitchell also noted that there are a number of young families building homes in the town.

GUEST–Dale Cassens, Florida District 76 ative, told members of the Jensen Beach Kiwanis' Club how a bill is created and becomes a law in the State of Florida. The talk was given during an Outrigger luncheon on Monday. With Cassens is Kiwanis Vice President Bill Selmi.

wanians learn bill structure

BY ROBBIE BEDELL

N BEACH–Members of the Beach Kiwanis Club learned what it takes to have a bill the Florida Statutes and what he new bills are which passed legislature this year from cted state representative Dale my first session and it was a ational experience," Cassens told the Kiwanians. "There was a lot to learn and I know I still have a lot to learn."

Cassens told the clubmembers that he was impressed with the quality of the men who represented the public during the meeting of the legislature.

"One thing I discovered is that after Watergate and other political scandals, those in Tallahassee are a sincere, honest and dedicated bunch," he said. "They may not always think the way you do but you have a right to be proud of them."

Cassens explained that a bill begins as an idea and is proposed as a draft in bill form. He said there is a special department to write the drafts in the proper form and that it is all done by computer. In the past, drafts were written by the senators and they were not always in the proper form.

"The draft comes out in a small piece of paper in canary yellow," he said. "It gets a number and it is assigned to one of 22 committees."

Cassens said that if the bill is amended, it is re-written and then comes out in a blue form.

At this stage the bill is turned over to the house or the senate floor.

After a bill is passed by both the house and the senate and is signed by the governor, it is printed in white and is entered into the Florida Statutes.

Cassens told of some of the bills which were passed at the recent legislative session. One, which is of interest to Martin County, is a bill which concerns small public works jobs. Martin County had a problem early this year seeking bids to have some boat ramps built because the size of the jobs was too small. Smaller contractors, which would ordinarily make a bid, did not do so because of the sizable bond they would have to post in advance to guarantee the job would be done. The new law allows jobs of $25,000 or less to be carried out without a performance bond.

Cassens also told of a resort tax counties may levy, if they wish to, on motel rooms and rented rooms. The funds raised on the tax will be used to develop tourist activities. The counties may only levy the tax, however, if it passes a local referendum.

Cassens also told of a victims of crime bill which will allow some compensation to those who have suffered some sort of loss as the result of a crime. The money, which is raised from a five per cent surcharge on traffic fines is allocated to counties according to the extent law enforcement participates in the program.

"I think it is a good piece of legislation," Cassens told the club members.

"We get into the pool and we do the best we can," Otovic said. "We go to different parts of the body, abdomen, hips, thighs. We strengthen all the muscles of the body."

One of the veteran students of the class is Mel Swenson of Beacon 21 condominiums. A former instrument maker for Sunbeam electronics, he said he has found the class very beneficial.

"I had a real bad heart attack back in 1960," Swensen said. "It's great for me, the exercise is just wonderful. There's nothing jerky underwater and the water seems to act as sort of a buffer."

Swensen has been in the program for two years and he marvels at the help it has given him.

"It really keeps you in condition," he said. "My weight used to be up at around 175 pounds all the time, and now I'm down in my 160s. I would say I'm down five to seven pounds less than what I used to be. I'll be 64 next month."

Another pleased student is Mrs. John W. Stanley from Rye, New York.

"I think it's really great," she said. "I think it's good for anyone at any age. It's a very companionable class and we think that Peter (Otovic) is a dear."

"Having fun with swimming class," writes "CMac", eplosing a picture from local newspaper...a darned good picture showing him instructing Lucy Huntel, with her eyes tightly closed as beginners do splash a bit. It's a CMC sponsored class of 14, between that ages of 65 and 83, that mets twice a week at Hot Springs pool in Glenwood Springs, Colorado.

Martin County Chapter members respond with, "OK C-Mac, we may not have a hot spring pool, but we are still swimming twice a week at the high school pool and when you get back, we'll be gaily swimming away to show off our accomplishments."

Port St. Lucie Chapter 2696

In case you weren't at the July meeting, it was voted to cancel the membership meeting for August because of the large number of people who are now away and because of the general doldrums. Meetings will resume in September with a program tentatively on the schedule of a presentation on what to do to prepare for a hurricane, if arrangements can be made with the St. Lucie County Civil Defense authorities. This program has been presented at several meetings of organizations in the county recently and has aroused great interest, understandably.

+ + +

There will be a board of directors meeting in August, and possibly a regional meeting of AARP chapter officers at Vero Beach. Bill Koolage, regional assistant state director, is now working on arrangments for that session. This meeting would replace the larger workshop sessions which have been held in Melbourne.

President Wiggin, always keenly interested in health care, says he has heard that quite a few people in the area now regularly driver friends or neighbors to the doctor. He thinks this is fine and would like to get more information on this commendable practice. If you are performing such a service, or if you know of anyone who is doing it, please get in touch with Fred (878-3713).

+ + +

Fred reports that his consultations with Port St. Lucie clergymen on possible candidates for the meals-on-wheels program has failed to provide any concrete information of people who need this service. This was the same result in a poll of members of our chapter board of directors, so it is beginning to look as if there really is not a need for the program in Port St. Lucie, a fine thing if it is true. However, it could be that this impression is far off the beam.

If you know of someone who does need such help, please get in touch with any officer or director of your chapter.

Little by little, progress is being made on the arrangements fo the Bahama-rama cruise of October 10, but about 12 more reservations are needed to meet the quota set for the group. As has been mentioned several times previously, the rates are $250 per person for an inside cabin, and $270 for an outside job. When you consider that the average cost for such an elegant cruise, including transportation to the dock and other incidentals, averages from $340 to $350 per person, it is easy to see that this is a real travel bargain.

As Mr. Travel in Grimes Plaza II, handling the arrangements, has been able, by putting up its own money, to extend the date for making a deposit. The original date was Sept. 20, but this has now been extended to August 15. The deposit required is $65 per person for an inside cabin and $70 per person for the outside cabins.

+ + +

The National Legislative Council of NRTA-AARP has come up with a comprehensive proposed legislative program for 1978, covering all aspects of the major questions before federal and state legislative bodies: taxes, Medicare, Social Security, crime, housing, consumer affairs, transportation and so on. The program is contained in a 36-page booklet that has been sent to legislative chairmen of AARP chapters.

Our own chairman, Frank Alexander, reports that the program has been presented for review to the boards of directors of the two organizations, which are scheduled to give their decision on it in the relativel near future.

It is very good to see Fred Greenough walking around the park with wife Eleanor, using his walker. The wheelchair has been returned. Keep up the good work.

The McCabes had guests over the weekend, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Fredrick of Venture Out.

+++

Lisbee and Artie Smith sent a note from Michigan. They will visit her mother in Ohio, then on home to Blacksburg, Va., to unpack, only to repack for the August H.O. gathering in Winooski, Vermont.

+++

We extend our condolences to the families of two owners who passed on: Maurice Quinn of lot 203, a long time owner and respected by all who knew him; and William (Bill) Harrison, a gentle man loved by so many here at the park, who passed away Sunday, July 31. Burial will be in Miami. At this time arrangements are incomplete.

+++

George and Lil Bates have been on a trailer trip to the Canadian Rockies, Banff, Lake Louise and Jasper for six weeks, but said they were glad to get back home in Ohio, as too many people are traveling and it was quite hot.

They said they were surprised to see so many old Spartan trailers like theirs being towed. The end of August, they are going to a rally at Lexington, Ky. They send regards to all their friends.

+++

Anne and Albert Criscoci send greetings from Fisherman's Wharf in San Francisco and said they were enjoying the food and scenery. They were fascinated with Lake Louise, the Columbian ice fields and Vancouver.

They saw Prince Charles at the Calgary Stampede in Alberta and thought him a handsome man. The next stop on their itinerary is Las Vegas. They plan to be back in H.O. in October.

+++

David and Flora McCarthy are enjoying visits with their family. Their sons treated them to a few days at the Williamsburg Inn for their birthdays which, they said, was particularly delightful.

+++

Mac and Betty O'Donnell were thrilled one day last week when three beautifully dressed strangers dropped in for lunch and to spend the afternoon.

The trio were Parakeets.

The O'Donnells hoped they would like the surroundings enough to acquire some real estate and become permanent residents but it seems they were just tourists on the wing.

Meet new lot owners, the Turners

Join me in extending a warm welcome to new owners of lot 163, Reginald S. Turner, Jr., and his wife Marguerite, known as Reg and Peg to their friends.

They are former residents of Wilmington, Delaware, where Reg retired from the Dupont Chemical Corp. They have two daughters, Louise of Berkley, California, and Anne is a member of the National Forestry, now located in the Grand Tetons in Wyoming.

[illegible] residents, returning to Delaware around the first of October for a social engagement, and returning for the season, until the next vacation.

Do stop by and meet two lovely people.

Hal and Maureen Holmes have returned to the park following a 4480 mile vacation trip in their motorhome. They visited Maureen's sister in Daytona, her son and daughter-in-law in Hiawville, Ga.; then on to Long Island, N.Y., for a reunion with most of the children and grandchildren.

Following this, they met with Vince and Ginny Stratford for a delightful visit with Rene and Jean Beauchamp at lot 211 at their Lac Orange, Quebec, lakeside summer home. Both rigs moved on to Ontario to visit daughter-in-law Doreen, followed by a happy stopover with Burton and Cosby Watson, lot 287, at Higgins Lake, Michigan.

The Stratfords then headed back north and the Holmes started south towards home via Ohio, Kentucky, Tennessee and Georgia. At a rest area south of Chattanooga, Tenn., they ran into Bing and Miriam Crosby, former lot owners in H.O.

It was a very hot trip and the first comment upon debarking from their motorhome and feeling the delightful ocean breeze was, "Why would anyone ever want to leave this paradise?"

+++

Pat and Joyce O'Teri had a surprise while strolling on the H.O. beach. They met Mrs. Jean Flynn and son Danny, Mrs. Marlene Griffin and granddaughter Terry Tosetti, formerly from Bridgewater, Mass., who had moved to Cape Cod in 1970. They were visiting H.Out for a few days, so, after a seven year separation, a get together was a must. While Mrs. Flynn, Mrs. Griffin and Mrs. O'Teri went to Frances Langford's for dinner, O'Teri took Danny Flynn, Terry Tosetti and Pat, Jr., fishing and picnicking for the day. They caught two skates, one sheepshead, and one lobster.

The next day the O'Teris visited David and Frances Lloyd in Miami. In the evening, they all went sailing on the Lloyds' 32-foot sailboat on the Intracoastal Waterway, visiting all the inlets of Miami. They ended up with a drive on Collins Avenue, seeing for the first time the glamorous hotels, and topped it all off by going to one of the famous restaurants in the heart of Miami.

Good news from Dot and Bill Blair: they are looking forward to returning early in the fall.

+++

Ken and Max Ritter left last Saturday on a four to six week vacation in Michigan, to visit their children and old friends. They also expect to go to New England for the H.O. annual summer get together in August.

+++

Joanne Wetzel is back after a long absence from the park, trying to catch up on husband Tom's suntan.

Wes and Ruth Arbo sent a note, telling us that Anne and Frank Gilbert, Tom and Winnie Widlake and the Arbos drove up to Rindge, N.H., in their motorhome to visit the Cathedral of the Pines. The weather was hot, 102 degrees.

PORT ST. LUCIE seems to have developed an attraction for unlucky fire trucks. Two weeks ago truck number 13, stationed at the fire house on Port St. Lucie Boulevard, was destroyed by flames when it conked out in the middle of a brush fire. Last week, this hook and ladder rig from the Port Lauderdale Fire Department conked out along U.S. 1 in Port St. Lucie. "She's an old truck, and her engine just gave out. We were taking it to Atlanta to rebuild it, then we will deliver it back to Fort Lauderdale," said Colon Haney, whose firm specializes in refurbishing old fire trucks. He said when the engine gave out, he called a wrecker for a tow to Fort Pierce, where he hoped to get the truck running again. (Photo by Bob Fryer) cceptance of major roads delayed until September

RT ST. LUCIE–City council ers decided Monday night to i maintenance responsibilities for ber of streets in the northwestern the city, but put off acceptance of ima for roads until more tests can ducted.

er a schedule worked out by the ed General Development Corpor- the city has been periodically ting GDC built roads as city roads sing them includes assuming enance responsibility, so the roads ot been accepted as city streets ests have been made to determine ads were built to city standards n of 3.82 miles of residential roads tion 34 were recently completed city consulting engineer Cal ntgomery has recommended the be accepted by the council. Section bordered on the north by Verada Avenue, on the south by Crosspoint Drive, on the west by Primeville Street, and on the east by Floresta Drive.

Also recommended for acceptance are roads in section 28, which is bordered by unplatted land to the north, by St. James Drive and Airoso Boulevard on the west, by Floresta Drive on the south and by the North Fork on the St. Lucie River on the east.

On the agenda for city acceptance were Westmoreland Boulevard from the circle to Morningside Drive and Morningside Drive from City Hall to Lyngate Avenue. Plans call for these roads to be maintained solely by the city. However, City Manager Elmer Cox said a final review by Montgomery will be needed before the roads should be accepted.

City council members are hoping to get the St. Lucie County Commission to chip in for maintenance of Floresta Drive from River Park to Port St. Lucie Boulevard and for Airoso Boulevard from River Park to Port St. Lucie Boulevard. They also hope to get full county acceptance of St. James Drive.

However, county commissioners have expressed reluctance to accept soil-cement constructed roads. All GDC roads in Port St. Lucie were built of soil-cement construction. The city councilmen are expected to continue their efforts to get the county to accept major roads a short time after they are formally accepted by the city.

After a brief discussion, it was decided that the council members would wait until their Sept. 5 meeting to discuss all the roads other than those in sections 24 and 28, which will likely be formally accepted at the Aug. 9th meeting.

THE NEW CITY HALL in Port St. Lucie may look something like this when it is built on a 14.5 acre tract at the corner of Airoso Boulevard and Port St. Lucie Boulevard. This sketch was made from Sewall's Point architect Phillip Braden's plans for the proposed building. Braden is to meet with city council members on Augst 16 to discuss possible modifications to the plans.

Architect to discuss city hall plans

PORT ST. LUCIE–City council members decided Monday night (Aug. 1) to meet with architect Phillip Braden of Sewall's Point on Tuesday, Aug. 16, to discuss possible changes in plans for a new city hall.

Since Braden released plans of the proposed building last month, the council members have been reviewing them and have made recommendations for changes to City Manager Elmer Cox.

In a letter inviting Braden to the council's Aug. 16 workshop meeting, Cox notes, "The proposed changes are relatively simple."

Though no time table has been set for constructing the new city hall, tentative plans have been made to budget $100,000 this coming fiscal year as money that would go toward the new city hall. Also, council members want to start up a police force by the end of the coming fiscal year, and have indicated there will be a need to house the police department in the city hall once the department becomes operational.

Cox has estimated the proposed facility will cost $450,000 for the building and another $300,000 for furnishings, land clearing, parking and utility hookups.

The city already owns the tract where the city hall is to be built. It is a 14.5 acre plot at the corner of Port St. Lucie Boulevard and Airoso Boulevard. It was purchased in 1975 for $80,000.

Most of the council members have recommended that the plans be changed so the council meeting room can seat at least 100 persons. As drawn, the room would seat 78 persons.

Also, there seems to be general concurrence that the building ought to be built as a second story might be added.

Two holding cells for prisoners of the police department were also recommended by several council members.

More storage space was listed by several council members as a change they would like to see in the plans, and Cox has recommended that the building be enlarged from 12,700 square feet to 13,500 square feet.

Vice Mayor Mike Reeb suggested solar energy facilities and Councilman Merle Anderson asked for more windows.

heatre group considering ove to Port St. Lucie

T ST. LUCIE–St. Lucie Commu- l entre director Bill Braun said r that his group is still looking possibility of building a $200,000 e facility at the Port St. Lucie unity Center.

and other theatre group s met with Community Center n Dick Lundin, Center director ley and Center trustee Don last week.

Braun said Tuesday that the talks last week were fruitful.

"We had a good discussion, but we want to discuss it a little bit more before we reach a final decision. I don't believe we're at the stage of making a final decision right away," Braun said, later adding that "It's an attractive offer."

"We may wind up doing part of it now and part of it later, instead of doing it all at once," Braun said.

Since the meeting last week it has been reported that some theatre group members are afraid they would lose their Fort Pierce following if they moved to Port St. Lucie.

Seeley said, "We feel Port St. Lucie would be very supportive of a theatre group and we told them if they decided to move to Port St. Lucie they would find the people to be supportive."

We exchanged information and invited them back for further talks. We suggested ways they might get economic support for their effort. They said they wanted to come down and look over the property in the daylight, and I expect they will do that soon. But right now, after exchanging ideas, we both decided to go back to the drawing board. They indicated they would talk over the ideas discussed and come back for talks later," Seeley said.

Neither Braun nor Seeley indicated any time schedule for a decision to be reached or for future talks.

City Hall maintenance to jump

PORT ST. LUCIE–After expressing some reluctance to pay as much as the contract calls for, city council members decided Monday night to approve a new agreement for maintenance of the city hall premises during the next fiscal year.

This year, rent for the city hall space has been costing the city $615 a month. But the contract the council members will likely take formal action to approve at their next meeting (Aug. 9) will mean the city will be paying $1,150 a month, and possibly more.

The maintenance contract is with Wayne Sines and Peter Smith. They told the council members that, at a minimum, the contract calls for the city to pay them 20 cents a square foot for the maintenance work. However, there is a provision in the contract which would allow cost overruns.

"By giving you a specific figure, we're just trying to give you an estimate. We're usually accurate, within five to 10 per cent. If it turns out it costs us less to maintain the building, then we could either give you a cash rebate or just credit your account towards the cost for the next year's maintenance. Or, if costs exceed the estimate, it would be reflected in the form of a debit," Smith said.

"I'm inclined to think that it's highway robbery," said Councilman Merle Anderson. However, after it was agreed that Sines and Smith would be paid on a semi-annual basis, with the first payment not being made until after they have maintained the building for six months, Anderson agreed to the contract.

Others who seemed in agreement with it were Mayor William McChesney and Councilman Schuyler Sharpe. Councilwoman Lolita Kernohan said she was strongly opposed to it and Vice Mayor Mike Reeb was absent.

Council night meets a success

PORT ST. LUCIE–City council members decided that their experiment of having a night-time meeting once a month has been successful, so they will continue them.

At the conclusion of a workshop meeting Monday night, Mayor William McChesney commented, "You know, when we decided to try having a nightly meeting on the first Monday of each month, we decided we'd do it on a trial basis for 90 to 120 days. The 120 days are up as of tonight. I'm pleased with the turnout we've had at the meetings and with the input the citizens have given us. I feel we should continue meeting at night on the first Monday of each month."

The other council members also expressed pleasure with the night-time meeting experiment and agreed with McChesney that the night meetings should continue.

Residential businesses to be regulated in PSL

PORT ST. LUCIE–An ordinance regulating businesses in residential areas of Port St. Lucie was reviewed by city council members Monday night and appears headed for passage soon.

Basically, the ordinance prohibits businesses in homes unless they "are clearly incidental and secondary to the use of the dwelling for dwelling purposes..." and do not "reveal from the exterior that the dwelling is being utilized for the use other than dwelling purposes."

One provision of the ordinance, which required that adequate off-street parking must be provided for home businesses, will be stricken. The council members decided that if a parking lot is needed, then the home business is too large and should not be in a residential area.

Assistant City Attorney Fred Horowitz was instructed to add a provision that would require persons to obtain a city occupational license if they use their home phone in advertisements for their business.

Horowitz is to return with a new draft of the ordinance at the Aug. 16 workshop meeting. If council members like the new draft, they will likely begin hearings to adopt the ordinance.

Recycling is profitable for Community Center

BY BOB FRYER

PORT ST. LUCIE–Recycling is not only good for ecology, it's profitable.

At least at the Port St. Lucie Community Center, it has been a money maker. Behind the Center are bins for aluminum cans and a huge container for old newspapers.

Annette Saffioti, secretary at the Center, says the Center recently received a check for $142 from Reynolds Aluminum. And, she says, revenue from the paper collections average about $300 a month.

"This money goes into the Center's operating fund," she explained.

Community Center Vice President Bill Strout and a committee of volunteers are in charge of the recycling project. And, since people often mix tin and steel cans with aluminum ones, they wind up having to sort the cans before a truck from Reynolds comes along and takes the good ones to Miami for recycling.

"Any can with a seam in it is not aluminum," Miss Saffioti notes.)

Twin City Waste from West Palm Beach is the firm that picks up the newspapers. Each time the bins get full, the company is notified to make collections. So far, collections have averaged about once a month. In addition to the paper bin at the Community Center, there is one at City Hall on Morningside Drive. The next collection is expected to be made this week.

LoBrutto faces dilemma

PORT ST. LUCIE–Bill LoBrutto, owner of Allo Realty in Port St. Lucie, is in a real dilemma.

"Help. What do I do now?" Lobrutto asked when he learned of the touchy dilemma facing him.

The problem is his realty firm has produced two finalists in the Sandpiper Bay Women's Golf Association Handicap Tournament.

"I want to cheer for both of them, but I can't. If one wins, the other loses," he said.

The problem is even thornier because one of the women is not just an employee, she's his wife, Angela Marie.

"Carol Price, my number one secretary, and my wife both entered the tournament weeks ago. It began without about 85 women competing in it, and now it's down to just two finalists, Carol and my wife. I want them both to win, but know there will be only one winner," he said.

Actually, LoBrutto said he is proud of both women, and is glad to be placed in such a happy dilemma. But he'll be relieved when the final round of match play is over next Tuesday, so things can return to normal around the office.

ER UP–Alex daCosta of Port St. Lucie found the per recycling collection bin so full at the Port St. Lucie nity Center that he had to rearrange the pile to get apers in. The papers are transported to West Palm or recycling about once every month, and bring in an average of $200 a month to the Community Center. Another collection bin is located at Port St. Lucie City Hall. The next pickup of papers is expected to occur this week, so there will soon be empty bins to be refilled all over again. rince of Peace Church announces building BUILDING–An architect's rendering of the planned of Peace Lutheran Church shows the attractive complex that is due to begin in the near future. The first phase will include the two buildings just to the rear of the main sanctuary.

JENSEN BEACH–A new church complex was announced this week by Prince of Peace Lutheran Church, with the first phase being a two-wing complex for fellowship and offices. The congregation approved the building program last week, according to Rev. A.V. Socker, pastor.

The church will be located two miles north of Stuart on U.S. 1, near the entrance to Vista Del Lago Condominium, and will serve the people of Jensen Beach, Rio, Stuart, and South Port St. Lucie.

The first unit, which will be located behind the future main sanctuary, will be constructed immediately and will serve the congregation's needs until the main sanctuary is completed. The overall design concept is Spanish Contemporary.

The first unit features two wings joined by a wide covered breezeway. The south wing will be devoted to worship while the north wing will serve the educational, administrative and fellowship needs of the parish.

The center breezeway will be pierced by a striking tower, or Campanile, which will extend from the ground through the roof of the breezeway. The base of the tower will provide an area for a fountain and interior garden area. Entrance to the breezeway will be through wrought iron gates of Spanish design.

The north wing will have an arched walkway around the exterior and the south wing will have a Spanish style fence on either side which will enclose landscaped courtyards.

Working drawings are now 50 percent complete and bids will be let when the drawings are finished. Architect for the new church is Robert Shrum, A.I.A., of North Miami Beach. Formal groundbreaking will be held as soon as a contractor is selected.

Members of the building committee include Otto Schoppe, chairman; Torry Olsen, Bonnie Anderson, Marion Schoppe, Al Bonnell, James Konrady, Mike Dryer, Don Leaf and Ron Kirchman, who is advisor.

Prince of Peace has been in existence for two years and is a member congregation of the Lutheran Church in America. Until the new facility is completed, the congregation maintains an office in the Carroll Building on Rt. 707 in south Jensen Beach, and worships at the Trinity United Methodist Church, 140 Arch Street in Jensen Beach, every Sunday morning at 9:30.

For additional information, call the pastor, Rev. A.V. Socker at the church office, 334-4171.

Southern Bell expands

$1 million conduit project sets stage for island center

BY DICK CAMPBELL

JENSEN BEACH–For several weeks, the giant back-hoe has been inching its way from U.S. 1, down Commercial Street, and up Sunview Road, setting the stage for a million-dollar expansion of conduit lines that will eventually become a central office for Southern Bell Telephone on Hutchinson Island.

The expansion project, predicated on development of the island, will eventually see 26,700 feet of PVC conduit pipe, used as ducts for "pairs" of telephone wire, put in the ground to reach from U.S. 1 to the FEC railroad, under the railroad, east across the Jensen Beach Causeway, under the Indian River, and out to A-1-A on the island.

The project is due for completion by January, 1978.

Glenn Sutton, manager of the Stuart Southern Bell office, told The Mirror that the central office for Hutchinson Island would be projected for 1980 at a two acre site near Windmill Village.

"It will be an electronic switching center (ESS)," Sutton said, "to relieve that area for anticipated growth. By January 1, 1981, we will have 1100 additional pairs of wires that will be needed."

The company presently has 2,800 pairs of wires on the island.

When the switching office is completed, 4,000 pairs will be available to the island. The size of the office is not yet firm, as "we will have to project the growth of the island, and we are not sure of that yet."

The cable under the river will then be used to "trunk" the lines to other switching stations, and on the mainland the cable will be used to service the Jensen Beach-Port St. Lucie 334 exchange.

Sutton said that plans for the central office on Commercial Street, where Southern Bell purchased 5.3 acres a few years ago for such an office, have been shelved for the present. He added that the company projects the need of a switching station in west Port St. Lucie as growth demands.

All of Hutchinson Island will come under the switching station there.

Statistically, Southern Bell is installing 17,000 feet of 16-ducts, 4,300 feet of 9-ducts, 4,000 feet of 6-ducts, and 1,600 feet of 9-ducts to cross the Indian River. The ducts will be buried in concrete 18 inches below the ground, and eight feet below the channel in the river.

DER hunts river polluter

BY ROBBIE BEDELL

JENSEN BEACH–The Florida Department of Environmental Regulartion (DER) is contacting the owner of a building which houses the Wash Quik Laundry in Jensen Beach to try and determine who is responsible for a detergent outfall which is pouring into the Indian River at the foot of Commercial Street.

"We are sending out a notice to W.B. Tilton, the owner of the building where the laundry is located, requesting that if he has legal documents which outline the responsibilities of the tenants or sub-tenants, that they forward copies to us," said Eric Nucie of the Fort Pierce office of the DER.

"We've never gotten anything official from him. He's never adequately responded to our last notice. If the documents do exist, then we would like to see copies of them. All we really want is something on a piece of paper."

Nucie said that once his office has the documents in hand, then they will determine who the responsible party is and take action from there.

The DER tested the water outfall from the laundromat more than a year ago and the results of the testing did not meet the standards set by the state agency.

The DER contacted Tilton several months ago, but Ransom Tilton, the son of W.B. Tilton, said that the terms of maintaining the treatment system from the laundromat are written in the lease. Tilton claims that the lessee is responsible.

The building is leased to L'il General Stores, which in turn sub-leases it to Ronald Dittrich, owner of the laundry.

Dittrich claims that he has had regular monitoring performed by a company named GeoTech of West Palm Beach.

"I pay $27.50 per month to have them test the water and they have never told me there was anything wrong with it," he said. "They send copies to me and to the DER."

Dittrich added that he had Ashton Utilities come to the laundry last Thursday and update the laundry water treatment system so more chlorine is added to the water.

He said the company cleaned out tanks and lines and changed the system so it would add 25 per cent chlorine to the effluent.

"It goes into a tank where it is mixed with fresh water and mixed around with a propeller," Dittrich said. "Then it's primed with 25 per cent chlorine and it spins around the air evaporates much of it, then it goes into the river."

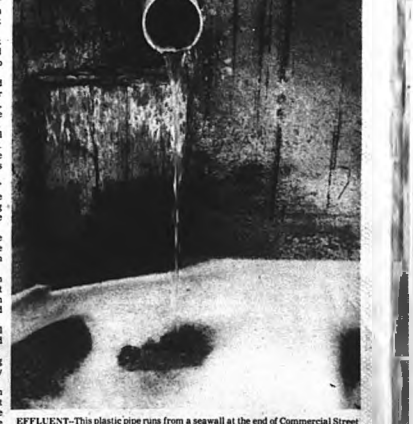
Dittrich said there used to be a holding pond down near the river, but the pond was filled by the owners of the property and the pipe was extended to the river.

"I'm not the one who put the pipe out there and it's not my property so I can't very well do anything to it," he said. "What we did Thursday is all we can do. If worse comes to worse, all they can do is try to force me out."

Dittrich has owned the laundry for the last two years and said he has "done nothing but try to upgrade it since I bought it."

Nucie said that the laundry at one time had a valid permit to dispose of the wastewater but that the system has not been maintained, hence the failure to meet the DER tests.

He said that once the responsible party is determined, he will be notified to correct the problem. If it is not corrected he could be fined up to $10,000 per day until the valid permit is granted.



EFFLUENT–This plastic pipe runs from a seawall at the end of Commercial Street in Jensen Beach. The water is runoff from the Wash Quick Laundry and has failed pollution tests, according to the Florida Department of Environmental Regulation (DER). The DER is attempting to determine who is really responsible for the pollution.

fficials gang up on river odor

BY ROBBIE BEDELL

N BEACH–The Martin County ion, the Sewall's Point Town nd the Jensen Beach Chamber merce are taking action to solve the problem of rotting along the west bank of the iver.

commissioners Tuesday gran- uest by Sewall's Point Mayor ler to ask state agencies to lend Jensen Beach Chamber of ce decided to back Realtor Jordan in polling riverside owners to see what they might agree upon as a solution.

"I think we should have an expert look at it," Mayor Gluckler said. "I think we should make a report and then go back to the public so we can say this is why it is and this is what we can, or cannot, do about it."

Gluckler added that he has heard a number of theories why the river causes the smell in the summertime.

"I've heard a lot of different opinions on the problem," he said. "I've heard of the need for seawalls and that sewage is being dumped in the river, but I don't buy any of them. I think it's just a natural thing for the seaweed to wash up and dry in the sun."

Gluckler said well known angler Bill Newsome, who has lived on the Indian River in Sewall's Point for many years, said that the smell is not as bad this year as last year at Sewall's Point.

Gluckler said the smell may be eased by the flow of water under the west bridge on the Stuart Causeway. The waterway under the bridge filled in several years ago and there was a major rot problem along the town's shoreline. The state Department of Transportation (DOT) dredged the channel and the problem has not been nearly as great.

"The smell has been much better since the west bridge has been opened," Gluckler said. "The DOT has been very cooperative about it."

County Commissioner Frank Wacha made a motion to have Commission Chairman Tom Higgins write letters to the state Department of Environmental Regulation and the Department of Natural Resources to ask them to investigate the smell. The motion was passed unanimously.

Monday night, Jensen Chamber President Jack Klett said the chamber would be willing to back a plan to clean the riverfront but that he did not think the chamber should spearhead a plan.

Klett, who once owned the Snook Nook on the Indian River, said he would welcome anything which would clean up the shoreline.

Chamber Director Fred Meeker said there is very little flow of water under the west bridge on the Jensen Causeway, and that dredging under it could ease the smell, as it did at the Stuart Causeway.

"If we get that cleaned out, we will solve part of the problem," Meeker said.

Klett said that dredging under the Jensen west bridge is precarious because the bridge could be damaged.

"That was dredged three years ago," he said. "If it is dug too far, that bridge will go. It will collapse as soon as a big truck goes over it on the way out to the beach."

Mack Jordan said he would like to see a bulkhead along the riverbank so the seaweed would not be able to wash up on the beach.

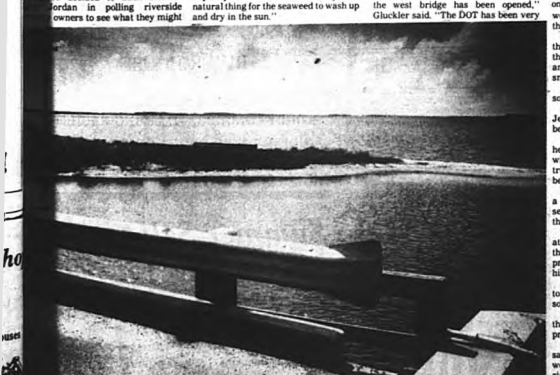
However, Bill Selmi, a Jensen Beach attorney advising the chamber, said that the legal work involved in having each property owner along the river bulkhead his land "would be overwhelming."

Jordan also said a canal dug parallel to the river, along the shoreline, would solve the problem.

Klett was opposed to a canal, saying that cleaning it "would be a yearly project all the time."

Chamber Director Marilyn Epstein said that dredging the St. Lucie Inlet would increase the water flow in the rivers and probably help prevent the weed from accumulating.

"When the inlet is finished in a few years, we will find that it will be a partial solution," Klett said.



OCK–This spit of sand, which greatly restricts the er through the west bridge of the Jensen Beach could be a factor in seaweed buildup along the west bank of the Indian River. The Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce thinks if the water is allowed to flow more freely, perhaps the smell of rotting seaweed may be partially solved.

Inlet Park funds assure facilities

TALLAHASSEE–A capital outlay of $5.5 million for construction at 30 state parks was approved last week by the Governor and Cabinet, Harmon Shields, executive director of the Department of Natural Resources, reported. Shields said funds for park development during the 1977-78 fiscal year will be used from the Land Acquisition Trust Fund as the money becomes available.

Among projects planned at St. Lucie Inlet State Park, located at the northern end of Jupiter Island, are a boat basin, boardwalks and service road, utilities and ranger residence. The park consists of 618 acres on the south shore of the St. Lucie Inlet.

The director stressed that no definite allocation of funds among the projects has been made "at this preliminary stage."

The results of the Wieceks' labors have transformed the house into the Small World Learning Center, a state approved pre-school, for pre-school, pre-kindergarten and kindergarten students.

The school, located on SR 707 near Beacon 21, has a playground, a small group activities room, a sick room, a large group room, and an arts and crafts building.

The school will cater to 23 children this year with the help of child psychologist Margaret Bixion as a teacher's assistant.

"We're going to provide a home away from home," Mrs. Wiecek said. "Along with child care, we will get them ready to use the skills they need. It is a learning center. Children learn every minute and it's good to take advantage of it when they have the time. Today we realize that in many homes both parents have to work. I was in that situation myself with my daughter."

The school has an inventory of teaching machines, tape recorders and primary typewriters for the children to use.

"We have a little bit of everything and we hope to have more in the future," Mrs. Wiecek said.

The Wieceks refurbished the old house along with the help of Mary And's parents.

"The four of stripped and remodeled the house, making it into a school," she said. "My parents were here for seven weeks and worked about 18 hours a day every day. They did the air conditioning and the roofs, everything you can think of. I really think the school is something the community needs."

Food stamp fraud is enhanced in 1977

WASHINGTON–The food stamp program has been a first class raid on the treasury since its inception.

If any, federal giveaway programs have grown so fast. From a beginning, the program has [illegible] quadrupled and quadrupled [illegible] again and again.

In March, 1965, the food stamp program was a piddling 542,359. In just [illegible] years, the caseload increased 4,227 percent to a mind-boggling 19,142,000. By fiscal 1965, the cost of the food stamp program was $36,353,797. The next decade saw it soar to $5.2 billion, a growth of 14,203 per cent.

And the two fiscal years since 1975 haven't seen any decline in the food stamp program. For the current fiscal year, the costs will approach the $6 billion mark.

Last month the General Accounting Office reported the government loses more than a half billion dollars a year in the food stamp program "because of over-issue benefits resulting from errors and suspected recipient fraud."

Unfortunately, the action of the House in approving the Agriculture Act of 1977 will do nothing but pave the way for even more fraud.

Unless the House action is overruled by the Senate, food stamp recipients next year won't have to put up any money to get the stamps.

Under the present law, anyone signing up for food stamps is required to pay something for the stamps - ranging from a token amount from those least able to pay to perhaps 75 or 80 per cent of the value of the stamps for those in the borderline proverty level.

And even then, the potential gain was enough to bring out the frauds, the cheats and the ripoff artists. There were those who'd pay a few dollars, get $100 worth of food stamps and turn around and sell them on the black market for $50.

By doing away with the purchase requirement, we are just raising the potential for gain. We are making it more attractive for the frauds, the cheats and the ripoff artists. And perhaps we will now bring in a few more.

That's what happened last winter during the emergency food stamp program.

Testimony in Florida before the Lee County Grand Jury showed fraud in that program – where the stamps were free, no token payment at all – reached the 60-70 per cent range.

It went higher because the chance for profit from fraud was even greater. No money had to be put down in order to sign up for the stamps. It was just sign up and get them.

Then, the stamps were sold, usually at 50 cents on the dollar.

It was a handsome return on no investment, for those willing to lie and cheat to get the stamps fraudulently.

Now, we can expect to see more of this fraud, all around the nation.

The House also refused to adopt an amendment denying food stamps to strikers and it rejected an amendment to put a $5.6 billion ceiling on the program.

All in all, the House erred and erred greatly in its approval of the food stamp section of the Agriculture Act.

Let us hope the Senate uses more wisdom. It may be a vain hope. But it is our only one.

Campbell and Luckie lead rebel charge

BY DONNIE WILKIE

AINESVILLE–It's been over 100 s since the North defeated the South he Civil War, but if you saw Dock ie and Walter Campbell in ssville last weekend, you might n the war was still raging.

he two area high school graduates participants in the annual h-South football and basketball es, and both were instrumental in ing the Rebels to wins in both ests.

day night's basketball game was close all the way, as Campbell's ate rival Oliver Lee (formerly of and) kept the North in the lead for h of the game. Another reason for North's early escape was an injury ampbell in practice sessions for the e 6-foot-6 Martin County dout hurt his right knee when he ded with Jay Herwanger of the h, and limped noticeably throughout ire game.

Campbell's ineffectiveness caused the s to fall behind early in the game, took them until the late stages to command.

rgie Hannah of Titusville took e in the first half, scoring 26 points ep the Rebels in the game. In fact, it Lee's marvelous play to give the bels a 48-47 halftime lead. The and All-American candidate dunked Campbell to give his team the lead e intermission.

mpbell did not score in the first half, e got on the board early in the final to get the South rolling. The North opened the final 20 minutes with consecutive points to take a 56-47

Campbell's bucket trimmed the to 56-49, and from that point on, it all South.

-10 burst gave the South a 69-66 ntage with just over 10 minutes aining in the game. Hannah's ng was shut down in the second but the South controlled the boards, es they had not in the first half. Campbell and Hannah snatched ebounds to keep the South in front the stretch.

nnah got into foul trouble late in the , but his replacement, Benny t of Largo, got two quick buckets to up and 67-67 tie. But Leesburg's hatman scored on a breakaway and Lee tied it up at 69-69 moments mi Jackson's Arthur Cartwright, alled 20 markers, nailed down the y with two free throws and bell added another hoop in the g minute of play. The final was marking the fourth straight

Port Women's Golf

T ST. LUCIE–The North Port 's Golf Association held a ll, best ball, ½-combined handi- urnament at Holiday Country tuart, on Wednesday, August 3. winners were Bea Landon and harpe, 58. Alice Vermillion and Eberhardt were close behind, 59 for second place. And right on eels were Ginny White and Helen . taking third place honors with victory for the South in the series.

On the gridiron, Fort Pierce Central's Dock Luckie was quite healthy, and he let the Yankee footballers know it on every play. Luckie was named the game's most valuable player in the South's 21-0 victory, the most lopsided in the annual classic since the North's 50-0 rout in 1958. It was also the South's sixth straight win.

Palm Beach Gardens' Bernard Hay recovered a fumble deep in Yankee territory in the second quarter to set up Lorenzo Ross's one-yard plunge, the only score of the first half.

The South could not get rolling in the third period, either, as their only big play was a 28 yard pass from Titusville Astronaut Tim Collinsworth to Pahokee standout Rickey Jackson which put them on the North's 35-yard-line. But the drive stalled, and the North had the ball back, trailing still by seven.

However, the South's sins were down the pesky attack of the North in the fourth quarter, as the Rebels scored 24 points to rout the Yanks.

Hollywood Chaminade's Billy Capece kicked a 27-yard field goal to make it 10-0, then Collinsworth sprinted 56 yards on a quarterback keeper for a 17-0 edge.

Meanwhile, the South defense, led by Luckie, was stopping the Northerners when they had to, although they were allowing a bundle of meaningless yardage. The South was outgained 315-180 in total yardage.

Rosa, of Miami Carol City, gained 113 yards for the Rebels on only 13 carries.

Sports News

BY DONNIE WILKIE

With a 17-0 deficit facing them in the final minutes, the North began to crumble, allowing an interception and a fumble to be returned for touchdowns.

YOU REMEMBER WHEN...

folks have come back and others so this item on returnees, ited by Andy Sherbey, is quite Andy now lives on Key Lime, but ittle "old section" for years as he in the park since 1929. He is alified on OBPicans (to coin a as he has many books, albums emention along with all the ist paintings he works on in his time. It's always interesting to h Andy, and here's what he says turnees in the olden days a trailer would arrive from the ountry, pull up in front of the it was no sooner stopped than folks would rush out and greet the the big 'n' kiss and the men with shake, while the big bell would "clang-clang", announcing to all that some old friends were back.

Down the OBPers would come, every last one of them, from all over the park to greet 'em with hugs and kisses. Then, hardly before Jack and Dick could get their trailer spotted under their favorite palm tree, the folks would have raided their ice boxes (yes, ice it was) for goodies, and there'd be a big pot luck for the tired travelers. OBP was always a good place to come home to and even to this day the tradition is carried on as, generally, a neighbor invites the returnees in for the first meal.

RAMBLING AROUND

Ruth Miles of 14 SW 6th receives many letters from OBPers away for the summer, as they like her interesting and informative replies for, you see, she's ideally located on the corner of Broad and Sixth to observe the park doings. Here are two excerpts:

Long Merrill of S. Fifth, now in Laconia, N.H., writes: "Skies are black and it's rumbling and grumbling, all ready for a downpour, so I'll write a few lines. Harold Woodruff, exOBPer, died recently (he would greet folks with a 'Ho,Ho,Ho'). Had a nice visit with Ethel Rafuse on Lake Winnipesaukee. Vi Watts was there, both are well. Ada McKibben wrote saying knee repair has been completed. Eva and Clarence Papas, who stayed on No. Sixth last year, visited her, hope to be back next year. Hazel Wilson is fine...Blueberries are 99 cents per pint."

Mable and Nettie Christy, 7 No. Fifth, write from La Jolla, Calif., "It is even warm here although we are very comfortable, having a hot and cool swimming pool. Had two very pleasant months visiting in Michigan. Planning to return to OBP early in Sept. Anna Larsen writes that she's OK."

+++

Dick and Doris Reed, way out on Lil Bit Lane, generally have heard from other neighbors who've gone north. Here's a couple of interesting ones.

Bob and Gerry Hines of Lil Bit Lane write from 728 Lewis Blvd., c-o J. Robert Hines, Lima, Ohio 45801, "Warmed up too much, but garden is fine, maybe a little dry, but rain's promised for today."

The Reeds finally heard from Johnie Sumner. He's OK, traveling around visiting his family. Visited his son in Mt. Vernon, Illinois, then on to Boulder, Colorado, to visit a daughter, and from there to Edmonton, Alberta, to visit another daughter. Will return to Mt. Vernon around August 10, and plans to come back this fall to get that big snook.

Walt and Peggy Dryer, 7 Almond, have been entertaining their grandson David for the past week. He is 22 years old and a student at Community College, Elkton, Md. His father is a retired Chief Petty Officer, USN, and his mother is a career Army woman (they both specialized in computers). David fished and did some sightseeing and says OBP is great.

Errol and Marguerite Ridgwell, 20 Ocean Breeze Dr., are back from two hot months in Massachusetts helping their daughter Calli and family move from Wilbraham to Southborough. They enjoyed their grandchildren. Guess 14 and David 10, but had to admit that moving is hard work. There was much talk about the awful winter just past.

They are delighted to be back in OBP, although they did have a wonderful trip to Brunswick, Me., visiting Marguerite's mother and enjoying the sea food, especially fried clams and scallops.

+++

Pauline Kaeppner, 3 Melaleuca, is just back from a six week trip to Indianapolis, Ind., visiting her sister, Mrs. Buerge, who, in turn, visits here during the winter months. Pauline says the weather was ideal, cool nights and warm days, but that was just after the terrible hot weather, according to all talk.

+++

Nancy Roulier, Almond St., has just heard from Larry and Gladys Gardner of Hillsboro, who write that all is well with them in Millsborough, Delaware, and they plan to return here August 20.

Then, there was a letter from Doreen Feet, from Port Huron, saying, "It's cool, sweater weather on the shore of Lake Superior."

The Freda Peterkin-Hilda Giblin saga continues as they faithfully send us letters, cards and souvenirs. They took in the Folies Bergeres in Las Vegas and, according to pictures on the program, it must have been double X rated. Then, they really "did" Hoover dam and have enough information to build one themselves.

While waiting at a restaurant, there was a clang and jingle-jangle of $48 in change cascading to the floor from a one-armed bandit. Couldn't make out whose coin caused the avalanche, so no inquiry will be made when they return.

Then on they went to Los Angeles, with a trip down the Sunset Strip to Hollywood and Grauman's Theatre, after they'd had a day at Disneyland. Next was that beautiful shore drive north to San Francisco, with a stop for lunch at quaint Danish Solvang Village. They sent a card of the famous Cathy House in China Town.

It looks now as though these happy but weary travelers will be home this week, so, greetings.

Jim and Ellen Nixon get many cards and letters. Here's what some folks had to say.

Margaret Weeks of 25 Cocoa writes from Battle Creek, Michigan, "Spent the night at Niagara Falls, then did too much sightseeing, tired. Keeping very busy, swimming, picnicking, picking blueberries on the farm. I'll have to come back to OBP for a rest."

...chief reasons for selling that 450-member limit is that our meeting place is too small for any larger number. As a matter of fact, it would be too small right now if we had even half of the currently enrolled members at a meeting. Various possibilities for a larger meeting place are now being investigated, and there may be some concrete news on this later.

+ + +

Next month's meeting should be a very interesting one. The speaker will be Charles W. Koenig, Martin County and Port St. Lucie coordinator for VISTA (Volunteers in Service to America), which operates a broad range of programs ranging from help for runaway youths to volunteers who visit old folks at their homes and last sit down and chat with them. Koenig, a former newspaperman, and Mrs. Vallie Miller, Fort Pierce supervisor, will discuss these programs and offer suggestions as to how AARP members can participate.

Jim Kearney, community service chairman, reminds those who have signed up for the Aug. 17 Jungle Queen safari that they should be at the Northport Marina at 3 p.m. to board the bus that will take them to Fort Lauderdale, where they will board the fabled Jungle Queen for the boat trip. A full load of 43 people will participate. Jim reports that there was one cancellation, but this was offset immediately by a waiting-list passenger.

On the Bahamas Cruise, Oct. 10, some 30 people have paid their deposits, but a substantial additional number is needed to meet the quota. For the benefit of any members who have just returned from trips and are not familiar with the details, deposits of $65 for an inside cabin or $70 for an outside cabin should be paid at Ask Mr. Travel (878-6683) in Grimes Plaza II, where either Mike Krain or Bill Christian will take your money.

The voyage will be made aboard the Norwegian Caribbean Lines Sunward II, a modern vessel recently refurbished, which will depart Miami Monday, Oct. 10, and return Friday, Oct. 14, after visiting Great Exuma Island, Nassau and Berry Island. Deposits are due Aug. 15, and payment of the balance must be made by Sept. 10. Total cost of an inside cabin is $250 and $270 for an outside accommodation.

Stamp Club plans stamp exchange

PORT ST. LUCIE–The Port St. Lucie Stamp Club will hold a stamp exchange and Bourse on Sunday, August 14, at the Port St. Lucie Community Center, from 1 to 5 p.m.

Everyone interested is welcome.

Walton-Eden pick officers

JENSEN BEACH–The Walton and Eden Property Owners Association this month elected a slate of officers for the upcoming year.

The new officers are Joseph Mattace, president; Godfrey Kaufman, vice president; and Gertrude Moehle, secretary-treasurer.

The membership has unanimously agreed to retain its old by-laws and keep the association strictly a social club with membership limited to only property owners in Walton and Eden. Others residing in the area who do not own property may become associate members.

Dues for membership are $1 per year and meetings are held on the first Friday of January, March, May and October.

The membership voted to disperse a portion of the group's $743 balance to a number of public organizations. One hundred dollars each was donated to the Jensen Beach Volunteer Fire Department, the Jensen Beach Samaritans, the Florida Sheriff's Boys Ranch, the Salvation Army, the 911 emergency system of St. Lucie County, and to the favorite charity of the association's attorney.

After disperserns there was $143 left in the treasury which will be used for operating costs of the association.

Food Stamp Office moves August 18

STUART–The Martin County Food Stamp office will be closed Thursday, August 18, to move to its new location.

The new location will be at 413 N.W. Monterey Road.

PSL Republicans take August off

PORT ST. LUCIE–The regularly scheduled meeting of the Port St. Lucie Republican Club will not be held in August. The board, at a recent meeting, decided not to hold a meeting in August, thereby giving members a vacation, inasmuch as many members are away on vacation anyway.

Starting in September, the club will hold a series of four dinner meetings. The first, to be held September 1, will tentatively feature Florida House Representative Bill James. Subsequent fall meetings will feature such speakers as Skip Bafalis and, possibly, one or more of the candidates running for governor in 1978.

Dr. Claude Grizzell, membership committee chairman, reported that the June membership campaign had produced an additional 25 members, bringing the total membership count to 65.

The August board meeting will be held as scheduled.

The Port St. Lucie Republican Club meets at the Community Center on the first Thursday of each month. The public is invited to attend.

Special funds available

STUART–The Florida Farmworkers Council has been selected to recruit and identify economically disadvantaged persons in Martin and Okeechobee Counties experiencing financial difficulties in meeting the high cost of energy and fuel consumption. Funds are available to assist persons meeting CSA Poverty Guidelines.

The total amount allocated for Martin County is $11,040.

According to Eugene T. Gills, director of planning and research for Florida Farmworkers Council, "The maximum amount to be spent per family is $250. However, most vouchers will be one-time payments for high unpaid fuel and energy bills." These funds must be either spent or obligated by August 31, 1977, but will not be lent to the state if not spent within this time frame.

Persons interested in applying for assistance under this Special Crisis Intervention Program in Martin County, should contact the local welfare office.

The program will operate on a voucher system, with all funds going directly to fuel and utility companies, rather than to the individuals. According to Gills, "The true beneficiary of this program is the fuel and energy supplier."

Outreach aides will be at the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce, 1810 N.E. Commercial Street, every Monday, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., starting August 15 through August 29, to screen applicants for assistance under the Special Energy program.

This program is open to anyone who can qualify, with special priority given to those over 65.

Palm Lake Park

BY ELENOR E. FALK, 287-2900

Mrs. Carrie Arnold belongs to the International Zeta Phi Beta Sorority and recently traveled all over Africa with the group. Their first stop was Monrovia, Liberia, on the west coast of Africa. Ladies of the Delta Phi Beta met with the group from the U.S. and greeted them very warmly.

The group visited all of the universities of each colony and the J.F. Kennedy Clinic which is supported by the U.S. They were invited to the President's Palace and toured the Firestone Plantation where they were shown how rubber is made.

From there They went to Abidjon, Ivory Coast, which got its independence in 1960. There are many industries there. French is the language spoken. They stayed at the Ivoire International Hotel.

From there they went to Nairobi, Kenya. The tallest building there is 14 stories. They went to a national park and saw many animals and visited Kanayatta, the president of Nairobi.

A gallon of gasoline is $2.00.

They also visited the villages and saw African dancers and eaps plantations; then to Dariasalaam, Tazzania, where they flew over the Kilimajari Mountains. Mrs. Arnold bought some African clothes.

The group then went by car to Bagamayo where slaves were sold in 1768 and old buildings are still standing as well as the first mission.

Mrs. Arnold sure saw a lot and covered plenty of territory in only two weeks.

Jerry and Kitty Lyons and children, Jimmy, Jeanie and Billy, are guests of Bea and Marty Olsson. They hail from South Windsor, Connecticut.

N COUNTY DEPUTY Bill Presley attended the Port ie City council meeting Tuesday to ask permission to fence around his yard. He told the council members he is training a Doberman Pinscher as an attack dog for the Martin County Sheriff's Department, but Sheriff Holt said the deputy is not training any dogs for his department.

Did deputy lie to city council?

PORT ST. LUCIE–Martin County Sheriff's Department Deputy Bill Presley may have gotten himself into hot water Tuesday when he appeared before the Port St. Lucie City Council to ask permission to build a fence around his yard.

Presley, who lives at 2056 Morningside Boulevard, attended the council meeting in his deputy's uniform and asked for a zoning variance so he could build a fence around his yard. The zoning code does not allow fences in that part of the city.

"He said he was training a Doberman Pinscher as an attack dog for the Martin County Sheriff's Department," City Manager Elmer Cox said Tuesday after the meeting, explaining that Presley asked for the fence so he could contain the dog.

Presley also noted that because he is a deputy he sometimes receives threats "from people I put away eighteen months or two years ago," and that sometimes his wife is at home alone. He said the dog offered protection for his wife.

The city council members listened to Presley's request, then told them they could not take immediate action on it. They explained that he would first have to ask the city Planning and Zoning Board for a zoning variance, and that if the board approved it, the request would then come back to the council for a hearing and a final decision.

Presley told the council members that his attorney had looked into the fence ordinance and had questioned the constitutionality of it. But Presley said he did not want to have to file a suit to get permission for his fence.

Martin County Sheriff James Holt was asked Tuesday afternoon if Presley was or had been training an attack dog for the Sheriff's Department, and Holt replied, "No, he's not training a dog for us and never has trained one for us. I don't know anything about this fence request, but I'm going to call him in and get to the bottom of this."

re urging that students come in as possible to register for Registration started Aug. 1 and ntinue through the month. , since we will be so busy the ple of days of school, we will not o register anyone those days," ipal said. The school office is n 8 a.m. to noon and from 1 p.m. for registrations.

Since Federal Judge Clyde C. Atkins recently ruled that fourth and fifth-graders may attend Port St. Lucie Elementary School instead of having to be bused to St. Lucie Elementary School in Fort Pierce, school workers have been moving portables to the Port St. Lucie school to house the students. Blackmer noted his school had more than 600 students last year and will have more there this year. A total of 31 teachers will be at the school, he said.

But what about the students? Are they ready for school to start? Joey Yannetz, an eight-year-old Port St. Lucie resident who will enter third grade this year, says, "Yes. I like school. I like the teachers and I'm ready for school to start."

Eric Idzior, a seven-year-old Port St. Lucie resident who will enter second grade this year, agreed with his friend Joey. His reason for wanting to go back to school was the same. "I like the teachers," he said.

Greg Johnson, 13, had a different reaction. "I don't like school. They don't teach you a whole lot. I'd rather have the summer vacation last longer," he said, as he took a break from skateboarding along Prima Vista Boulevard. Greg says he will be entering eighth grade at Lincoln Park Academy.

Greg's sister, Julie, 12, says she has spent her summer fishing and "just playing." She said she did not like school, and when asked what she did not like about it, she said, "Everything." She will be going to Dan McCarty Middle School in Fort Pierce.

Greg and Julie's cousins, Rowdy Crawford, 14, of Parkerberg, W. Va., and Laura Funk, 14, of Satellite Beach, are down for a visit. While they will not be attending local schools, they say they don't want to return to school in their hometowns. The reason? "It's just no fun," they agreed.

But Ann Duncan, who works the snack bar at the Port St. Lucie Community Center and who will be entering her junior year at Fort Pierce Central High School this year, says she loves school. "I learn a lot, and it's fun. I especially like chorus and I'm looking forward to going back to school," she said.

School hours in St. Lucie County this year will be from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. for elementary students and from 8 a.m. to 2:15 p.m. for all others.

PRINCIPAL VICTOR BLACKMER stands in front of one of the newly installed portables at Port St. Lucie Elementary School. Blackmer urges parents to register their children for school early.

urch zoning goes ck to P&Z Board

BY BOB FRYER

ST. LUCIE–As expected, city members voted unanimously morning to refer the question of anges for two churches back to ning and Zoning Board.

rningside Friends Church, a f the Quaker religion, is seeking e a church building on a e tract in a residential area rningside Boulevard.

urch of Christ group is seeking church building on a two-acre he northern section of the city, ta Drive and Howe Avenue.

ng Director Ralph LaChance church groups originally came anning and Zoning Board with their church buildings, asking be zoned in whatever category opriate for a church.

Planning and Zoning Board d the requests, and since the oth churches was not sited in tory, they decided the churches nt fit in the C-1 category," e said, noting that a C-1 allows, among other things, nal uses.

he Planning and Zoning Board o recommend to the city council churches be zoned C-1, notices to surrounding residents to em of a city council hearing on requests. When the residents e Morningside Friends Church their notices, many of them the hearing and objected to the proposal.

happened is the Morningside hurch originally showed plans itional activities on their land. nts were wary of that. They ey did not want a recreational e, so they objected," LaChance said.

At the hearing, Morningside Friends Church Rev. Ben Agler told the council members that his group had withdrawn plans for recreational activities on their land. "We don't care what the zoning category is. All we want to do is build a house of worship," he said.

But area residents complained that if the land was zoned C-1 and the church group sold off part of the land, a recreational park could still be built there.

At the Tuesday meeting, all five council members were present. They voted to send the zoning requests back to the Planning and Zoning Board with a recommendation that the Morningside Friends Church land be zoned E-1 (residential estate lots) to conform with surrounding zoning, and to have a special exception created in the E-1 classification to allow a church building. They also voted to recommend that the Church of Christ land be zoned R-2 (residential) to conform with its surrounding zoning, and to have a special exception made so a church building could be located there.

In addition to that action, the council voted to have the Planning and Zoning Board examine the possibility of creating a special zoning category, just for churches or for churches and parochial schools.

"We need to solve this problem once and for all, because we will have more churches coming into the city in the future," said Vice Mayor Mike Reeb.

"In fact, since the issue of zoning for those two churches came up, LaChance says a request has been received for a Greek Orthodox church to be located along Alcoso Boulevard, near the site of the proposed city hall.

City budget may total $1 million

PORT ST. LUCIE–City Council members have scheduled a special meeting for 9 a.m. Friday, Aug. 12, to work on the city budget for the upcoming fiscal year.

The meeting, to be held at City Hall on Morningside Boulevard, was called after City Manager Elmer Cox informed council members that he has received the final property value assessment for lands within city limits.

"Tax Assessor James Bass notified me yesterday that the assessed value for the City of Port St. Lucie has been set at $216,680,340 and that the millage rate has been certified at 1.5529 mills," Cox told council members Tuesday, Aug. 9.

Cox noted that for the current fiscal year the city levied a tax of 1.75 mills on property owners and that this tax yielded just over $285,000. He said that because of increased property value assessments, a millage of 1.5529 mills this coming year would yield just over $319,000, after a standard five per cent discount is made for errors and non-payments.

The current year's budget totaled $681,000, including the $285,000 revenue from ad valorem taxes and funds raised from construction permits, inspection fees and other licenses and franchises.

This coming fiscal year, since council members plan to set aside more money for a city police department and a new city hall, the budget may total about $1 million. Cox said that of the $1 million, as much as $130,000 to $150,000 may come from cash reserves that have been accumulating for the police department and city hall.

Though the millage for the upcoming fiscal year is tentatively set at 1.5529 mills (down from 1.75 for the current year), this does not mean property owners will be paying less taxes.

"Taxes will be greater because of the higher assessed values. Some property assessments went up as much as 40 per cent," Cox said.

On Tuesday, area press representatives were issued a tentative proposal by William R. Hough and Co. to serve as investment banker for issuing $800,000 in general obligation bonds to pay for the police department and city hall. Cox noted that if such bonds were issued, it would be done only in the event city residents approved it in an election. He further noted that it is just a proposal, and that he has been investigating the possibility of getting a loan from local financial institutions instead of issuing bonds. He said if the city borrowed the money from the financial institutions, the interest the city paid would be non-taxable for the institutions.

Mayor Bill McChesney said that he hoped the budget work could be finished on Friday, and said if it is not finished, a meeting may be called on Monday, Aug. 15, to conclude the work.

ELEMENTARY SCHOOL STUDENTS Joey Yannetz, left, and Eric Idzior, right, took time out from swimming at the North Port Marine pool to comment on whether or not they want to go back to school. They both said they like school and like the teachers.

South County Demos will meet tonight

PORT ST. LUCIE–Mrs. Jane Brooks of the League of Women Voters will be the featured speaker when the South St. Lucie County Democratic Club meets August 10 at the Northport Marina on Prima Vista Blvd.

According to Phil Rodi, who was recently elected president of the Democratic Club, Mrs. Brooks will present a timely program on the revision of the Florida Constitution. Fort Pierce will host the Constitutional Revision Panel on September 7 for public hearings.

Meeting time will be 8 a.m. and members are encouraged to bring a friend to the session.

CRABBING IS MORE FUN than school, according to these children. Laura Funk, left, and Rowdy Crawford, right, are cousins visiting Julie Johnson, center, of Port St. Lucie. Though they all attend different schools, they all agreed they would rather be playing than attending classrooms. They are shown here with a catch of crabs from the North Fork of the St. Lucie River.

TY--The Sewall's Point Town Council last week passed an gency ordinance to enforce no fishing on the town's three bridges. Not only is there no fishing, but no netting, no ming, no diving and no loitering. "There was no provision for safety on any of the bridges," said Sewall's Point Police Chief Fran Matuszewski. "And we had some people complain of kids loitering." This photo shows the sign at the High Point island bridge.

Billfish hearing is August 31

BY ROBBIE BEDELL

STUART--All commercial and sport-fishermen who have knowledge of local billfish are being asked to attend a public hearing being held by the South Atlantic Regional Fisheries Council.

The hearing will be held at the downtown Stuart Holiday Inn at 7:30 p.m., Wednesday, Aug. 31.

The reason for the hearing will be to provide the council with local knowledge of sailfish, white and blue marlin and swordfish, so the information can be compiled into a preliminary management plan. The move is one of the first steps in initiating the extended 200-mile jurisdiction of U.S. territorial fishing waters.

Since the billfish have top priority over other fishes in the eyes of the council, knowledge of those fish as a group is being solicited first, with studies of other good and game fishes, such as snapper and grouper, coming later.

According to Trudy Bernhard, a voting member of the council, the hearing will be held in two parts. The first will be an explanation of the new 200-mile limit and the second will be for input for the management plan.

"What we are looking for is input from commercial and sportsfishermen," Mrs. Bernhard said. "The testimony given here can be very, very important. There is no way to tell how many swordfish are taken by sportsfishermen so we will have to have the input about them."

Mrs. Bernhard said the information gathered will be given to the U.S. Secretary of Commerce so quotas, if any, can be allotted to foreign vessels which may fish inside the 200-mile limit. Foreign vessels will have permission to fish in U.S. waters as long as certain fish are in surplus of what domestic fishermen gather and if the foreign vessel makes certain agreements.

"First, they must sign a treaty with the U.S." Mrs. Bernhard said. "Then, once the treaty is signed, they have to acknowledge the regulations and procedures of the law. Once this is done, if the fishery is interested in making application for fishing, it will be allocated a certain amount."

Mrs. Bernhard said the allocation of the surplus fish will be determined after it is known what the "optimum yield" of the fishing area is.

"It's a new concept," she said. "It takes into consideration the health of the fish stock, the ability of the U.S. angler to harvest and his capacity to process the harvest."

Once it is determined that there are more fish in an area than the American fleet can harvest, foreign applicants will have an allotment.

As an example, Mrs. Bernhard pointed out that there is a good concentration of pollock within the 200-mile limit off America's northwest coast. Since the Russian fleet is very interested in the pollock and the American fleet is not, the Russians might get a very good allocation.

Mrs. Bernhard said there could be a day when salt water fishing licenses are required so the takes of sportsfishermen can be counted, therefore giving more accurate information on an area's yield.

She also said that by placing an observer aboard foreign vessels, the U.S. may learn gathering and processing methods it has not known before, which could increase the domestic catch.

quaculture offered by FIT

BY ROBBIE BEDELL

SEN BEACH--Three professors at lorida Institute of Technology are coordinating a program which have a large impact on the sea life rivers around Martin County.

year, a number of FIT students d an interest in aquaculture, the of fish in captivity, but the e was considered too young to major in the subject.

a very young industry in this ," said Assistant Director of mic Affairs Dr. William Gehring. decided we didn't want to put all gs in one basket."

Dr. Gehring did notice that a of courses in the school's mental technology course were able to an aquaculture program, made a plan that students could e in environmental tech with an to go in aquaculture.

"Our primary goal is to train competent technicians for the aquaculture industry," Dr. Gehring said. "And we feel there will be a lot of spinoff to help the local community. I hope they can get involved with us."

So, Gehring and his colleagues, Dr. Jack Hitron, director of aquaculture, and Dr. Randy Hogg, head of the department of natural sciences, are preparing the details for a complete program.

They hope soon to break ground for a new fish raising facility which will be located on the Indian River north of the schools chapel.

"We have some aquariums where we can raise some fish," Dr. Hitron said. "And we have a lab where we are raising some fresh water shrimp. We think there is a big future in the shrimp because of their excellent quality, their size and their good price. They can achieve weights up to several pounds."

Though the school now has tanks with the shrimp, the professors hope to be able to raise trout and snook. Hopefully, within the next few years, they may be able to release the game fish into the rives to supplement the existing stock. They would like to tag some of the releases to movements of the fish.

"From the standpoint of the community," Gehring said, "we would like to get involved in some aspect of a fish-raising program with the possibility of releasing fish into the Indian River to supplement the natural supply."

So far, the new facility to raise the fish has only been marked out on the lawn behind the chapel.

"By this time next year, this facility will be running like a fine-tuned clock," Dr. Hitron said.

"In a few months we would like to get some community involvement," Dr. Gehring said. "Once the doors are opened, they will always be open. We would like people to come here and see what our experiments are. We want to get feedback from the community."

Dr. Gehring said one of the big problems of raising any fish in captivity is feeding them. The newly born fish are nearly microscopic and must have plankton to eat.

"We would probably need a boat to collect the plankton every day," Gehring said. "And go somewhere where there is a high tidal flow."

One plan they have is to let the water from the aquaculture run into the lagoon in front of the school. Through the years, for a number of reasons, the lagoon has slowly filled in. What was once a home for small tarpon, snook and mullet now has few fish at all. It is hoped the runoff will refurbish the lagoon, then they will be able to build pens in the water to keep fish until they grow for a year so, and then release them.

Polish-American Club meets Thursday

Firemen accept deputy challenge

JENSEN BEACH--The softball teams of the Jensen Beach Volunteer Firemen and the Martin County Sheriff's Department meet Wednesday (tonight) at Langford Park. The game will start at 7 p.m.

Private club licenses are investigated by state

JENSEN BEACH--Investigation of possible illegal sales of liquor at private clubs in Martin County was revealed this week by the Florida Division of Beverages.

The investigation includes the Jensen Beach V.F.W. Post and the Stuart-Jensen Elks Lodge, according to Lt. E.A. Hooper, head of the West Palm Beach office in charge of Palm Beach, Martin, St. Lucie and Okeechobee Counties.

Hooper questioned news articles and advertisements of the two clubs providing alcoholic beverages to local organizations. In one advertisement by the VFW Post, a jam session open to the public was promoted. In a news story, the Elks Lodge was mentioned as the location of a cocktail party-dinner dance of the Port St. Lucie Yacht Club.

Lt. Hooper told The Mirror that both functions would violate Beverage Rule 7A-3.19(1), which provides "Alcoholic beverages may be served only to bonafide club members or to their guests. The payment for such service and distribution must be made only by bonafide club members," if such alcoholic beverages are sold to the general public.

Hooper said that investigation of the clubs would be intensified "when we get the four additional beverage officers in late September of October," adding that the office did not presently have adequate enforcement personnel to proceed.

"The licenses for clubs are intended for the general membership of the club and their guests," Hooper said. "This is meant as a convenience to the members, not as a source of income competing with local establishments."

Del Huston, of the Elks Lodge House Committee, told The Mirror Tuesday that such events as the Port St. Lucie Yacht Club dinner dance were due to the Elks Lodge members of such organizations.

"Elk members have to get the tickets. It has to be an Elk. We don't take money from anybody except an Elk," Huston said firmly. "The people get their tickets from the Elks."

Huston added that the club does not promote the events.

"It is a private event, and not open to the public," he said.

Bob Gillespie, commander of the VFW post, told The Mirror that no drinks were served to the public at any events sponsored by the veterans organization.

"Our chicken fries and our jam sessions are open to the public, but we do not serve drinks," he said.

Gillespie pointed out that the organization has separated the club facilities and bar from the large facility where such events are held.

Corps is testing channel depth here

JENSEN BEACH--The Army Corps of Engineers is in town performing routine testing on the depths of the intercoastal waterway.

Boat skippers may wonder what the orange flags are on sticks along the channel from the Stuart Causeway to the Inlet. They're the Corps' way of marking their progress while making the checks.

"We're performing an examination survey to determine the river condition in the channel," said assistant area engineer Robert Elrod in Miami.

"If it needs dredging, it will be dredged. It's a routine thing we do at regular intervals. It's our responsibility to keep the waterway up."

The channel is maintained to a depth of 10 feet from Miami to Fort Pierce, and 12 feet from Fort Pierce to Norfolk, Va.

Baby turtles will be released

STUART--The last group of baby sea turtles to be released this year will be let go at Stuart Beach at 5 p.m., Thursday, August 18, according to Department of Natural Resources Biologist Ross Witham.

The turtles are hatched from eggs gathered on the beach. They are tagged when they become old enough to fend for themselves and are then released in the ocean for study.

If you want to see the turtles, be there at 5 p.m. sharp. They don't take their time getting into the ocean.

...er later in the 1940s, Spinney and a ...ber of other men organized the ...n Beach Volunteer Fire Depart-...Like Spinney's old days in New ...k, the 1900s in Jensen were a lot ...e than they are today.

...n Spinney turned 21 he joined the ...York Police Department and ...d a beat up in Harlem, a job he described as "inane." That was in 1917.

"You had to buy everything but your badge," he said. "You had to buy your uniform and your gun. I still have the same gun today I had back then."

Spinney said he had to work in an area called the "Murderers Stable" in Harlem where gangsters operated.

"It was at 111th Street and 1st Avenue," Spinney said. "But it didn't suit my guts."

He had that job a year and a half and then went into the welding business before moving to Florida.

Spinney came to Jensen Beach on a tip from a friend.

"I stayed at the old Stuart Hotel," he said. "I asked C.B. Arbogast to show me around Jensen Beach. I noticed there was a fire burning near here all the way to the Archway. I told him we'd better get the fire department and he told me there was no fire department in Jensen Beach. He said Stuart was the only one. That gave me an idea."

A year later, Spinney went to then Martin County Road Superintendent Buck Hendry and asked him to buy a fire truck for Jensen Beach.

"Well, we got an old truck and we had a little firehouse at the end of Commercial Street," Spinney said. "We fought fires all over Martin County."

So Spinney was a pioneer of the Jensen department along with "Boots" St. Clair and A.J. White.

To get the new firehouse along Palmetto Street, the department had to make a deal with the Florida East Coast Railroad.

"A lot of trains came along then and their steam engines set fires along here," Spinney said. "They set fires every other day. The railroad property had a house on it and I asked Seymour Gideon to buy the property. He did and we sold the house for $25. Someone moved it to Stuart. The railroad said we would have to rent the land across the street for parking. But I reminded them that we put out their fires for years for free, so they decided to rent it for $10 for ten years."

It was later that the fire department got the idea of asking people for funds to operate a growing department. It began asking for contributions in the 1950s and an annual drive has been held ever since.

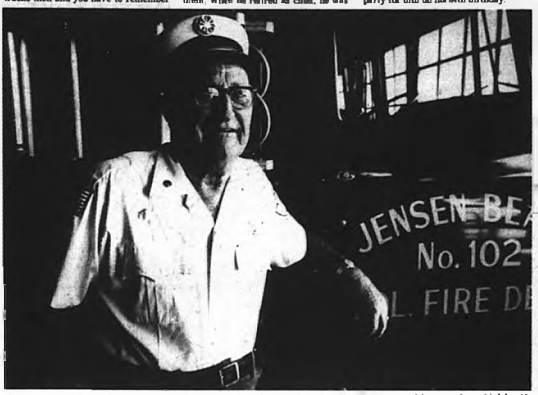
"There have been some very generous contributors around Jensen Beach," Spinney said.

The biggest fire Spinney recalls in his more than 30 years on the department was a brush fire back in 1961.

"It came from the northwest like that fire we had a couple of months ago," he said. "They let the high school kids out of school to fight it. We worked all night. The people at Ocean Breeze Park stayed up wetting their awnings so they wouldn't catch on fire. There were sparks all over and some did lose their awnings. We paid those kids $1 an hour. We had fewer trucks then and you have to remember there were no awful lot more woods around then."

In all Spinney gave 30 years to the departments and served as chief for 13 of them. When he retired as chief, he was one of the founding members and he served as chief for 12 years. Here he is shown in uniform next to truck number 102.

cited by the Martin County Commission for his helpful services. He still goes to the firehouse every day and the department recently held a surprise party for him on his 86th birthday.



FORMER CHIEF–Randolph Spinney has been a member of the Jensen Beach Fire Department for the past 30 years. He is

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

Your article "Officials Gang Up On River Odor" appearing in the Jensen Beach Mirror on Aug. 10, 1977 was read with interest. It appears that this problem has been in serious contention for many years. I'm afraid it will be many more years before the problem is solved.

The basic problems with the odors experienced along the Indian River extending from Ft. Pierce to Sewall's Point in both the causative factors and factors concerning elimination of the problem are manyfold in nature.

The shore line consists of a broad belt of shallow tidal area in which a sensitive biological process is going on all the time. We can expect an inversion of all material which decays on the river floor in this area during the winter which rises to the surface in the spring and with the process continuing thru the fall. During this time gases such as Hydrogen, Sulfide, Mercaptan, and Skatol are released, mere traces of which impart intense, characteristic, highly offensive odors. These odors are generally called "sewer gases". Of course there are many other products of this decomposition process.

You will note that almost anywhere in the world where on encounters tidal flats that the same effluvia prevails to some extend, especially during the summer.

Water less than 3 feet in depth generally tends to become choked with weeds, plants (such as algael growth) etc., and the biological process started and retained on the bottom during the winter in the anaerobic state, floats to the surface as the water grows warmer in the spring when the aerobic process takes over. In the meanwhile the oxygen content of the water is literally "eaten up" because of the amount of undigested plant life floating to the surface, or lying on the sand during low tides, and sufficient oxygen does not remain in the water to oxidize this material - hence the "sewage" smell.

Of course, the insufficiently treated sewage outfalls from the various businesses, homes, etc. along the river does not help the situation, but rather contributes to the obnoxious situation.

It is not the intent of the undersigned to point any fingers, but the use of septic tanks which at best can provide only a 35 to 45 percent level of treatment of raw sewage for disposal of wastes from food establishments, etc., should be discontinued and sewage processed through a plant which provides an acceptable effluent should be installed.

Lived in house boats along the shore contribute to the "untreated" sewage problem.

In reference to the river-- I hold myself as no authority in this matter-- until such time that an average shore line depth of 3' or more at mean low tide is established we will be faced with this problem forever. Depths of 3' or more give space for accumulation of sewage sludge and dilution of raw sewage than do shallower depths, although shallower depths provide more efficient use of sunlight in photosynthesis (formation of carbohydrates in the chlorophyll containing tissues of plants exposed to light).

If was interesting to note in previous articles that someone had dug a ditch to catch the rotting grasses, etc., and then removed the grasses which helped the situation temporarily. This reinforces the above statement.

I know that the above will not solve the problem. All I have tried to do was state that nothing is served by pointing a finger at one small establishment when we have a situation which can only be controlled by a very large, very expensive project.

It is suggested that a visit to a tidal flat almost anywhere in the world would give one an idea of the extent of the problem.

I am certainly not stating that every situation of dumping raw sewage into the river should not be stopped. It should have been stopped years ago. We did not have the compaction of living units and businesses along our estuaries years ago, and as a consequence had ample dilution and digestion of raw sewage with no odors. At this point- and it will get worse, we had no better plan for what is going to happen 10 or 100 years from now. The individual sewage disposal systems being used by condominiums, homes, businesses, etc., along the rivers should be held "suspect" until a system of inspection is devised which will assure than an excellent quality of effluent is being discharged into the rivers from these places.

Obviously, I cannot recommend an inexpensive panacea to the problem, but perhaps the above will serve as a springboard from which the County Commission, and others, can realize that they should seek the advice of experts, certainly other than the undersigned, who can study the situation and offer recommendations which will assist in resolving the situation. In other words, the comment of Mr. Gluckler concerning the hiring of an expert is well taken.

Dumping of wastes of whatever nature, and from whatever establishment, should be stopped immediately.

Very respectfully submitted,
s- Louis P. Villano

To the Editor:

Your article on Island Water Idea I do not believe is fair to Jensen Beach. We have all worked to save the Savannas for our water supply, which is the best in the area. I personally do not want a water company selling me water. I like my well - the water is pure and without chemicals. Too much poison is being put in out food today. Please, don't push for a water company from Jensen Beach, as we need the water here.

Why should our area furnish water for the county to sell to anyone? We can't get our bicycle paths that have been promised to us for several years, which we need so badly. If the county wants to go into the water business, let them go west, not in our area which is growing and we will need all this water for our area.

We've had a fight for a sign on the toll way. We are waiting for the arch to be rebuilt. So many things are needed in Jensen. Please don't sell us short here in Jensen.

Too bad we aren't incorporated. I hope we can be soon.

Worried Citizen,

Leatherworker recalls his past

BY ROBBIE BEDELL

JENSEN BEACH–Relaxing in his chair outside his Britt Road home, H.D. Worth recalls his past years as a leatherworker, known mostly for making thousands of collars for race dogs in Florida and around the United States.

"Wherever they had a dog track, I did work for them," Worth said. "My main shop was in Hialeah. I had to stop working, though, because my hands have become so stiff. I can't work with the needles any longer."

Worth learned the leather trade from his father. More than 60 years ago, the two ran a leather working shop in Patchogue, Long Island, New York, making all kinds of leather goods.

"When I came to Florida, I made millions of dog leads and collars for race dogs, but I did very few for pets," he said. "I never owned a race dog myself, but I did own a big Great Dane. He weighed 165 pounds and he was the best natured pup you ever saw in your life."

All of the old hand leather working tools Worth owned were given to his son Vincent who is a leatherworker in Gainesville.

One of the sidelines Worth had was to be the bandleader in the City of Stuart Band in the 1920s.

"I played the trumpet and was the bandleader for several years," he said. "They paid me $200 a month and then they cut it down to $100 a month. Then I left Stuart to go down to Hialeah in 1929."

When Worth left the band, the remaining members bought him a silver trumpet and presented it to him in a wooden case as a sign of their appreciation.

In addition to working in the city band, Worth played at the Fort Pierce Hotel and a number of nightspots in the area in the 1920s. But along with giving up leather work, Worth also had to give up the trumpet because of the stiffness in his hands.

RETIRED LEATHERWORKER–H.D. Worth is a retired leatherworker who made thousands of dog collars for race dogs around the country. He was also band leader for the City of Stuart in the 1920s.

GDU-city meet on propane rates

BY BOB FRYER

T ST. LUCIE–Representatives
General Development Utilities met with city council members and asked that the GDU be allowed to supply propane to city homes be amended so GDU can comply with federal regulations.
action on behalf of GDU were Jerry and attorney Saul Sack. They that began in 1973, GDU and other propane gas utility companies present their rate schedules to what were on May 15, 1973 explained that the federal guidelines were imposed primarily to large oil companies from realizing high profits from the 1973 energy
He said the regulations also apply
He also said that, in the past, operated as six different systems, each different for each system. But federal regulations are requiring GDU now operate as one system, uniform rates. But within the new rates to be charged to the GDU users, there are "rate blocks" that measure the amount to be charged a customer based on the amount of propane used. The higher the volume used by a customer, the lower the rate per unit of propane will be, Morian said.

What this means, Morian noted, is that in the winter months, when large quantities of propane are used for heating, the rate per unit of propane will decrease. In the summer months when volume drops, the rate per unit will increase.

Morian said the Federal Energy Administration (FEA) sets the price per propane unit and sets a formula for passing on costs to the utility companies.

"It's all in a formula over which we have no control," he said. Additionally, he said there is about a two month rate per unit lag between actual use and the setting of the monthly rates.

"Over the annual period, the rates will average out to be about the same as before, but in the winter, the rate per volume will drop and in the summer it will increase," Morian said.

Those persons living outside the Port St. Lucie city limits are already being billed under the federal regulations.
Sack said that GDU legal counsel in Washington, D.C., have said rates in Port St. Lucie, Fort Malabar, Port
Charlotte and all other communities served by GDU must be uniform and in compliance with federal regulations. He asked the city council to amend the franchise agreement so GDU would be complying with the federal regulations.

When asked what would happen if the city did not agree to amend the franchise agreement, Sack replied that GDU would probably comply with the federal regulations anyway. He showed the city council a letter from the GDU attorneys in Washington that said if GDU does not comply with the federal regulations, it "could subject GDU to both substantial refund obligations and penalties."

"We're in a loss position with the 1973 rates," Morian said, but later admitted that GDU has petitioned the FEA for permission to have its rates adjusted.
The state Public Service Commission does not regulate propane rates, he added.

"But if we amend the franchise to have GDU comply with the federal regulations and then the FEA adjusts the GDU rates, wouldn't the rates go up?" asked Mayor Bill McChesney.

Morian admitted this would be true.

"I have a sneaky feeling they're not asking for the new rates to comply with the federal regulations because of any great love for federal regulations, but because they want this so they can raise the rates if the federal government grants the adjustment they're seeking," said City Attorney Spencer Gilbert.

Gilbert asked for a copy of the federal regulations that apply to GDU and for a copy of a letter from the FEA to the GDU lawyers in Washington, D.C., that informs the lawyers GDU has to be in compliance with the regulations. Sack said he would get a copy of the letter for Gilbert.

"I want to hear the other side before the council takes any action on this," Gilbert said. Then council members decided to give Gilbert time to review the GDU request and to put the matter on the agenda for their Sept. 13 meeting.

Two shopping centers are eyed by city officials

PORT ST. LUCIE–Plans for two shopping centers in Port St. Lucie, including one that would house a major supermarket, cause under review by city officials this week.

On Monday, the Planning and Zoning Board examined plans for "Southport Center," which Sandpiper Bay, Inc., proposed to build on lands surrounding the northeast side of City Hall on Morningside Drive.

Peter Smith, president of Sandpiper Bay, Inc., showed plans for a 23,720 square foot major supermarket to be located immediately east of the existing buildings that contain the City Hall, a convenience store, and several small shops. Smith said the existing buildings would have their facade changed to match other structures in his shopping center.

The plans also showed a 3,600 square foot restaurant to be located in front of the present City Hall.

To the west of City Hall on land that stretches along Morningside Drive to Westmoreland Boulevard, Smith plans to have a two story building containing 11,000 square feet. The first floor would house a branch of a local bank and the second floor would contain professional office spaces.

A convenience store, a savings and loan association office, and 10 retail stores would also be located in the Southport Center. Parking space would be provided for 218 cars.

Smith said his firm is ready to start building the center as soon as he can get the land zoned, get the site plan approved and building permits issued. He expected it would take 12 to 13 months to build the center after building permits are issued.

The size of the tract for the Southport Center is 7.18 acres, he noted.

Board member Col. John Huncharek recommended that the tract be zoned in the Planned Shopping Center category, and the board members approved that motion. Now, the project will go before the city council for final zoning review and site plan approval.

The other shopping center, which developer Paul Zinter plans to build on a 5.18 acre tract between West and Bent Avenues along Port St. Lucie Boulevard, was reviewed by city council members. That center is to house a convenience store with two self service gas pumps, a bank branch, and 25 other store units. It is to be built across the street from the future City Hall, and is expected to cost $800,000 to construct.

The Planning and Zoning Board had approved B-2 zoning for the tract, but Mayor Bill McChesney said such a zoning class would allow motels and amusement parks. "I think what they're planning would fit under B-1 zoning, which is more restrictive," he said.

redrafted to designate the tract B-1. The council members indicated they would likely limit the hours of business of the convenience store from 6 a. m. to 7 p.m. and would require "ample screening" on three sides of the center.

Other city council members agreed, as the zoning ordinance request will be

PETER SMITH, president of Sandpiper Bay, Inc., outlined plans for Southport Center, which he says will include a major supermarket.

Go Team advertises for St. Lucie County

FORT PIERCE–The G.O. Team has launched a major advertising program across the country to inform the nation's leading industrial executives of the advantages of locating a plant in St. Lucie County.

The campaign is being conducted in cooperation with the Florida Department of Commerce. It includes ads in five economic development magazines which feature St. Lucie's "two great climates," weather and business. Ads will run in American Industrial Properties Report for June, September and December; Area Development for July, September and October; Plants, Sites & Parks for September and January; Site Selection Handbook for September; and Plant Location for April, 1978.

In addition, 1600 copies of the new publication, "The St. Lucie County Story" have been sent to selected company presidents. Also a special mailing of 1000 flyers based on the magazine ad and containing a return coupon to receive the new G.O. Team brochure were sent to selected company presidents in industries that are especially suited for southeast Florida.

Rain douses Jensen blaze

JENSEN BEACH–The Jensen Beach Fire Department responded to a blaze late last Friday afternoon at a one acre area off SR 723, and luckily, Mother Nature was on our side," said Chief Joe Luciano.

"If it wasn't for all that rain we could have had another bad one," the chief said referring to a more serious brush fire several months ago.

Luciano said it is especially good it was raining because one of the fire trucks the department used to use was blocked. "It's no problem now that we know where the block is," he said. "But we're really happy it was raining because the wind was blowing very strong."

The fire was started by lightning.

IACA slates cookout at Community Center

PORT ST. LUCIE–Since the July Steak-Out was such a success and left members clamoring for more of the same, the Italian and American Civic Association (IACA) is planning another cookout.

It will be held in the Community Center lounge this Sunday, August 14, with dinner served from 2 to 5 p.m., dancing from 6 to 8 p.m. The cooking will be done outdoors by the club's chefs.

A few remaining tickets may be obtained by calling Florence Dabney, chairman, at 878-0049.

At a recent meeting, it was decided to hold only one more meeting until fall, which is scheduled to be held Sept. 18. The next board of directors' meeting will be held at Sandpiper Bay on August 18.

Hunter, firearms safety course is offered

JENSEN BEACH–Persons interested in taking a hunter and firearms safety course offered by the Florida Fresh-water Fish and Game Commission should contact Fred Dushanek at the Jensen Bait & Tackle, 2321 N.E. Indian River Drive, in Jensen Beach.

Dates and hours for the course will be announced later, according to Fred Dushanek.

A hunter's safety certificate will be issued by the commission to those who complete the course and pass a written test. A certificate is required to use the duck blinds at section 1 of the Merritt Island Wildlife Management area and it is expected such a certificate will be required eventually for all Florida hunters.

Pat and Joyce O'Turl are entertaining their daughter Kathleen and her husband Lawrence Horton, who are both school teachers from Webster, Mass., the town of the longest named lake in the world (try to pronounce it, it has 45 letters). Chargoggagmanchaugagoggagmanchaugaungamaugg. Roughly translated, it means "You fish your side, I fish my side, nobody fish in middle."

Kathy and Lawrence went fishing on the causeway and in two days caught four stingrays, four sheepshead, one catfish and two croakers. The O'Terls took them to Miami for the weekend to enjoy the sights. It was their first time to visit Miami. The Hortons are spending their vacation here.

Earle and Edwing Palmer write of a three week trip, a vacation of trials and fun, spending two of the weeks on the Island of Newfoundland with their pickup and trailer. Starting over on the night ferry, taking the six hour trip into Port Aux Basques, they arrived at 7 a.m., a little worse for wear after sitting up all night.

The second phase of their trip took them up the northwest of the peninsula to the St. Genevieve River, which is 300 miles from Deer Lake, which is about 200 hundred miles up the coast from their port of entry. In the all day rain, they were covered with mud, traveling over dirt roads nearly all the way. Earle managed to notice a couple of salmon on his fly rod before they left in another storm, having cold and windy rain.

After the first 65 miles traveling south, they stopped on a dirt road and, lo, they found their refrigerator had come open and there were broken bottles, beer and food on the floor. After putting the refrigerator door back on and cleaning up, they started out again.

Continuing down through the mountains, they learned they had no trailer brakes. Couldn't find a garage that could repair them, so had to continue on to their stop, which was the only one with electric and water hookups, where they found one more thing....a flat tire. After staying long enough to repair everything but the stop, they continued down to the southernmost part of the peninsula where they visited friends. Leaving the island, they went to Cape Breton, Nova Scotia, where they went around the Cabot Trail. They arrived home safely, however, and have been very busy renovating their trailer. They will leave for Easter State Park and will spend all of September at their favorite lake, Nenaowadie Bamb, 200 miles north of Quassice, Maine.

Heard from Al and Peg Ray. They are in Montana, having a wonderful trip and repeating visits to many places because they are so beautiful. They visited Colorado Springs and Rocky Mountain National Park and were entertained royally for a few days by friends in Golden, Colorado. They saw the Grand Tetons, but Yellowstone Park was so crowded, they drove right through. They saw beautiful countryside in Montana and, when she wrote, they were sitting by Al's campfire, near a river in a national forest near Drummond, Montana.

They are going to Mt. Rainier and Olympic National Park, and down the coast to Riverside California, to see friends. Al and Peg hope to go to Hawaii when they get to Los Angeles

Mildred and Leo Stall wrote that the weather in upper New York state has been delightful this summer. They play golf several times a week and Lee has been fishing and their freezer is stocked with walleye pike and bass. Their vegetable garden has provided fresh vegetables all summer, too, a delight when their daughters and their families visit or when they have a neighborhood fish fry.

In September, the Stalls plan to take a trip to Cape Cod and Nantucket, stopping in Syracuse enroute to visit Pat and Marian Kime of Ist 378. They hope to be back in Holiday Out after Thanksgiving.

How is it Ted Lents can catch snook with the greatest ease while equally deserving fellow surf casters, using similar bait and equipment and standing right beside Ted, do not have a bite?
